GORE'S ROUSING SPEECH

"The Republicans say that the trusts ought to be regulated; regulated rather than exterminated. The Democrats say that they ought to be destroyed. Which party are you going to give them over to for correction? The Democratic party has always been hostile to the trusts. There is not a trust in the country today that does not depend on special privileges granted by the Republican party. Do you expect the Republican party to murder its own offspring? I have never accused them of being willing to butcher their own brood. I must defend them against their confessed depravity. Are the trusts going to be corrected by their friends? I have no doubt but what they would like it. I say those trusts are born of the Republican policy of a high protective tariff and high freight rates. High freight rates shut out domestic competition and high protective tariff shuts out foreign competition. These trusts are bound to multiply under such conditions. Low prices on what you sell, high prices on what you buy. They have been given a special license to plunder the American people by the Republican party. Do you endorse that? If you do you are a Republican; if you do not you are a Democrat."

"I think that the Republican farmers in this country ought to be able to buy their tools as cheaply as the farmers of the Danube or of the Rhine. He is a king in his own right and I feel an admiration for him that I do not have for the crowned heads who oppress and plunder mankind. I do not think these Republican farmers have been treated justly. We Democrats have little to expect at the hands of the Republican party, but I should think they have the right to expect some consideration at the hands of their own party. If you think so you are a Democrat; if not you are a Republican."

"The Republican party used to say 'stand pat.' We whipped them out of that rank and file and the people are going to have revolution through the Republican party if they can; through the Democratic party if they can't. The Democratic party says revise and reduce. The Republican party says revise. Is it to be up or down? If in doubt let us see what Congressman Hull says—'The Republican party will revise the tariff up or down as it d—n please.' Mr. Taft, in his letter of acceptance, says that some schedules ought to be lowered and some made higher. I have an idea that no trust will object to that. Perhaps the very thing that the people want lowered will be made higher. Mr. Taft should have taken the voters into his confidence and told them which ones were to be lowered, if there is anything in the Dingley bill that is to be lowered. The people should have an understanding on that question. The Democratic party makes no equivocation on that subject. It says 'put all trust made goods on the free list.' There have been former attempts to revise the tariff by its friends. The Republican party revised the tariff in 1883 and they revised it up. They revised it in 1890 and they revised it up. They revised it by the Dingley law of 1897 and they revised it up. Always up and never down. If you want the tariff reduced, vote the Democratic ticket. If up, vote the Republican ticket."

"The Democratic party declared by an unanimous vote for the publicity of campaign contributions, the Republican party declared against it, and that is the only harsh word that I am going to say tonight. If there is a thief in a crowd no honest man will object to being searched. It is only the thief who objects. Why would not the Republican party say that it was going to be honest? Because that it knew it could not win without the assistance of corporation funds. The people remember how a great insurance company plundered the people in order to contribute to the last Republican campaign fund. Mr. Harriman raised $265,000, more than a quarter of a million; Mr. Mellon a hundred thousand and benevolent old John D. Rockefeller loosened his purse strings in order to keep his friends in office four years ago. They did not do it for their health and they are precious healthy chaps. It was not for their country's good that they gave that money; they got back value received. Every dollar that they gave they got back out of you. If you are in favor of that, vote the Republican ticket; if not, vote the Democratic ticket."

"I heard William Jennings Bryan say three days before the Denver convention, that unless the Democratic party went upon record as in favor of the publication of campaign contributions that he would not accept the nomination for President of the United States. (Continued applause.) But Taft knows, as does Roosevelt, that his election depends upon money from the trusts. Which side are you on? The Republican party declared that the use of the injunction should

In some manner be regulated. The Democratic party declared that it should be changed and that no man should be held guilty of constructive contempt without trial by jury. The Democratic party was in favor of giving the laboring man the same right that is given to a common thief or felon. Let us say that they agree upon the injunction question. Which party will you commission to make the change, the Republican party, whose candidate has been the father of the present practice, or the Democratic party who believes that the writ of injunction should be reasonably restrained. The last Democratic Senate passed such a law and it failed in the Republican house. We have petitioned the Republican party for the last eleven years to remedy this evil and have failed. I know how the laboring man feels about Mr. Taft on this question. Something like the old darkey who was delivering up a prayer for the spirit of a departed brother, whose future destination he was somewhat dubious about. He went something like this: 'We hope you is where we expect you ain't.' That's the way the people feel about Taft. We hope he is where they expect he ain't."

Senator Miller has ably presented to you how the last Congress appropriated millions of dollars for expenses, as much as it cost to keep our army in the field during the Civil War. During Roosevelt's reign there has been 99,000 new offices created, an army larger than that which followed Alexander the Great, larger than that of Wellington or of Napoleon, and put upon the payroll to continue the Republican party in power. Did you get one of those offices? "I must apologize to the Republican party when I speak of panics. They have told us that panics always come under Democratic administrations. It was always necessary in the past to attribute to the party of 1893 under Cleveland's administration. But they are not talking panics now. The only panic they are talking of now is the panic that is going to happen if Bryan is elected. The recent panic was only a small affair, and should have waited a few months and have been born under the Democratic administration. They will tell you that it was born during the temporary absence of its parents. The panic of 1893 came two months after President Harrison went out of office and 15 months before the high protective McKinley law was reduced; so in fact we had the high protective tariff during all the panic of 1893. We want the truth. The panics of 1866, 1869, 1884 and 1890, which 38 millions in clearing house certificates were issued, came under Republican administrations. The last three panics came under a high protective tariff. One came during the Democratic administration of 1893 but that came while the high protective tariff law was in force. You want the truth and I tell you that the Republican party is the mother of panics (Applause)."

"Now, my friends, disregarding everything that we differ upon we can at least agree that panics come whether the Republican or Democratic party is in power. What we want is a remedy against these panics. The Republican party offers you the Aldrich-Vreeland currency bill, born during the dying hours of the last congress. Who is this man Aldrich? What is the Aldrich-Vreeland and currency bill? It is a bribe offered to financial sharks to bring on a panic. A remedy that comes into effect after the panic comes. Millions, if you bring on a panic; nothing if you do not. Why, Roosevelt and Cortelyou deposited 25 millions in two of Rockefeller's banks when the government had a judgment of 19 millions against him. That panic was brought on by Rockefeller to robble up Helme and Morris. The Republican party endorses that measure and if you endorse it vote the Republican ticket, otherwise vote the Democratic ticket. "The Democratic party proposes to prevent the causes that give rise to panics. We propose that any man who deposits money in a bank shall have a certificate that is good for a dollar any time upon demand. That will stop runs on banks. That is fair to the bankers and they are entitled to justice, but bankers are not the only ones to be considered in the matter. The government makes them guarantee their deposits. The government will not deposit its money unless the banks guarantee the deposit. What reason can be assigned why the banks should not be compelled to do the same for the depositor? Is the great government of the United States less able to lose its money than the man who tills. The government of the United States does right in making the banks guarantee its deposits, and it would be no more than right to make the banks do the same. The bank demands security from you and it is no more than right that you should demand the same of them. If it is good for them it is good for you. "Now, then, they say that this would make dishonest bankers. Thieves go into the banking business now and they don't care whether the depositors are guaranteed or not. Down in Oklahoma thieves do not go into the banking business any more; they go into the pen instead. Our guaranteed banks have increased $4,000,000 in deposits and the banks not guaranteed have decreased $1,000,000. "Our guarantee law has brought money from many outside states. It has brought money from Illinois—from Oregon. It brought money so fast from Kansas that Governor Hoch called a special session to enact a similar law and it came within one vote of being carried, being defeated by the interests. Both parties have this plank in their platforms in North Dakota and Nebraska. Governor Sheldon refused to run again unless the plank was placed in the platform. Down in Oklahoma it has brought money out of hiding. Women wear their stockings down there and don't use them for hiding away money. It costs a fraction of one per cent of the deposits; much less than it would cost under a national banking system for dollar. If these banks had been guaranteed there would have been no run on them and consequently no loss. "They say that it will not work in a great disaster like 1893. Now, let us see. During Cleveland's administration 51 banks failed and they called it a panic. During Roosevelt's administration all the banks closed and they called it a holiday (Applause). Now, in Cleveland's administration when the banks failed, a guarantee deposit of one-third of one per cent would have paid the losses sustained by the people, dollar for dollar. If these banks had been guaranteed there would have been no run on them and consequently no loss."

"The Republican party is torn asunder as it was in 1854. In New York, in Indiana, in Ohio, in West Virginia, it is torn asunder. In Illinois, in Michigan, in Wisconsin, in South Dakota it is rent in twain by civil war, while the Democratic party is today intact. Then rally around our matchless leader who can revise the tariff without betraying the confidence of his friends, who can regulate finance without bankrupting, who can settle the trusts without murdering his own children, who is fully the peer of any man in any realm, and who will, by the grace of God, be the next president of this republic. I speak of William Jennings Bryan." (Continued applause.)

LIMITATION PLEA FAILS. PORTLAND, Or., Sept. 28.—In the United States court this morning Judge Wolverson handed down a decision holding that the statute of limitations had not intervened in the case of the government against J. A. Robinson and George Miller, defendants with F. A. Krebs in the famous "2-1" land fraud cases. The case is brought for the cancellation of certain patents which are alleged to have been obtained fraudulently. The defendants assert they had not been served with the papers in the case prior to the expiration of six full years after the issuance of the patents, and for that reason they could not now be attacked. The court held that the officers of the government had begun the suit before the time, when the statute of limitations was invoked and had made an earnest effort to get service, which was sufficient. The case will now be set for trial.
