FOUR KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

PORTLAND COTTAGE GROVE LOCAL IN DITCH

Engineer Nichols and Fireman
Bolter Killed

MANY PASSENGERS INJURED

Two Tramps are Dead and Another
Fatally Hurt—Locomotive
Struck a Bull

EUGENE, Or., Aug. 24.—Jack Nichols, one of the oldest and most trustworthy engineers of the Southern Pacific, his fireman, Frank Bolter, and three unknown tramps, who were heading their way, are dead as the result of the wreck about 9:25 o'clock last night of the southbound Cottage Grove-Portland local passenger train, No. 17, three miles north of this city. Several passengers were injured, but none fatally. The wreck was caused by a large bull laying directly in the track. Charles L. Minkler was the conductor in charge of the train.

While the train was travelling toward Eugene at its usual speed, the locomotive was suddenly derailed, turning a complete somersault. The mail car lurched forward and rested on top of the tender, while the remaining coaches were derailed and jolted over the ties for a number of yards, to the accompaniment of crashing glass, rending wood and steel. Lying beside the track, on the side opposite the train, was the mute evidence of the cause of the wreck—a large, red bull, his head and neck severed.

Finding of the Victims.
Underneath the huge boiler of the locomotive was found the lifeless body of Fireman Bolter. One tramp was taken piecemeal from the wreckage, while two others were found lying on their backs, where they had been thrown by the impact of the locomotive striking the bull. One of these was killed outright, while the other was so badly injured that he expired a few hours later.

Engineer Nichols was found pinned down near his throttle, a cab seat on his back. He was horribly scalded by escaping steam, but still alive. In an effort to free him rescuers seized Nichols by the arm and cooked flesh came away in their hands. Nichols was finally liberated, however, and hurried in an automobile, together with seven of the injured, to Eugene. Nichols was placed in the Eugene hospital, where after five hours of intense suffering, he died at 2:30 o'clock this morning.

Nichols Acted Promptly.
Before his death, Nichols stated land and Corvallis. Ten years ago he was assigned to a run between Portland and this city and held it steadily until two years ago, when he was transferred to the Cottage Grove local. Mr. Nichols leaves a widow in Portland.

Fireman Bolter is best remembered here through his marriage to a former Roseburg girl, Miss Dora Wilkins, who survives him. He had been working for the Southern Pacific as fireman for the past eight years, during most of which time he ran out of this city. Besides his wife, there survives him his parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Bolter, of Brooks, Marion county; a sister, Mrs. Chas. Decker, of San Francisco; and four brothers, all of whom are engaged in railroad work. One of the brothers is Engineer George Bolter, of this city; the others are Ralph and Alfred Bolter, of Portland, and Ernest Bolter, of San Francisco.

George Bolter has been camping at Rock Creek, 35 miles east of this city. Word of his brother's tragic death was sent to him last night and it was expected that he would return to Roseburg this afternoon in time to catch the northbound flyer to Eugene.

Other Wrecks Recalled.
Last night is not the first time a large bull has wrecked a Southern Pacific train, although this is the worst accident on that account yet recorded. George Bolter, while a fireman under Engineer Emmett Butler, was on a locomotive that was derailed by striking a bull near Woodville, Jackson county, a few years ago. The locomotive jolted along on the ties for a distance of 1100 feet, but fortunately did not fall over. In 1890 a bull derailed and wrecked a locomotive near Halsey, Lin county, killing Fireman Ransom and badly injuring Engineer McPadden. After a lay-off of several months, McPadden recovered and resumed work just in time to get killed in the Lake Labish wreck.

FOUR BUILDINGS BURNED.
Albany Suffers a Fire Loss of $16,000 on Sunday Morning.

ALBANY, Or., Aug. 22.—Fire early this morning destroyed four frame buildings in the center of Albany's business district, causing a loss of $16,150, with $850 insurance. Brick walls on each side of the burned area prevented a spread of the flames. The following are the principal losses:

Branch store of Eilers' Piano House of Portland, loss placed at $8,000, insurance $5,000.

Arcade barber shop, Bruce & Huston, proprietors; loss $1200; insurance $600. The buildings containing the piano store and barber shop were both owned by Mrs. S. Brenner, whose loss is $1200; insurance $900.

Office of Linn & Benton Real Estate Company; portion of office furniture burned; loss $200, no insurance. Building owned by Dr. A. Stark; loss $500, fully covered by insurance. Stetter's Cash store used as a warehouse and lost $200 with no insurance.

Gun and bicycle store of A. Schmidt; loss on stock and tools in shop $3500; insurance $500. Building owned by Frank G. Will; loss $400, fully insured.

In addition to the buildings burned, losses were suffered as follows: Oddfellows' Temple, loss $200, fully covered; drugstore Burkhardt & Lee in Oddfellows' building, damage by water $250, fully insured. Brick building on east of fire owned by W. C. Tweedale, damaged $100, covered by insurance; plate glass windows broken in postoffice and two stores across First street from fire, loss $400 fully insured.

The fire was discovered about 2:30 o'clock in the rear portion of Eilers' piano house, having started from some cause yet unknown.

"Blind Pig" Raided.
Six Men Caught With the Goods—Liquor Seized.

ALBANY, Or., Aug. 22.—Raiding the commission house of Kennedy & Co., at Second and Montgomery streets, at 4 o'clock this afternoon, Sheriff Smith, Chief of Police Riles and Officer Catlin caught six men in the act of drinking liquor and found two barrels of whiskey, 12 cases of beer, one case of port wine, scores of empty bottles and a supply of saloon glasses. They arrested J. D. Kennedy and Frank Albrecht and took them before City Recorder Redfield, where they were charged with maintaining a nuisance under the terms of a city ordinance embodying the provisions of the state local option law, and also permitting the consumption of seized liquor. They gave bonds of $200 each to appear next Monday morning.

The six men found in the place were also ordered to appear at that time as witnesses.

Kennedy and Albrecht have been conducting a produce house, buying chickens and eggs, and officers assert that they have had liquor shipped to Albany in butter boxes. Officers have suspected them of conducting a blind-pig, and carefully planned a raid today. Selecting a time when a number of men were in the place, each officer stationed himself at a separate door and at a signal all swooped in on the surprised drinkers.

WELL KNOWN IN ROSEBURG.
Both Nichols and Bolter Formerly Ran Out of Roseburg.

Engineer Nichols and Fireman Bolter formerly ran out of Roseburg and were well known here. Had Nichols lived until next Wednesday he would have completed exactly 22 years of service as an engineer in the employ of the Southern Pacific. He first entered the service of the company in 1882, however, working as a fireman for four years before being promoted to handle a throttle. He was an Englishman by birth and served in the British navy before coming to the United States. Nichols first ran on the West Side division of the Southern Pacific between Port-

International Peace the Highest Aim a Ruler Can Have.

By EDWARD VII. King of England.

There is nothing from which I derive a more sincere gratification than from the knowledge that MY EFFORTS IN THE CAUSE OF INTERNATIONAL PEACE AND GOOD WILL HAVE NOT BEEN WITHOUT FRUIT AND A CONSCIOUSNESS OF THE GENEROUS APPRECIATION WITH WHICH THEY HAVE BEEN RECEIVED BOTH FROM MY OWN PEOPLE AND FROM THOSE OF OTHER COUNTRIES.

RULERS OF STATES CAN SET BEFORE THEMSELVES NO HIGHER AIMS THAN THE PROMOTION OF INTERNATIONAL GOOD UNDERSTANDING AND CORDIAL FRIENDSHIP AMONG THE NATIONS OF THE WORLD.

It is the surest and most direct means by which humanity may be enabled to realize its noblest ideal, and its attainment will ever be the object of my own constant endeavors.

I REJOICE TO THINK THAT THE INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATION, IN WHICH ARE REPRESENTED ALL THE PRINCIPAL CIVILIZED COUNTRIES OF THE WORLD, IS LABORING IN THE SAME FIELD, AND I PRAY THAT THE BLESSING OF GOD MAY ATTEND ITS LABORS.

ETHICS FOR LAWYERS.
National Bar Association to Improve Standard of Profession.

SEATTLE, Wash., Aug. 24.—Legal lights of the land are today congregating in Seattle for the annual convention of the National Bar Association, which begins tomorrow. Some of the most distinguished lawyers of the country are already here and every train brings additional delegates, who are given a cordial reception by the attorneys of Seattle and Washington. Despite the distance of Seattle from the center of population, it is likely that the attendance will be quite up to the usual standard.

One of the most important features of the convention will be the presentation of the final report of the committee on rules of conduct for lawyers, which will include a complete code of ethics to govern the legal profession in its dealings with clients and its duties to the public.

The proposed canon of professional ethics maintains that a lawyer may be guilty of a crime if he knows or believes that the defendant is innocent and that he is guilty of a crime, and that he is guilty of a crime if he is guilty of a crime.

The report is signed by Alton B. Parker, former chief judge of the New York state court of appeals; Justice Brewer, of the supreme court of the United States; Judge Thomas G. Jones, of the United States court in Alabama; J. M. Dickinson, president of the American Bar Association; George R. Peck and William Wirt Howe, former presidents of the association; and Francis Lynde Stetson, president of the New York Bar Association.

The report is a result of a three days' session of the committee held in Washington.

In twenty-seven states of the union there are codes of ethics more or less complete, which exist as a result either of codification by statutory enactments or of the action of bar associations therein in adopting canons of professional ethics.

For some years past members of the bar associations have advocated a movement which would culminate in an authoritatively declared standard of professional conduct, which will not only serve as a guide to the youthful practitioner, but will place the profession before the public in its true light and thereby free it from public criticism and censure, which have at times been bestowed upon it as a result of the misconduct of unworthy men who have found their way into its ranks.

S.S.S. CURES SKIN DISEASES
When the blood is pure and healthy, the skin will be soft, smooth, and free from all blemishes and eruptions; but when some acid humor takes root in the circulation, its presence is quickly manifested by some form of skin disease. The skin receives its necessary nourishment and strength from the blood. When, however, this vital fluid becomes a humor-laden stream, it can no longer preserve the healthy, natural appearance of the skin, but by its acid, impure nature continually irritates and inflames the delicate tissues and fibres and keeps the cuticle in a diseased and disfigured condition. External applications cannot reach the blood, and therefore are beneficial only for their ability to reduce inflammation, and assist in keeping the parts clean. To cure any skin trouble the blood must be purified of the humors that are causing the trouble. S. S. S. drives out the humors from the blood so that the skin, instead of being irritated and diseased, is nourished by a healthy, cooling stream. S. S. S. goes down into the circulation and removes every particle of impure matter, all acids and humors, and restores the blood to its normal, pure condition, thereby curing every form of skin disease or affection. COLLIERS' EXPOSES ANKENY.

Washington Senator Accused of Bribery and Padding Payroll.

Now it is United States Senator Levi Ankeny who is listed by Collier's Weekly as a "Senate Undesirable." That periodical is attacking the senator from Washington even more bitterly than it did United States Senator Charles W. Fulton, of Oregon. Collier's sums up Ankeny of Washington as "a senate undesirable who is unfit, personally and politically, to represent his state, and whose main strength is his bank account." The political career of Ankeny is gone over by G. P. Connolly, the muck-raker, and repeated charges are made of Ankeny's use of money for vote-getting and corruption of legislatures and county conventions. His personal eccentricities are pointed out and the only good word said in his favor is that he had many of the good qualities of the early pioneers, was a good neighbor and if anyone in the vicinity was ill, the Ankenys would call daily or sit up all night.

On Vote Prices.
B. C. Van Houten, of Spokane, was Ankeny's second manager, and, says the article, Van Houten went about organizing the state on a cash basis, final payment contingent on the delivery of the votes in the legislature of 1895. The Ankeny price for votes was $1000 in the lower house and $1500 in the upper house. Ankeny was beaten by the trickery of Van Houten. The article next relates a deal which was framed up in Portland and which was attended by railroad representatives, lobbyists and state senators, the purpose of which was to kill any dangerous railroad legislation in return for support of Ankeny.

"Ankeny spent money recklessly," says the article. "The railroads contributed $114,000 for the joint purpose of electing Ankeny and preventing railroad legislation."

Arthur F. Statter, who subsequently was appointed private secretary to the secretary of the treasury, and later became assistant secretary of the treasury, was Ankeny's private secretary, and is now his constant attendant. Connolly charges that Ankeny made a deal with his fellow Washington senator, Foster, by which Mrs. Statter was appointed messenger for the committee on geological survey, while Ankeny appointed Foster's brother as messenger on his own committee. Mrs. Statter never performed any services, although one report to the secretary in the senate shows she received $1,560 and the same report discloses that Nesmith Ankeny, son of the senator, who was never nearer the national capital than his Cow Creek ranch, in the state of Washington, was paid $910 on a senate "folder."

Charles W. Sweeney's leap into politics and his ambition to be a senator are also touched on in the article in so far as they are connected with Ankeny's political career. Sweeney is referred to as "a Spokane millionaire of unenviable reputation." It also states that the federal court of appeals at San Francisco not long ago wrote an opinion in which Sweeney was characterized as a "swindling partner, guilty of fraud, grosser than which it is difficult to conceive."

Adding money charged him with using money lavishly to buy votes, that he corrupted the politics of the state of Washington, that he is personally unfit to serve as a senator and that he made his money by foreclosing mortgages. C. P. Connolly, in Collier's, evidently thinks United States Senator Levi Ankeny is all right.

"Ankeny should be beaten," declares the paper. "He acts on the theory that every man has his price."

Detailed plans for the interior finish of the new Commercial Club headquarters have been adopted and the work will be rushed to completion. Several rooms will be included and the finishing will be elegant and fancy. The new exhibit building at the depot is now ready for the roofing. It promises to be an attractive structure.

Mad or Shunning?

NEW YORK, Aug. 24.—Capt. Haines is either stark mad or shunning in a very clever manner. He seems to have forgotten that he killed William Annis and he imagines he has to report at Fort Hamilton for duty. A double watch has been placed in his cell for fear he will commit suicide.

Fitzgerald Gives Bonds.

CHICAGO, Aug. 24.—George W. Fitzgerald, former assistant teller of the state sub-treasury, was arraigned in court today on the charge of stealing $175,000 in government currency. The case postponed until next Monday. Meanwhile Fitzgerald is at liberty on $10,000 bonds. Fitzgerald's arrest is based on the fact that Fitzgerald tried to make arrangements with certain business men to cash a $1000 bill, and several bills of that denomination are included in the funds stolen from the sub-treasury.
