LUMBER PRICES RISING.

Advance of Ten Per Cent to Take Effect Soon.

MEDFORD, Or., Aug. 26.—Within a very few days the price of lumber in this city will be boosted by the different dealers about 10 per cent. The advance includes all kinds of lumber from common rough to the most expensive finishing materials. The advance locally is in accordance with that put in effect over the entire coast, the reason for the advance being assigned to the better demand for Oregon fir in the eastern markets and the improved outlook for the industry.

Common, rough lumber, which has been selling for $15 a thousand feet, with now be advanced to $16.50. There will be a general advance all along the line most of the rougher grades being increased $1.50 a thousand, while on the higher grades the advance will be even larger in proportion. On the whole, the raise will average at least 10 per cent.

The lumber industry of this state, which has been in the doldrums for the past four months, shows great improvement. Four months ago there was no demand in the east for Oregon fir, but today all mills are loaded with orders, and, with the constant increase in the demand from the east, manufacturers are turning their attention from the local field to the eastern markets and are not minding the retail trade here to the extent they have been, while the eastern markets have been dormant. Lumber manufacturers of the city are jubilant over the better tone of the market and the activity of the Oregon lumber trade in the east.

TWO REMARKABLE CURES OF ECZEMA

Over Twenty-three Years Ago Baby had Severe Attack—Years Later Grandfather Suffered Torments with the Disease—Virulent Sores Developed from Knees to Toes.

BOTH OWE COMPLETE RECOVERY TO CUTICURA

"In 1884 my grandson, a babe, had an attack of eczema, and after trying the doctors to the extent of heavy bills and an increase of the disease and suffering, I recommended Cuticura and in a few weeks the child was well. He is to-day a strong man and absolutely free from the disease. A few years ago I was reminded of my having prescribed Cuticura for my grandson more than twenty years ago. I at once procured the Cuticura Remedies and found immediate improvement and final cure, all to-day, though well along in years. I am as though I had never had that disease. I am well known in the vicinity of Louisville and Cincinnati, and all this could be verified by witnesses. M. W. LaFue, 845 Seventh St., Louisville, Ky., April 23 and May 14, 1907."

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema; the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of scalp, as in dandruff; the facial disfigurement, as in acne—all demand remedies of extraordinary virtues to successfully cope with them. That Cuticura Soap, Ointment, and Pills are such stands proven by testimonials of remarkable cures when many remedies and even physicians have failed. One set is often sufficient to cure.

Cuticura Soap (25c) to Cleanse the Skin, Cuticura Ointment (50c) to Heal the Skin, and Cuticura Pills (50c) for the Form of Chronic Cases of Eczema, Psoriasis, Dandruff, and Itching of the Scalp. Posters, Brochures, and Samples Free. Cuticura Book on Skin Diseases.

Wanted a Rebate. In a rural community in one of the middle states dwelt a man who made a vow in 1850 that he would wear his hair and beard untrimmed until John C. Fremont should be elected president of the United States. He kept that vow for forty years, at the end of which time he had nearly a half bushel of hair on his head and face. Then, coming to the conclusion, toward which his mind had been gradually working for a long time, that General Fremont's death in the interval had practically absolved him from his vow, he decided to have his hair cut and his beard shaved off clean. On his next visit to the county seat he went to a barber shop and was soon relieved of the burdensome burden he had carried for four decades. "How much?" he asked. "Have to charge you half a dollar for that job," said the barber, looking at the mass that lay on the floor. "Half a dollar?" he gasped. "Don't I get anything for the hair?"

NEW SHORT STORIES

The Old Time Storekeeper.

J. B. McNeil, a wholesale grocer of Chicago, calculates that through living in the suburbs he has traveled 750,000 miles on the trains in the past thirty-five years.

"While I have been traveling," said Mr. McNeil the other day, "the grocery business has changed for the better, and I hope I have helped a little in the change."

"Grocers and general storekeepers are more liberal than they used to be—kinder, more polished, more gentlemanly. Let me give you an idea of the typical storekeeper of the past, the storekeeper of the early fifties."

"The general storekeeper of Croydon was also the village postmaster. He dispensed letters and packages, postal cards and underwears, with an equal hand."

"But one autumn a rival establishment opened across the way a general store that was a little brighter, a little handsomer, a little larger than the old one. And the postmaster observed with disgust that the fickle villagers were flocking in great numbers to the new shop."

"As the postmaster stood glowering at his rival from his doorway one afternoon a fellow townsman entered and asked if there were any letters for him."

"No, there ain't none. I told ye that yesterday," said the storekeeper without moving from the doorway.

"But one might 'w' come today," said the villager.

"Oh, there might, might there?" the storekeeper sneered. "Well, there ain't."

"But ye hain't looked."

"Hain't I? Well, I ain't a-goin' to."

"But—"

"There's no letter for ye, I tell ye," shouted the postmaster.

"But—"

"'Blast ye,' shouted the furious postmaster, rushing up to the villager and shaking his fist in his face, 'won't ye take 'no' for an answer? I tell ye ag'in—no, no, no! And now if ye ain't satisfied go and git yer letters where ye git yer goods.'"

The Smart Boss.

Rudyard Kipling concluded his recent address to the students of McGill university with an attack on "smartness." He said:

"Whenever and wherever you find one of your dear little phytanates showing signs of smartness in his work, his talk or his play take him tenderly by the hand, by both hands, by the back of the neck if necessary, and lovingly, playfully, but firmly, lead him to a knowledge of higher and more interesting things."

Afterward Mr. Kipling told a story about a smart man.

"This man," he said, "owned a dry goods store, and one day, to his great disgust, he heard a new clerk say to a lady:

"No, madam, we have not had any for a long time."

"With a fierce glance at the clerk, the smart employer rushed up to the lady and said:

"We have plenty in reserve, ma'am; plenty upstairs."

"Lady and clerk looked dazed, and afterward the smart proprietor learned that the clerk's remark had been made in answer to the lady's, 'We haven't had any rain lately.'"
