S.S.S. A CURE FOR RHEUMATISM

Rheumatism is caused by an excess of uric acid in the blood, which is carried through the circulation to all portions of the system. Every muscle, nerve, bone and joint absorbs the acid, pain-producing poison, causing aches, inflammation, stiffness and other well known symptoms of the disease. Permanent relief from the pains and discomfort of Rheumatism cannot be expected from the use of liniments, plasters, and other external treatment which does not reach the blood, where the cause is located. Such measures give temporary relief, but in order to cure Rheumatism the uric acid and inflammatory poison must be expelled from the blood. S. S. S. cures Rheumatism because it is a perfect blood purifier. It goes down into the circulation, neutralizes the uric acid and drives it from the blood. S. S. S. expels the irritating, inflammatory matter which is causing the pain, swelling and other discomfort, enriches the weak, sour blood, and permanently cures Rheumatism. In all forms of Rheumatism, whether acute or chronic, S. S. S. will be found a safe, vegetable remedy, possessing the properties needed to cure, and at the same time a medicine that builds up the entire system by its fine tonic effects. Book on Rheumatism and any medical advice free to all who write. THE SWIFT SPECIFIC CO., ATLANTA, GA.

HIS MOTHER.

Mrs. Arden sits in her luxuriant lounge gazing absently on her son's picture, which rests on a table, wishing she could hear the sound of his voice coming through the house again. She had cast him off because he had contracted a misalliance, refusing to hold any intercourse with him in vain be pleaded. She remained immovable.

It is now two years since his marriage, and though she has often longed for his presence, she has never acknowledged it until now. Perhaps she might have remained estranged had it not been owing to the sermon which the minister preached Sunday on "Mother Love," relating several touching incidents of sacrifice which mothers have made for their sons. What had she done? Disowned her son because he married a poor girl. What need of her being so bitter? If Jack loved the girl, why was she so obstinate? She resolved to search for him and bring him home.

Two months have passed. Mrs. Arden has left no stone unturned to find her son, but to no avail. She fears she will be unsuccessful. Perhaps years may elapse before any account of him may be obtained. She is pacing the room nervously when Mr. Rymer, her lawyer, is announced.

One glance is sufficient. She steps forward, exclaiming, "You have good news?"

"Yes," replied Mr. Rymer, "I have seen your son, but did not make my presence known. He lives in G. and is employed by Wright & Carter as bookkeeper. I obtained my information from Mr. Wright, confiding the story to him, knowing you will want him to come home with you. He is glad for Mr. Arden's sake, but sorry to lose such an earnest worker. I also called on Mrs. Arden, but as a book agent, and I admire his taste. While their home is not luxurious, everything is cozy, and I am sure she is an excellent wife."

"Oh, I am so glad! Mr. Rymer, if I start immediately I could reach the house before Jack, tell his wife who I am and surprise him when he comes to supper, could I not?"

"Yes; there is a train at noon. That is an excellent plan. You will call tonight. Jack will be pleased to see you, and—"

"I should like to see him. Yes, I shall call. Goodbye!"

Evening of the same day. Mrs. Arden has been at her son's home two hours, long enough for her to agree with Mr. Rymer by admiring his selection of a wife. Alice, Jack's wife, is unlike the Ardens, being small and fair, while they are tall and dark. Mrs. Arden and Alice have become the best of friends. They are awaiting Jack's arrival. When they hear his footsteps, Mrs. Arden will step into the next room and await an opportunity for her appearance.

"How the time drags!" exclaims Alice as she kneels beside Mrs. Arden, clasping her hand. "Dear mother, I am so happy! I long for Jack to come, knowing he but wished to be reunited to you to complete his happiness. Every moment seems an hour."

"What a cross woman I have been! But," smiling fondly into the upturned face, "I did not know I had such a lovely little daughter."

"I guess you thought I wanted Jack's money, but you know now, don't you?" Her answer is to take the slender form in her arms and kiss her.

Presently Jack's footsteps are heard. Mrs. Arden steps into the next room. The door opens, and Jack exclaims: "Why, Alice, you look radiant! What is it, little girl? Good news?"

"Jack, do I ever look unhappy?" "No, but you look extremely happy tonight."

"I guess happiness is in the air," replies Alice, with a roguish smile. "Perhaps you may inhale some of it. But be seated. Supper will be cold."

"Have you made a mistake, Alice?" asks Jack as he sees an extra plate laid. "For whom is the third plate?"

A hand is laid on his shoulder. A voice which causes him to start says, "For me." In less time than it takes to tell it Jack has exclaimed "Mother!" and clasps her so tightly she fears she will never be free, kissing her again and again.

and son have recovered their composure. Mrs. Arden tells him how her conscience rebuked her after hearing the sermon, and when she sat looking at his picture and longing for the sound of his voice she determined to find him and bring him home.

Mr. Rymer enters at this point and great is Alice's joy, as he calls her "young Mrs. Arden's," dismay to find that "the persistent book agent" and the lawyer are one. Jack is delighted to see his old friend.

After greetings have been exchanged between smiles and tears Jack turns to the group, saying, "Well, you all formed a conspiracy against me, but if all plots ended as happily as mine this would be a good world."

Within a week they have gone to live with "mother," dispensing with their flat. Jack's mother is happier than she has been for years. "Young Mrs. Arden" has a staunch admirer in Mr. Rymer, who thinks she is charming. He and Jack are fast friends. Alice wonders why Jack should tell her his mother was stern. For her part she thinks there is no one—excepting Jack, of course—so nice as his mother.—Boston Post.

As One Sees.

"You don't see very clearly, do you, Mr. Ego?" said the sarcastic lady to the egotistic person.

"Oh, yes," he listened to reply; "my sight is perfect, the oculist told me only yesterday."

"Indeed!" smiled the sarcastic lady. "In some manner, don't you know, I had thought you saw only with one eye!" —New York Press.
