J. B. Harris was down from Myrtle Creek this afternoon, preparing for the opening of prune harvesting. He is increasing the capacity of one of his big driers in order to handle the crop. From his orchard of 35 acres he expects a yield of 100,000 pounds of evaporated prunes. His crop is already sold on a basis of 5 1/2 cents per pound for 30%. For a tract of 5 1/2 acres adjoining the town of Myrtle Creek, four acres of which is in bearing prune orchard, he recently refused an offer of $2,000. Investors are beginning to appreciate the value of Douglas county soil.

SERVANTS' SIGN LANGUAGE.

Peculiarities of Employers and Tourists Noted by Marks.

Servants and hotel porters in many cities of Europe have a sign language as complete as that of the American tramp.

"It is not generally known," said a courier, "that servants are in the habit of giving useful tips to their successors and to the man who delivers the groceries and meat by marks on the back entrance. In most of the big Paris flats and apartments, such as Americans like to take for the season, the back door is liberally covered with barely perceptible signs which nobody but the initiated can understand."

"A freshly engaged domestic knows exactly what to expect, whether his masters are easy or hard to please, whether it is 'monsieur' or 'madame' who is hard to get along with. Other signs tell whether the food is good or bad, whether the work is difficult or not, etc."

"The boy from the grocer's or the baker's or the butcher's will also be informed whether he can expect a big tip or not."

"The system is even more developed among hotel servants. A family arriving from Italy, after having refused to give what some Italian porter considered a sufficient tip, will have the fact advertised in every hotel he visits in Switzerland or France. A little mark on the trunk is all that is needed."

"Philadelphia Ledger."

AMERICAN FRENCH.

The Struggles of a New Yorker in a Paris Restaurant.

He gazed complacently at the gay labels on his trunk. "Punny how you hear in Paris"—he continued his reminiscences of travel—"our this American accent struggling with the sonorous French tongue. You hear queer mistakes, too—no end of 'em. The queerest I came across was made by a New York man."

"This tourist at the Chatham wanted to say, 'I am hungry.' He should have said, 'J'ai faim.' Then the waiter would have brought him a meal at once. What he did say was: 'Je suis famoux, garcon.' He said there, 'I'm famous, waiter.' And the waiter, impressed, bowed and smiled: 'Congratulations, sir.'

"No food came. He must have made an error, so he tried again: 'Garcon, j'ai une femme.' That meant he had a wife. The waiter said he was sure she was a winner.

"Rather red now, he took a third dive: 'Je suis femme.' This time the New Yorker said he was a woman.

"And madam dresses in this way for comfort's sake?" the waiter inquired, with a gallant smile.—New York Press.

"Chuck it, Duke!"

While the Duke of Connaught was in Cairo he went for a stroll one morning, and on his way back to his quarters he came face to face with an old Englishman wearing the ribbon of the Indian muntly on his breast. The duke stopped and spoke to the man about his military service for some little time. Presently the man said not knowing, of course, to whom he was speaking, "Are you in the army yourself, then, sir?" The duke smiled and admitted that he was. "Getting on all right?" was the next question. The duke smiled again and said that he had not very much to grumble at on the whole, though perhaps he was not doing quite so well as he could wish. "No, and you never will, my boy," was the surprising retort of the veteran. "What you want in the army today is either brains or a tremendous amount of influence behind you. You may take my tip, old chap, and chuck it!"—London T. P. O.

Fencing With Umbrellas.
Recently a French publication printed a picture of some American girls fencing with umbrellas and stated that they were trying to acquire thus the necessary skill and assurance to parry, with a simple gesture, an attack of Apaches.

It also stated that this sport was not born in America, that for several years in France a noted fencing mistress, Mme. Guillemot, at the same time that she taught fencing with the sword for hygienic reasons and for personal defense, also taught her pupils to "play" with the umbrella.

The article finishes by saying that it is certainly "pliquant" that this modern application of an ancient sport was taught by a Parisienne long before America claimed the original idea.

Spirit of the Open Life.
The great charm of scenery and the country life is the moral feeling that seems to pervade it. This has prevailed through all English literature from Chaucer to Wordsworth and down to our own times. It has cast its spell over almost all of our Canadian poets, who have wooed nature in her most secret haunts and studied her unadorned caprices.—Montreal Witness.

Son (in chry of the old stock)—Then would be the time to buy, wouldn't it, daddy?
