INTO HILL'S HANDS

Libby Coal Mines, Waterfront, Steamer and 5,000 Acres

MEANS RAILROAD TO COOS

Will Probably Hurry Harriman, Also—Other Purchases Evidence Hill's Intention

MARSHFIELD, Or., Sept. 28.—Western brokers have bought the Oregon Coal & Navigation company's holdings for Jas. J. Hill. The deal includes the Libby coal mines, the waterfront and wharf of the steamship M. F. Plant, which runs between Coos Bay and San Francisco and 5,000 acres of land. It is the biggest transaction of the year and has created a stir in local railroad circles.

It is known that the Oregon Coal & Navigation company's property was offered directly to Louis Hill, the son of J. J. Hill and who recently succeeded his father as active head of many departments of the Hill properties, last spring when his father was in Europe. Soon after this offer was made, an option was taken on the property by eastern parties but this expired a short time ago, the eastern syndicate apparently being unable to finance the deal.

tion and development—competition, because of Harriman's projected line from Drain to Coos Bay and on down the coast; development, because it is believed that the obvious route of the new railroad will be parallel to the coast from Astoria to Oakland—a continuation of the North Bank road.

For years it has been held that Coos Bay, situated as it is midway between Portland and San Francisco, is the natural objective point for a coast road. It has unlimited coal resources and an excellent harbor. Its timber supply is practically unlimited and its agricultural and dairy products assure liberal freight-traffic revenue.

What is believed to be further confirmation of the Northern Pacific railroad company's intention to prosecute work on a coast line was the purchase some days ago of several thousand acres of land adjacent to Oakland, Cal. The transaction involved over $700,000. Strict secrecy—the Hill characteristic—was observed regarding the identity of the purchasers. Other mysterious purchases of right-of-way along the Pacific coast assume added significance since the announcement of Hill's Coos Bay acquisition.

Dr. Finn's Testimony Interesting. Dr. Thomas Finn, of Boonsboro, Mo., who has practiced medicine for 32 years, says he has used every prescription known to the profession for treatment of kidney and bladder diseases, and says he has never found anything so effective in both chronic and acute kidney and bladder trouble as Foley's Kidney Cure. It stops irregularities and builds up the whole system. Red Cross Pharmacy.

KILLED BY A DEER

Fatal Hunt of Geo. Buxton in Olalla Country

OCCURRED LAST FRIDAY

Starts to Bleed Supposedly Dead Buck and Receives Thrust That Severs Artery

While hunting last Friday morning in the head of Blue Canyon, in the Olalla country, 25 miles southwest of this city, George Buxton, aged 24 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Buxton, of Brockway, was gored and killed by a large buck deer, which he had wounded. Buxton took the life of the deer with a final shot from his rifle, of 30-30 calibre. His body was recovered by a party of searchers Sunday evening and carried to his home at Brockway.

A few minutes before the tragedy, Buxton chatted with George Smith, a brother of Clay Smith, of Winston, who is a Portland street car conductor. Smith was hunting in the Olalla country with a friend from Portland, and the two came upon Buxton in the woods by chance. After a short conversation, Buxton left the two men and made his way to the bottom of the canyon. Shortly afterwards, Smith and his companion heard Buxton shoot six times, and then call his dog. Supposing that Buxton had killed a deer, the two men felt no concern and kept wending their way through the woods, not dreaming of the tragedy being enacted in the canyon below.

Upon Buxton's failure to return home Friday evening a search was for him, but no trace could be found. On Saturday the search was renewed, but again without result. In the afternoon of that day, about 5 o'clock, Buxton's dog came home and then his family felt certain that he had met with some mishap. In the meantime, Mr. Smith had come to Roseburg, and when it was learned that he had seen young Buxton in the woods he was sent for immediately. Going to Brockway, Mr. Smith put himself at the head of a party of seven men and started for Blue Canyon. Late in the evening the party came upon Buxton lying dead about one-fourth of a mile from where Smith and his companion had left him Friday morning.

Bled to Death. Examination of Buxton's body revealed the fact that he had bled to death from a severed artery in his upper left leg. The wound had been made by the horn of a buck deer which lay dead near the bottom of the canyon, about 60 yards below him. The deer weighed about 190 pounds. His set of antlers were comprised of four prongs on a side, and one of these prongs was stained with blood for several inches, showing that this was the one which the infuriated animal had thrust into Buxton's leg and severed the artery. In the deer's body were three bullet wounds. One in the thigh, another in the neck and a third behind the shoulders, in close proximity to the heart. Half way between the spot where the deer lay and the place where Buxton's body was found was a blood stained and disturbed patch of ground, evidencing the fact that a struggle had taken place there, after Buxton had stunned the deer by the shot through the neck. Had his first shot been the one that passed through the deer's body behind the shoulders, the tragedy would never have occurred because it undoubtedly killed the animal almost instantly.

An unopened clasp knife at the scene of the battle indicates that Buxton, supposing the deer to be dead after the first and second shots, intended to follow the custom of hunters by cutting the animal's throat so that it would bleed preparatory to being dressed. Before he could open the knife, however, the buck sprang to its feet and attacked him. This fact is borne out by a gash on Buxton's left arm and another on his left ankle, both made either by the animal's horns or its razor-like hoofs. Then there was the fatal thrust through the artery in the left leg, but as the deer sped down the canyon, Buxton ended its life with a parting shot from his rifle. That this shot killed the deer instantly is shown by its position when found. It was lying behind a log, almost flat on its back.

After slaying the deer, Buxton started to crawl up the side of the canyon, but when within a short distance of the top expired from loss of blood. When found, he was lying face downward, his rifle by his side. He had bandaged the wound on his ankle, but had neglected to stop the flow of blood from the severed artery by binding his leg. This was probably due to excitement and weakness. The onslaught of the wounded deer must have been wholly unexpected by him, as he told Mr. Smith during their conversation on the ridge of the canyon that he had never killed a deer in his life.

Funeral Tomorrow. The funeral of young Buxton will be held at the family home at Brockway tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock, with services conducted by Rev. W. F. McGee, of St. Joseph's church, of this city. Interment will follow in Civil Bend cemetery.

Besides his parents, George Buxton is survived by a brother, Charles, and three sisters, Mary, Sadie and Katie Buxton.

Hon. Jas. E. Sawyers is prominently spoken of as a candidate for city councilman in the Third ward in next Monday's election. Mr. Sawyers will make an excellent councilman, being active, honorable and progressive.

Mr. and Mrs. J. V. Brenneisen and baby and the former's nephew arrived here Friday from Chicago to reside. Mr. Brenneisen is looking for a poultry ranch.

J. W. Simmons and family, who have been living at Round Prairie, leave tonight for the Grand Ronde valley in eastern Oregon to locate.

Window sale of home cooking in express office window next Saturday, by Ladies' Aid society of the Presbyterian church.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank E. Alley returned this morning from Portland, where they attended the big livestock show and wherein Mr. Alley's blooded horses won the longest list of premiums awarded to any one exhibitor. This is a fine showing for Mr. Alley and also for Douglas county, as it was practically a national competition.

Men Past Sixty in Danger. More than half of mankind over sixty years of age suffer from kidney and bladder disorders, usually enlargement of the prostate gland. This is both painful and dangerous, and Foley's Kidney Cure should be taken at the first sign of danger, as it corrects irregularities and has cured many old men of this disease. Mr. Rodney Burnett, Rock Port, Mo., writes: "I suffered with enlarged prostate gland and kidney trouble for years and after taking two bottles of Foley's Kidney Cure I feel better than I have for 20 years, although I am now 91 years of age." ROUSING ADDRESS

Delivered by Senator Gore Last Saturday Night

COURT HOUSE OVERCROWDED

Political Issues Clearly Outlined and Placed Before the Voters—Pleasing Speaker

Convulsing with laughter by his wit, swaying their hearts by his eloquence, holding their minds attentive by his reasoning, United States Senator Thomas P. Gore, of Oklahoma, last Saturday night at the court house entertained and instructed a vast audience, crowding even the standing room, far out into the hallway. For two hours and more he discussed, political issues and remedies for political ills. He discussed the attitude of the republican party, admitted its great mission and its great work during its early existence and deplored its departure from the principles upon which it was founded. He took up the tariff and the trusts, he spoke of the bank guarantee plan and the injunction planks of the platform. He lauded Bryan and predicted his success in November and through all the time the audience sat responsive to his moods, laughing when he willed, observant or studious by turns, changing under the magic of his oratory.

Senator Gore was preceded by Senator M. A. Miller, of Linn county in an interesting ten minutes' talk along the lines of political progress, including official economy and the direct election of U. S. senators.

Senator Gore said, in part: "I certainly appreciate the determination of Senator Miller that he has brought me to the great Northwest. The more I meet of the people of the great Pacific states the more I brought home to me the love I bear for this great republic. I love every blade of grass, every grain of sand, in this great nation. As a member of the United States senate it is my purpose to advance the interests of Oklahoma and every other locality in this republic (applause). Right here I want to go upon record as a friend of Roseburg (applause). Everything she wants and more too. I think she wants a public building and I hope she gets it. Senator Chamberlain will be with me in Congress and I will vote with him on every proposition to advance the interests of the great state of Oregon (Applause). Down in Oklahoma we say that we can beat every state in every thing, but I am inclined to think that we must have overlooked your tall timber. You can beat us on bushes.

"Now, my friends, I wish to say to you, that although I am not conversant with your local politics, that I understand that certain grants of land are being used and held against the best interests of the state. If that is the fact I say to you that these grants should be recovered and I will cooperate with Senator Chamberlain to effect that result.

"Now, my friends, the republican party and the democratic party both advocate certain ends. We only differ as to the means to bring about those ends. We ought not to fuss about discussing those ends. The party that advocates the best means of bringing about those ends is the party that you ought to belong to, and that is what I am here to show you. I know that the republican party has done great things for this country. Many of the great stars of the political firmament were placed there by the republican party. There were Lincoln, Grant, Garfield, and Blaine, and there were—Senator Burton of Kansas and Senator Mitchell of Oregon. I know that the republican party struck the shackles from the hands of a million slaves and made this country in fact, as in name, the land of the free. But the republican party of today is not the republican party of Abraham Lincoln. It has departed from the principles of that party, and has wandered away in disaster in the seeking of strange Gods. Now, that is a grave charge and ought not to be made unless proven. The immortal heroes who organized the republican party, men like Senator Trumbull, Carl Schurz, Chief Justice Chase, Horace Greeley, Chas. Sumner, men who breathed the very breath of life into the republican party—those very men who created the republican party abandoned the republican party when that party abandoned them. I do not know which contributes the more to their glory—the forming or the forsaking of that party. The very act proves their devotion to their duty. Republicans of today can share their glory by following their example by forsaking that party when it has forsaken you. If the republican party of today still follows those principles you cherish you should continue with the republican party. If it has not, you

OFFICES AT THE McCLALEN.

Sutherland Valley Land Buyers Preparing for Business.

The Sutherland Land and Water Company, which has purchased 7000 acres of F. B. Waite's holdings in the Sutherland Valley, near Oakland, has opened a real estate office in the southeast corner of the lower floor of the Hotel McClallen building. Surveyor Chas. E. Roberts was placed at work this morning surveying the tract into parcels of 10 acres and upwards, and just as soon as this work is finished the land will be placed on the market. This morning also saw the beginning of work by a crew of men building the main boulevard through the tract. The road will commence at the S. P. R. R. right-of-way and will extend into the tract for about six miles. Later more laterals will be extended from the main irrigation ditch built into the valley.

The price paid to Mr. Waite for the land is $350,000—$50 an acre. The new owners are thoroughly experienced in handling such projects, and before long Sutherland Valley will be a fine place to live in. Most of these will be brought from the upper middle western states in carload parties, by Mr. Andrews, one of the members of the company, who has had many years of successful experience in colonization work.

MRS. AIKEN ENTERTAINS.

Last Saturday Mrs. J. C. Aiken entertained eleven of her lady friends at a six-course luncheon. For this occasion the parlors were very prettily adorned with Virginia creeper, roses and anemones, while the dining room was decorated with Virginia creeper, ferns and autumn leaves, both presenting a very handsome appearance. A very attractive centerpiece was a beautiful hand-painted punchbowl, filled with a splendid array of apples, grapes and peaches. The guests were: Mrs. S. C. Flint, Mrs. Clara Rast, Mrs. I. Wollenberg, Mrs. A. Wollenberg, Mrs. J. M. Lawrence, Mrs. K. L. Miller, Mrs. Jas. Sawyers, Mrs. Binger Hermann, Mrs. I. F. Barker, Mrs. W. T. Wright, Mrs. W. R. Willis. Assisting the hostess were Misses Florence Aiken and Maude Rast.

CONFESSES MURDER

Bellingham Man Shrinks From Visit to Morgue

KILLED HIS WIFE IN JULY

Seattleite Slain by Wife's Paramour—Oldest Mason in United States Dead

Special to the Evening Review. BELLINGHAM, Wash., Sept. 28.—Rather than go to the morgue to identify his wife's body, J. K. Thomas this morning confessed to murdering her last July and burying the remains in the backyard of their home, where it was found by a party of searchers last Saturday. Thomas says the murder was committed during a drunken brawl and in self defense. "Just as I was leaving the house she pulled a gun from her dress and fired at me. Then I shot her twice, killing her. Next morning I went to town and got heavily drunk. Two days later I returned home and buried the body in the back yard. I told inquisitive people that my wife was visiting in Chehalis."
