JULY 27, 1908.

DEMOCRATIC CHAIRMAN.

Norman E. Mack, of Buffalo—Watterson Heads Press Committee.

CHICAGO, July 25.—Chairman of the democratic national committee—Norman E. Mack, of New York, editor of the Buffalo Times.

Vice-chairman of the democratic national committee—P. L. Hall, of Nebraska, personal representative of William J. Bryan.

Treasurer—Governor C. N. Haskell, of Oklahoma.
Secretary of the democratic national committee—Urey Woodson, of Owensboro, Ky., editor of the Owensboro Enquirer.

Sergeant-at-Arms—Colonel John I. Martin, of St. Louis.
Tonight peace reigns. Charles F. Murphy, of Tammany Hall, William J. Connors, chairman of the New York state committee, and William J. Bryan have buried all their differences and conciliation is to be the watchword in New York, Pennsylvania, Connecticut, New Jersey, Massachusetts and Rhode Island.

Murphy surrendered to Bryan. The surrender was unconditional, and means that the democratic chief-fan will keep hands off in New York this fall.

The fruits of the victory go to Connors. He is recognized as the real leader of the democrats of that state and he will have all of the assistance possible from Bryan and Mack in making the fight there for the vote of the state. And he and Mack will select the state ticket to be nominated this fall, without any outside dictation.

Bryan Praises His Aides.
In discussing the new officials, Bryan made this statement:

"The action of the committee in the selection of officers is very satisfactory. Mr. Mack is a member of the committee and it has been felt all the time that the chairman should be taken from the committee, unless there was some weighty reason for going outside, and no such reason appeared. Mr. Mack's appointment is a recognition of the energy and power of an announcement that we expect to fight for New York."

"It is in harmony with our platform and I can say for him positively that he has been a close and trusted friend in former campaigns. One of the strongest arguments in his favor was that he is a successful business man. Beginning at the bottom of the ladder he has built up a business that amounts to more than $500,000 a year, and the executive ability he has shown in his work commended him to the committee that made the selection."

Proud of His Business Men.
"Mr. Hall, the vice-chairman, was for many years chairman of the democratic committee of Nebraska. He is at the head of one of our leading banks and is officially connected with both politics and business. We have worked together in politics ever since I went to Nebraska."

"Mr. Woodson, the secretary, is also an old member.
"Governor Haskell, the treasurer, is a new member, but he has made good as a leading member of the constitutional convention of Oklahoma, and as governor. His organizing ability will be valuable to the committee. His selection as treasurer is especially appropriate, because he comes from the state in which depositors are absolutely secure and

The democratic platform has a plank advocating the adoption of a national system similar to that now in operation in Oklahoma.

Watterson Heads Press Committee.
Bryan was the best pleased man in Chicago late tonight when he received a telegram from Henry Watterson of Louisville, declaring he would decline to accept the chairmanship of the democratic press committee. This committee, which will be the first real press committee the democrats have had in many years, will be made up of 25 editors of the most popular democratic papers throughout the country which support Bryan. The committee will be selected by Watterson and National Chairman Mack and will probably be announced in Buffalo early next week.

Outline of Campaign Plan.
In view of the fact that Watterson fought Bryan in 1896, his warm support of the Nebraskan has now given Bryan more joy than anything that has happened since he was nominated.

National Chairman Mack announced tonight that he would leave for Buffalo tomorrow again to remain there a few days. He will return probably next week, when national headquarters will be established here. Mack himself, Vice-Chairman Hall and Governor Jennings, of Florida, will take personal charge of the Chicago headquarters and direct the whole democratic campaign.

Mack said a systematic campaign, especially in the western states, would be made, and he predicted that Bryan would carry New York by 100,000 plurality.

Over Thirty-five Years.
In 1872 there was a great deal of diarrhoea and cholera infantum. It was at this time that Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy was first brought into use. It proved more successful than any other remedy or treatment, and has for thirty-five years maintained that record.

From a small beginning its sale and use has extended to every part of the United States and to many foreign countries. Nine druggists out of ten will recommend it when their opinion is asked, although they have other medicines that pay them a greater profit. It is always depended upon, even in the most severe and dangerous cases. For sale by Hamilton Drug Co.

Bad Symptoms.

The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling of stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily started or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weakness and danger, and that she should have every reason to be present in any case at once.

Neurotic or lady troubles and such cases often run into melancholia, if they do not result fatally.

STOOD IN BULLET'S PATH.

Laure County Man Killed by Nephew, Who Shoots at Deer.

EUGENE, Or., July 26.—Jerome Renne, a well known citizen of Creswell, was accidentally shot and killed by his nephew, Ralph Mosberg, 1501 1/2 Ave. W. of Creswell, yesterday afternoon. Renne went to the hills to look for a cow that had strayed away. Mosberg was out hunting with his rifle and sighted a deer 100 yards or more away. Taking careful aim he fired, thinking he had hit the deer, but he was horrified upon approaching the spot where the deer stood to find his uncle with a bullet through his heart.

AN IDEAL FRUIT COUNTRY.

A. E. Guyton Writes of Horticultural Wealth of the Umpqua.

Illustrated with the views of a large orchard in full bloom and of two boxes of luscious cherries, there appears in the Portland Journal, of Sunday, July 26, an excellent article on the fruit industry and farm growth of the Umpqua Valley. The article is contributed by A. E. Guyton, an interesting newspaper writer, who is spending several weeks in Roseburg and vicinity preparing write-ups of the resources of the county for the Portland newspapers and for eastern publications as well. The magazine section of Sunday's issue of the Portland Oregonian also contains a story from Mr. Guyton. It deals with his recent trip afoot to this city from Coos Bay, where he was formerly engaged in the newspaper business. The article in the Portland Journal referred to above follows:

"Producing cherries as big as a quarter of a dollar, apples that top the New York, London and Hamburg market, pears and peaches of the finest quality, and the pioneer prune district of the coast—such is the prestige enjoyed by the Umpqua valley in Douglas county, nestled between the Coast range and the Cascade mountains.

The Umpqua is more of a hydrographic basin rather than a valley. Between the spurs and short ridges are a series of small valleys linked together. Some of these are little nooks with but room for a farm or two, while others comprise as much as 20,000 acres. In the county there are about 5000 separate farms, a small number compared that what will be the aggregate when the large tracts are subdivided. The owners of the enormous stretches of land are putting them on the market in the shape of five and 10-acre fruit farms, thus opening the country to settlement.

Ideal Agricultural Conditions.
"A more ideal fruit country could scarcely be found. The fine rural homes now occupied tell plainly the success of those engaged in the fruit business. Dairying and general farming are followed some and many herds of cattle and flocks of sheep are grazed on the rougher land, but the valley is particularly adapted to fruit. Prunes, apples, peaches and pears are especially successful. Douglas is the pioneer county in raising prunes, 6,000,000 pounds of dried fruit being shipped last year.

Fine Specimens of Fruit.
"The cherries are unsurpassed, some growing to the size of a quarter of a dollar, as shown in the illustration. Apples, while a newer industry, are believed to have a promising future. The Gravenstein seems to do as well as in Coos county, which is famous for that variety. The Umpqua apples bring the highest prices in the eastern and European markets, a single Baldwin tree having brought in one year as high as $27. Half that yields means a comfortable fortune from 10 acres.

"The fruit growing requires care but the care is amply rewarded by the enormous returns. About 10 acres planted in orchard is sufficient for one man to cultivate. He will have enough to live comfortably, pay for his place and lay aside a neat little sum for old age.

"One man in 1907 purchased a half interest in a 20-acre orchard for $2,750. He built a drier for $500, purchased a team for $300, making a total outlay of $3,550. He borrowed the money at 5 per cent. He paid the entire loan and interest last fall and had a generous surplus.

Farms Reasonably Cheap.
"The fruit lands are not out of reach. Land can be purchased convenient to town for about $150 an acre. By the time it is planted and the orchard brought to bearing it will represent an outlay of $225 an acre, but in the meantime strawberries and garden truck can be raised between the trees and in quantities sufficient to make a living for the owners. Once the orchard begins to bear the yield will run from $400 to $1000 an acre each year. Men with only small means can go farther back on rough land, do a little pioneering and gradually work up to the same point, but this, of course, is harder work and requires more time.

Fruit Growers Protected.
"The Umpqua Valley fruit growers have an association and through it ship their fruit, thus protecting the growers in the matter of prices. This year the association will send a man east to look after the selling.

The Commercial Club at Roseburg adopted a novel means this year of advertising the fruit. Little paper baskets containing each a half dozen fine cherries, were presented to tourists. With each basket was a tiny booklet containing facts about the locality.

"The area of land available for fruit culture is so great that the future extent of the industry seems almost unbounded.

Sore Nipples.
Any mother who has had experience with this distressing ailment will be pleased to know that a cure may be effected by applying Chamberlain's Salve as soon as the child is done nursing. Wipe it off with a soft cloth before allowing the babe to nurse. Many trained nurses use this salve with best results. For sale by Hamilton Drug Co.
