G. V. Wimberly is spending a week's vacation at Newport and at Portland.

E. A. Rhoten, formerly of this county, was here from Salem Saturday. He is now special field manager for the Pacific Homestead.

Three square meals a day at E. Hennings' restaurant, which will be re-opened in connection with the Umpqua Bakery on Sept. 1.

An immense line of Cook's Linoleum just received; in the latest designs. No make of linoleum better and but few as good. B. W. Strong, The Furniture Man.

Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Carpenter arrived here Saturday from Glenwood Springs, Colo., with the intention of making Roseburg their home. They are old friends of A. Noble, who arrived here last fall.

Oyster season is opened. Olympia or Eastern in any style and the right kind of style at J. Falbe's restaurant near the S. P. depot. Open day and night. Clean, private boxes. Short orders a specialty. Regular dinners. dtf

Marshfield Times: It is announced that John Herron has bought Teddy, the galloper, from O. J. Seely, of Coquille. Teddy together with Mr. Herron's other two horses, Dr. Rowell and Croston, will run in the state fair races at Salem. Perry Manzey and Bobbie Wilson will ride them.

Portland Telegram: Mrs. Nathaniel Webb, of Walla Walla, Wash., a Polk county pioneer from 1853 to 1860, then a resident of Douglas county, near Roseburg, for 16 years, and now a resident of Walla Walla for more than 30 years, has been visiting her children in Portland for several days. Her maiden name was Ellen J. Boggs.

Labour Day was recently observed in Roseburg today. The U. S. land office and all three banks remained closed and the postoffice observed holiday hours. Otherwise business went on as usual. The county offices were opened, but no legal business could be transacted. The regular city council meeting, scheduled for tonight, will, of course, have to be postponed.

A burglar of the porch climbing variety visited the home of Sheriff R. Fenton, near the corner of Oak and Parrot streets, shortly after 9 o'clock last night. He was seen climbing a porch post, but a scream from a woman scared him away. Sheriff Fenton was not at home at the time, but he has a good description of the man, whose features and dress were plainly visible in the light shining through the window of an adjoining house.

TO THE PUBLIC—I will re-open my restaurant in connection with the Umpqua Bakery on Sept. 1. Service will be strictly first class. E. Jennings.

NOTICE—All persons who have been dumping rubbish along the county road in the Deer Creek district, No. 32, are hereby warned to desist as such practice is unlawful. W. H. BROWN.

TO WIRE FENCE BUYERS. I have just received a carload of Page Woven Wire Fence at Roseburg and stored it in the Sheridan warehouse, near the S. P. depot, where it may be obtained by parties having placed orders with me. I will also fill new orders until the supply is gone. S. B. CROUCH.

TELEPHONE GIRL WEDS.

Miss Ruby Thomas Becomes Bride of Portland Man.

Miss Ruby Thomas, for some time past an operator in the telephone office in Roseburg, was wedded last Saturday evening, Sept. 5, 1908, to Mr. James H. Crittiser, a grocery salesman of Portland, Rev. J. K. Hawkins, of the M. E. church, officiated, the ceremony taking place at the parsonage. The young couple will reside in Portland, for which city they left Saturday night.

Miss Thomas is a niece of Mrs. E. Zimmerman, wife of an S. P. engineer, who formerly resided in this city.

HAMILTON-JONES WEDDING.

Portland Telegram: Dr. Luther H. Hamilton and Miss Annylyd Jones were married Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock at the home of Rev. and Mrs. R. M. Jones, the bride's parents.

The officiating clergyman was the bride's father, assisted by Rev. Luther H. Dyott, D. D., of the First Congregational church. The bride was lovely in a shimmering pearl white satin gown trimmed with duchess lace. She wore a full-length veil, gracefully draped. Only the immediate family were present. Amid a shower of rose petals the couple took that evening's train for San Francisco, enroute to New York and Europe, after making a visit to Mrs. John Morgan Thomas, formerly Miss Gladys Jones, of Milwaukee, Wis.

Mrs. Thomas has planned several pretty affairs for them. They will sail on the Lusitania for Europe September 16, and pass the winter abroad. Later they will live in this city.

It is estimated that the American people spend $17,000,000 a year for baseball.

Last week's fire at Rawhide, Nev., destroyed property to the extent of $750,000. The total insurance was only $2,000.

As the result of a head-on collision on the Northern Pacific railroad near Paradise, Mont., Saturday, both engineers, both firemen and five unidentified tramps are dead.

President Roosevelt, in his final annual message to congress, probably will recommend an increase in the numerical strength of the army to at least 100,000 men.

How to Get Strong.

P. J. Daly, of 1247 West Congress St., Chicago, tells of a way to become strong. He says: "My mother, who is old and was very feeble, is deriving so much benefit from Electric Bitters that I feel it my duty to tell those who need a tonic and strengthening medicine about it. In my mother's case a marked gain in flesh has resulted, insomnia has been overcome, and she is steadily growing stronger." Electric Bitters quickly remedy stomach, liver and kidney complaints. Miss Tillie Brown, who died at Camas Valley last Friday, was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. L. Brown, of that place. She was a school teacher and 27 years of age. Death was due to an abscess. The funeral was held at Camas Valley Saturday morning.

MISS PECK GUIDES

Famous Woman Mountain Climber's Experiences With Them.

HER TRIP UP MOUNT SORATA.

Story of How Her Faint Hearted Aids Tried to Frighten Her by Striking For More Pay—Prime Requirement For a Mountain Climber—Lack of Confidence Cause of Most Accidents.

Miss Annie S. Peck, who astonished mountain climbers the world over by announcing recently that she had climbed 25,000 feet toward the top of Mount Huascarán, in the Andes, is a native of Providence, R. I. She began her career as a mountain climber 1,885 while studying in Athens. That year, with a number of her friends, she ascended Hymettus and Pentellus, and the experience so thrilled her that she became a life convert to this form of sport. Miss Peck has been professor of Latin in Smith college and has spoken on art and archeology before the American Geographical society, the National Geographical society and many colleges and institutions all over the country.

Miss Peck's mountain climbing costume comprises a heavy pair of leather shoes, with iron nails in the soles and heels; a heavy knit sweater and a pair of man's knickerbockers. Her hat is always tied down by a veil. She carries a heavy iron pointed stick.

One of Miss Peck's favorite stories is of the time when her guides, becoming faint hearted, but not wishing to show it to a woman, fixed up a deal to ask for increases of wages so great that she could not pay them. Then they struck and refused to climb farther.

"It was on my trip up Mount Sorata, in Bolivia," she said, "that my guides struck. With me were two Spaniards and five half bred Indians. We pushed up until the 5,000 foot limit was reached, and then one of the Spaniards-Americans turned toward and left us. I then found that the other one was half witted. The Indians were growing discontented as we continued.

"They delighted in telling the story that those who looked from the summit turned to stone. They wanted to frighten me so I would not go up any farther. Nevertheless we went on. Then at the 17,500 foot point the guides struck for more pay. I offered them double, and even then they were not satisfied. Then I made it treble, but that did not satisfy them. At last they refused absolutely to go farther, and we had to return, although within a few hundred feet of the top. The top of Sorata reached 20,500 feet into the clouds.

"A second attempt, made within three months, on this same mountain got me no farther toward the summit for the same reasons. The guides quit. They were afraid of something, just what I could never determine. I did want a couple of good old Swiss guides. You can rely upon them."

Miss Peck in 1890 delivered an address in Infantry hall, Providence, in which she told of the desire born in her to climb mountains, which, she said came to her in the early eighties when she was within sight of the Matterhorn. She told her story as follows:

"When I first came in sight of the summit of the great Matterhorn I was seized with a desire to climb to the top and look out over the great expanse of earth that I knew must be visible from such a height. Ever since the day I first looked up at its peaked top I intended to climb up there despite the fact that people laughed at me when I told them about my desire.

"So it was, notwithstanding letters advising me not to try from many other mountain climbers of reputation, I went there one day determined to get to the top, or, rather, to get as near the very top as it was possible.

"I went to Switzerland just for the purpose of climbing the Matterhorn, and, as you see, I have climbed it and am back here to tell you about it. But now maybe you think I wasn't afraid to start. Well, I wasn't exactly afraid but I tell you I was skeptical.

"Before I started up the mountain I picked out the spot where I wanted to be buried provided I was to die on the trip and my body found. There is a little English cemetery in Zermatt, and I told those about me that I wanted to rest there if I was never to return to my home. Many predecessors were buried there, mountain climbers who had been overwhelmed upon the sides of the great Matterhorn.

"The prime requirement for a successful mountain climber must be determination, accompanied with a strong heart and physical strength. One must have good lungs and a steady head, and a person who will become dizzy under any circumstances should never try to climb a mountain.

"It is also necessary for a person to be able to climb for fifteen or eighteen hours a day steadily over the hardest kind of climbing one can imagine.

"Most of the accidents are due to lack of confidence or too much confidence and seldom from anything else. Polly, of course, and bravado lose many lives a year, but among the experienced climbers the accidents are comparatively few."

The ROSE

THIS TRIBE ISN'T BROKE.

PAWHUSKA, Okla., Sept. 8.—Indians of the Osage tribe, the "richest people in the world," are today going about wearing broad smiles and with pockets full of bills, as a result of the payment of the fall installment of oil and gas royalties. Each of the 2,250 Osages, from aged chief to the newest papoose, share in this distribution.

Scarcely a month passes but that the Osage Indians are called upon to come and get a designated sum of money, the payment of an annuity of one of the many funds in which the tribe shares. Besides their royalties from oil and gas the Osages share in an immense fund vested with the national government and various tribal funds, such as the revenue from grazing and agricultural leases and various other sources.

These Indians accept the money as a matter of course, never having known what it means to be "broke" in the accepted meaning of the term.

Archie Jackson sends us a postal from Ozark, Mo., saying: "Have been seeing a pretty fine country, but nothing like Oregon. Some of the country we passed through on the mountains wouldn't raise tickle grass. Expect to soon get settled at Morrisville, Mo."

JULY 4TH DEATH RECORD.

One Less in 1908 Than in 1907, But 1210 More Casualties.

DETROIT, Sept. 5.—Only the gladiatorial feats on festival days in pagan Rome rival the carnage of the American Fourth of July, according to the Journal of the American Medical Association. The victims of this year's celebration of the Fourth of July throughout the United States number 5632 in killed and injured, according to statistics published in the Journal today.

The number of casualties is 1210 more than last year, though the number of deaths, 163, is one less. The list contains 157 more names than that of 1906, the second largest of the six years during which statistics have been kept by the Journal.
