ACQUIRED TIMBER HONESTLY.

C. A. Smith Denies Charge of Fraud—Trying to Raise Money.

PORTLAND, Or., June 18.—Before leaving for California, where he is to establish a new lumber plant, C. A. Smith, the timber millionaire of Minnesota, gave out an interview that he did not acquire his holdings in Oregon through the dummy system. This statement was made in connection with the suits which have been brought by the United States government to cancel the patents which were given on many thousand acres of Linn county's most valuable timber land.

Notwithstanding the charges made by S. A. D. Puter in his book, "Looters of the Public Domain," that he had a deal with Smith whereby the millionaire was to finance the scheme of having bogus entries made to secure the Oregon holdings they were obtained legitimately.

Mr. Smith said that the suits would not involve the holdings of the C. A. Smith Timber Company, of Marshfield, Or., in Douglas, Coos and Curry counties, Oregon, and could have no effect whatever on the bonds of the company.

"While I have made extensive timber purchases in Oregon," said Mr. Smith, "I do not recall that I have bought any settler's claims. I am quite sure on this point. But at least I have never procured any one to enter lands in the guise of settlers in my behalf."

Smith is now trying to raise $3,000,000 on his timber holdings in Oregon and California. He is advertising in a Swedish paper in Minnesota offering gold bonds in denominations of $500 and $1000 each, bearing 6 per cent interest. In his advertisement, Smith says he has 118,200 acres of the best timber land in Oregon and California, with extensive mills and yards in Oregon. He estimates that he has 8,000,000 feet of timber and estimates the worth at $10,000,000. These holdings he places as security for the $3,000,000 bond issue. Smith, however, does not explain in his advertisement that many millions of acres and millions of feet of timber included in his securities are the Linn county lands which are now in controversy and which the government may take away from him.

HOUSE IS DYNAMITED.

Emphatic Warning to Mormons of Eugene to Move on.

EUGENE, Or., June 18.—A small residence in Eugene occupied by Mrs. E. E. Howell, a widow, her three children, her brother, W. S. Buchanan; his five children and two Mormon elders, C. L. Dunford and C. A. Williamsons, was partially wrecked early this morning by a charge of dynamite, which had been placed beneath the front porch. The porch was demolished and windows in the front part of the house were broken out, but none of the occupants were hurt. A rock from the foundation of the house struck an iron bedstead in the basement, where Buchanan and his children were sleeping. Mrs. Howell and Buchanan, also the Mormons, came here from Salt Lake two or three years ago. It is not thought the perpetrator placed the dynamite with the intention of killing the occupants of the house but simply to frighten them or the charge would have been placed beneath the house. It was simply put under the edge of the porch. On the house was pinned the following note:

"This is a warning to your tribe. You have tormented the public enough. Move on. The next shot will do more. We mean the Mormon tribe."

There is no clew to the identity of the dynamiters.
