One of the Essentials of the happy homes of to-day is a vast fund of information as to the best methods of promoting health and happiness and right living and knowledge of the world's best products.

Products of actual excellence and reasonable claims truthfully presented and which have attained to world-wide acceptance through the approval of the Well-Informed of the World; not of individuals only, but of the many who have the happy faculty of selecting and obtaining the best the world affords.

One of the products of that class, of known component parts, an Ethical remedy, approved by physicians and commended by the Well-Informed of the World as a valuable and wholesome family laxative is the well-known Syrup of Figs and Elixir of Senna. To get its beneficial effects always buy the genuine, manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co., only, and for sale by all leading druggists.

A FEW SMILES.

Everybody's Magazine.
The stranger advanced toward the door. Mrs. O'Toole stood in her doorway with a rough stick in her left hand and a frown on her brow.
"Good morning," said the stranger politely. "I'm looking for Mr. O'Toole."

"So'm I," said Mrs. O'Toole, shifting the club over to her other hand.

"Can you tell me what steam is?" asked the examiner.
"Why, sure, sir," replied Patrick confidently. "Steam is—why—er—It's wather that's gone crazy wid the heat."

A German peddler rapped timidly at the kitchen entrance. Mrs. Kelly, angry at being interrupted in her washing, flung open the door and glowered at him.
"Did yez wish to see me?" she demanded in threatening tones.

The peddler backed off a few steps. "Well, if I did," he assured her with an apologetic grin, "I got my wish; thank you."

A woman entered police station in Holland and asked the officer in charge to have the canals dragged.

"My husband has been threatening, for some time, to drown himself," she explained, "and he's been missing now for two days."
"Anything peculiar about him by which he can be recognized?" asked the officer, preparing to fill out a description blank.

For several moments the woman seemed to be searching her memory. Suddenly her face brightened.
"Why, yes, sir. He's deaf."

A WOMAN'S APPEARANCE.

Her Most Valuable Asset, Yet She Often Neglects It.
Of all the arts known to women keeping up appearances is the most useful.

A woman's most valuable asset is, first of all, her appearance.

As I have said over and over again, we can't all be beautiful, but here are a few of the things we can possess:

Neatly brushed hair dressed up to date.

Hands beautifully clean and nicely manicured.

A complexion clear from the combined uses of castile soap and warm water, good cold cream and face powder.

Feet daintily and immaculately shod.

A simple but becoming and up to date hat.

A plain gown to match made in the prevailing style and with the skirt clearing the ground evenly.

Gloves properly mended and with all the buttons on.

It is wonderful how nice one looks if one pays attention to all these things. I have very little patience with the

WILL YOU BE A WOMAN?

TOO MUCH "BRAINS" TO DRESS WELL.
stenographer who goes to work dressed as if for a party. Her shabby finery is not only pathetic, but—if you will excuse a strong word—disgusting to me.

It shows that we women cannot seem to grasp the right idea of work or of the fitness of things; that we cannot progress beyond chiffon frills and cheap but gaudy flowers in our hats, but must have them even when they are of poor quality.

But I have even less patience with the clever emancipated specimen of my sex who has too much brains to dress well.

"I can't be bothered," she assures you, and that's where she makes the mistake of her life.

Brains and plain, tasteful dressing are not incompatible. Far from it. A woman is a woman first and then anything she wants afterward. No matter how much gray matter she has, her exterior should be sweet and attractive and charming. By neglecting this part of her personality she proves that she is not so clever as she thinks she is.

When a woman does anything she is apt to run to extremes. Let us be well balanced and remember that we owe it to the world as women always to look our best. MARGARET ORDWAY.

BROWN AND YELLOW ROOMS.

They Are Becoming the Fad of the Moment.

No longer are glaring tones the fashion. Soft wood browns and subdued yellows are in demand for interior decoration.

The illustration shows a room simply but effectively planned. It has golden brown walls inset with panels of dark brown wood. The por-ties are of chocolate brown velvet. The coverings of the furniture are yellow. The furniture is of Santo Domingo mahogany. A rare combination of colors and has added to the beauty of the room, as it also leaves plenty of white surfaces with the walls.

Don't Give Up!

When you have had trouble to overcome with the car, get it down and empty the tank and remember that the car is not the person inside it. The right car is the one that is right for you and the right person is the one that is right for the car.

Remember should be accounted a good sign if it can be driven out.
