Yoncalla Camp, No. 450, is mentioned as one of the winners with 16 per cent increase. In marked contrast to the fake of the night before was the really excellent social given last Friday night by Miss Lilyth Moore. The impersonations were most clever and the monologues, which varied in theme from pathos to comedy, were all given with that ease and grace which comes of careful training and much rehearsal. Although monologues are often tiresome and uninteresting Miss Moore held her audience from start to finish and won their hearty applause.—Courier.

WILL BE REVIEWED.

Mr. Rhoades Pays Fine for Sunday Opening, to Test Law.

This morning in Justice Long's court the case of E. Rhoades, charged with violating the Sunday closing law, was against called up, the jury on the trial Thursday having disagreed. At this time Mr. Rhoades and his attorney interposed no objection and he was fined $5.00 on the charge as made. This was done for the purpose of having the case thoroughly reviewed in the circuit court, which will follow at a later date.

Action in the justice's court would by no means settle the matter, even had the jury agreed in the first trial. A question of the constitutionality of the law is to be decided, as well as the applicability of the law to the specific cases upon which the action was brought.

The Review was misinformed and stated Friday that Messrs. Denning and Mathews, who were fined for violation of the Sunday closing law had agreed to keep their places of business closed on Sundays hereafter until the law in question is passed upon by a higher court. We since have learned that no such stipulation was asked or offered, when they appeared in court and their opening or closing on Sundays hereafter is a matter upon which they will exercise their own discretion.

"I have found Bucklen's Arnica Salve to be the proper thing to use for sore feet, as well as for healing burns, sores, cuts, and all manner of abrasions," writes Mr. W. Stone, of East Poland, Me. She Likes Good Things.

Mrs. Chas. E. Smith, of West Franklin, Maine, says: "I like good things and have adopted Dr. King's New Life Pills as our family laxative medicine, because they are good and do their work without making a fuss about it." These painless purifiers sold at A. C. Marsters & Co's. drug store, 25c.

Mr. Welch has been in the Puget Sound metropolis for several days on business connected with the livestock exhibits. He says that the exposition will be a success, $100,000 having been offered in premiums for livestock alone.—Salem Statesman.

TO ADVANCE "DRY" CASE.

MEDFORD, July 31.—Attorney W. M. Colvig left last night for Salem, where he will argue before the Supreme court the matter of advancing an injunction case which is now pending in that court. This is the suit brought by J. C. Hall against the county judge and commissioners of Jackson county to restrain them from issuing a prohibition order, declaring the county "dry" in accordance with the vote on this matter at the last election.

OREGON HOP OUTLOOK.

That the quality of the hop crop for 1908 in Oregon will be good, and that the growers may expect to realize a fair price on their commodity, is the general sentiment among the dealers and producers of Marion county.

Some discussion was occasioned by an interview published in the Oregonian Friday, in which Joseph Harris is credited with stating that the growers will make a mistake by picking all their crop this year, and that the world output will be in excess of market demands.

Although the opinions of the dealers on this point are at variance, it is certain that every grower will harvest his entire crop. Estimates of the output of the Oregon fields this year vary from 50,000 and 120,000 bales. The price will, of course, be controlled by the quality as well as the quantity of the yield. Reports indicate that the condition of the hops is excellent. However, had weather at any time before September would undoubtedly cause mold. Lice are reported to be general, but with favorable weather they will not injure the crop.—Statesman.

BIG FIRE AT MARSHFIELD.

Forest in Flames Threaten Portions of the Town.

Special to the Evening Review. MARSHFIELD, Or., Aug. 1.—A big forest fire, raging in the Fernvale district, about three-quarters of a mile from town, and out of reach of the fire department apparatus, seriously threatens the fine new residence of Mr. Spade. The whole town was once threatened on account of the strong winds. This has now abated and the fire is believed to be under control. The actual loss so far is not great.

BLACKMAN WINS OUT

SALEM, July 31.—The Southern Pacific has advised the railroad commission that the company will refund to P. E. Blackman, former agent of the railroad at Roseburg, the sum of $31.18. When Blackman was at Roseburg, a shipment of horses arrived there on which the charges were prepaid. The shipment was turned over to the consignor, but later it was found that there were additional freight charges due of $31.18. The company deducted this amount from Blackman's wages. Blackman protested and has at last secured a refund of the amount.

SMUT CAUSES EXPLOSION.

WALLA WALLA, Wash., July 30.—An explosion following a fire on the ranch of W. A. Raymond, four miles northeast of the city, caused a loss Tuesday night of nearly $5000. The explosion was caused by smut in the separator of the threshing outfit of George McGuire, and, besides demolishing the threshing outfit, the flames consumed two settings of wheat, over 1000 sacks. The threshing separator, derrick wagon, cook house and other wagons, together with a 20-acre field of standing grain, were also destroyed. Charles McIntire, who was standing on the machine at the time of the explosion, was badly injured. The fire was the worst of a number which have been reported lately, there having been no less than 10 in the past two weeks. The cause is attributed to smut, which is present in unusual quantities in the wheat in the valley this year. Fire insurance men say risks on wheat have been more profitable this year than ever before.

A RECORD PACK OF CHERRIES.

Eugene Register: There were 9125 cases and 14 barrels of Royal Anne cherries put up by the fruit growers under the direction of W. G. Allen this season. This beats the record quite a good deal, and the cannery was run to its capacity for three weeks, as long a time as it ever operated on cherries in any former season. The record day's pack was 625 cases, against 625 at Salem, and besides having more floor space they had 120 stemmers, while the cannery here had only 67. All the floor space except a few warehouses have been laid off now and will not go to work again until Bartlett pears are ready to can. Mr. Allen will take up the business as his own enterprise again on these, and the fruitgrowers will have nothing more to do with the business this year.

JURY HAS RETIRED

Fate of Booth Case Now in Their Keeping

ATTORNEYS ARE VINDICTIVE

Arguments Occupied Nearly Two Full Days and a Night Session as Well

Special to the Evening Review.

PORTLAND, Aug. 1.—Judge Becker made the closing arguments for the government in the Booth-Singleton conspiracy case today. Dist. Atty. McCourt was completely exhausted from his argument of yesterday and did not appear in court this forenoon. Today's proceedings developed more fire and injected more "ginger" into the case than anything before. Becker was frequently interrupted by Mr. Malarkey, attorney for the defense. Personalities were freely indulged in between the attorneys. Mr. Malarkey being referred to as a crab who endeavored to cover up all the material features of the case. Most uncomplimentary epithets were passed by both sides and Judge Wolverton had to interfere in several instances. It was the most strenuous day since the case opened.

Jury has Retired.

The instructions of the court were concluded and the jury retired for deliberation at 4:50 p. m. It seems probable that they may not report a verdict for some time.

Arguments on Friday.

Saturday's Oregonian says: For over seven hours yesterday, the jurors in the Booth-Singleton conspiracy case listened to the closing arguments of counsel. United States Attorney McCourt made the opening argument for the government, talking for about two hours. He was followed by Dan J. Malarkey, who made the only address for the defense. Mr. Malarkey occupied the entire afternoon and also the night session which Judge Wolverton decided to hold in order that the case might be expedited. Tracy C. Becker will close the argument for the prosecution today. It is expected the arguments will be concluded late this afternoon so that Judge Wolverton can give his instructions and submit the case to the jury today.

In summing up the evidence presented by the government, Mr. McCourt made an earnest and forceful address. He reviewed the testimony of I. Thomas Agee, the government's principal witness and on whose statements the prosecution relied largely for a conviction, and charged that in all important particulars his testimony had gone to show that Agee had not lived to exceed three years on his land in the forest reserve and that he had no right to contract to sell the land until after he had perfected title and secured title.

Singleton's Part in Deal.

Singleton was portrayed as the agent of the Booth-Kelly Lumber action by which Agee exchanged his
