OCTOBER 15, 1908.

The way of the transgressor doesn't lead to grow any easier.

Oregon's deficiency of rainfall recently didn't amount to much and was more than made up in the past two days. This state makes a rule of being about right all the time.

Now we again appreciate how badly we need that street paving. The actual financial loss to the city by the delay of work until next spring will be more than the total of the $35,000 worth of bonds the defect in the issuance of which prevented the work from being well under way this fall. Since the work actually began now, let the legal formalities be again taken up without delay and the paving matter put into shape so that the construction work may begin as early as possible next spring. It took about six months to go through with the legal formalities before. While it should be done quicker next time another six months will bring us to the middle of next April. By then everything should be in shape for putting the paving plant in place for operation and the work commenced just as soon as the spring rains are over.

Soon after the local option law went into effect here last July The Review published a warning to possible transgressors that violations thereof would be punished. Now, at the first regular term of circuit court some indictments have already been returned by the grand jury and it is rumored that several others are pending. Let all transgressors be punished, regardless of who they may be. While this law is on our statute books it should be enforced just as strictly as is the law against stealing. In this respect the grand jury and circuit court are backed by a strong public sentiment.

WHERE THE BIG TRUSTS STAND

As Shown by the Buffalo Republic, a Labor Paper.

Dear Sir:—I wish you would let me know what there was to the dealings between President Roosevelt and E. H. Harriman, the big railroad king, and whether it was true that the President asked Harriman to go to Washington and help him write his message to Congress. Also, I would like to know about the corporations.

LONGSHOREMAN.

The above letter was received at the office of The Republic and we take pleasure in replying to it, giving only such information as is susceptible of proof and which already has at various times been made public—Editor Republic.

The Harriman Incident. Mr. Harriman, in the 1904 presidential campaign, contributed to the republican campaign fund personally and through his corporate friends $250,000. That fact has been admitted and therefore is not shut out anywhere. After the campaign however, Harriman and Roosevelt fell out and the facts concerning their intimate relations just prior to the 1904 election became public. A confidential letter written by Harriman just after the 1904 election was published in which Harriman said:

The Appeal for Funds.

"About a week before the election in the autumn of 1904, when it looked certain that the State ticket would go Democratic and was doubtful as to Roosevelt himself, he, the president, sent me a request to go to Washington to confer upon the political conditions in New York state. I complied, and he told me he understood the campaign could not be successfully carried on without sufficient money and asked if I could help them in raising the necessary funds as the national committee, under control of Chairman Cortelyou, had utterly failed of obtaining them, and there was a large amount due from them to the New York State Committee. We talked over what could be done for Dewey, and finally agreed that if found necessary he would appoint him as Ambassador to Paris.

"With full belief that the president would keep his appointment I came back to New York, sent for Treasurer Bliss, who told me that it was their last hope, and that they had exhausted every other resource. In his presence I called up an intimate friend of Senator Dewey, told him that it was necessary in order to carry New York state that $200,000 should be raised at once, and if he would help I would subscribe the $50,000. After a few words over the telephone the gentleman said he would let me know, which he did probably in three or four hours, with the result that the whole amount, including my subscription, had been raised.

"The appeal for funds to Treasurer Bliss was made up in the name of the New York State Committee, and I was the only other like contribution, of course Cortelyou did not inform the President.

know who the subscribers were other than the friend of Dewey, who was an individual. This amount enabled the New York State Committee to continue its work, with the result that at least 50,000 votes were turned in the city of New York alone, making a difference of 100,000 votes in the general result."

Invitation to Harriman. The truth of this statement was confirmed by Bliss and also by the publication of a copy of a letter sent by Roosevelt to Mr. Harriman. In that letter Roosevelt, among other things, said:

"Now, my dear sir, you and I are practical men, and you are on the ground and know the condition better than I do. If you think there is any danger of your visit to me causing trouble, or if you think there is nothing special I should be informed about, or no matter in which I could give aid, why, of course, give up the visit for the time being, and then a few weeks hence, before I write my message, I shall get you to come down to discuss certain Government matters not connected with the campaign."

Of course there was a great deal of comment because the President had been on such intimate terms with Harriman and had invited him to Washington to edit his message to Congress, especially on account of the fact that Harriman was charged with violating federal laws in his railroad operations and, therefore, was liable to prosecution by the United States attorney general who is appointed by the president.

One of the results of the publication of the fact that Harriman had raised $250,000 for the Republican campaign fund was the demand that all contributions to campaign funds should be published just before election so that the people might know what trusts were back of the candidates for President. The Democratic national convention at Denver adopted a plank pledging the party to such a publication and the Republican national convention refused to adopt the plank.

Taft's Trust Backers.

As to the corporate interests and the representatives of trusts that are back of Taft, it would be difficult to enumerate them all without very careful and extensive investigation and so the Republic will mention only a few of them.

Mr. Rockefeller of the Standard Oil company has declared for Mr. Taft, but if he is active in his support of him that fact is being carefully concealed.

George H. Sheldon, the treasurer of the Republican national committee, is a director and stockholder in about seventy corporations and trusts. In fact, Sheldon's corporate records are so notorious that six years ago Governor Odell refused to give him an election ticket with him for lieutenant-governor.

Where Corey Comes in. President Corey, of the Steel Trust, has declared for Taft and proclaims his election. There is a very good reason why the Steel Trust should not desert a candidate for president picked by Mr. Roosevelt. It is to the effect that the only important competitor the Steel Trust had was the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company. The trust for years had been trying to secure control of that company, but without success.

When the financial panic came last year, the Trust Company of America controlled by President Oakleigh Thorne, had in its possession the majority of the stock of the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company. The Trust Company of America was hit by the panic and needed several millions of dollars to tide over its difficulties. Just at that time Secretary of the Treasury Cortelyou deposited in New York banks controlled by J. P. Morgan, the organizer of the steel trust $25,000,000 in gold. Oakleigh Thorne went to Morgan for financial help and Morgan told him he would lend him money enough to help the Trust Company of America out of the hole if the trust company would sell its Tennessee Coal & Iron Company stock to the steel trust. This was agreed to, provided the steel trust could not be allowed to consent to permit the trust

Nursing Mothers and Over-burdened Women

In all stations of life, whose vigor and vitality may have been undermined and broken-down by over-work, exacting social duties, the too frequent bearing of children, or other causes, will find in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription the most potent, invigorating restorative strength-giver ever devised for their special benefit. Nursing mothers will find it especially valuable in sustaining their strength and promoting abundant breast-feeding for the child. Expectant mothers too will find it a priceless remedy for the ordeal comparative painless, and can do no harm in any state, or condition of the female system.

Indicate, nervous, weak women, who suffer from frequent headaches, back-ache, dragging-down distress low down in the abdomen, or from painful or irregular monthly periods, gnawing or distressing sensations in the stomach, dizzy or faint spells, see imaginary specks or spots floating before eyes, have disagreeable, pelvic catarrhal drin, prostrating, antenatal or retroversion, or other displacements of womanly organs from weakness many or only a few have experienced relief and a permanent cure by using faithfully and fairly persistently Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

This world-famed specific for woman's weakness and peculiar ailments is a pure glyceric extract of the choicest natural, medicinal roots without a drop of alcohol in its makeup. All its ingredients are printed in plain English on its wrapper and attested under oath. It is the only medicine of the kind that is so widely known to the most advanced medical science of the different schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

If you want to know more about the merits of this favorite prescription, send your card request to Dr. J. C. Pierce, Littleton, N. Y., for his free booklet treatise on the subject.

You can't afford to accept as a substitute for this remedy of known composition a cheap nostrum of unknown composition.

to take over the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company. President Corey of the steel trust accordingly made a trip to Washington and saw President Roosevelt. He told the president that Morgan would stop the financial panic in New York if the steel trust was permitted to absorb the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company. "We can't do it without violating the anti-trust laws, but this panic is charged to you and we are the only ones who can stop it," said Corey. The president assured Corey that if the steel trust took over the Tennessee Coal & Iron Company, the steel trust would not be prosecuted, and Corey went back to New York, where the deal was made. An interesting feature of this incident is that the money used by the steel trust to buy up its big competitor, was the money Cortelyou, the Secretary of the United States Treasury, had deposited in Morgan's New York banks. The Steel Trust enjoys the benefits of a very high protective tariff, and the discovery was made recently that while the Steel Trust charged American railroads $28 a ton for steel rails, it sold the same steel rails to foreign railroads for $20 a ton. This fact is a court record, admitted under oath by officials of the Steel Trust. The heads of the lumber, leather, coal and sugar trusts have declared for Taft. Railroad kings, such as E. H. Harriman, James J. Hill and George Gould, also have made statements urging his election.

KEEP MONEY IN OREGON.

State University Establishes School of Correspondence.

A new bulletin of the Correspondence-study department of the University of Oregon has just been received. The scope of the work has been greatly enlarged over the beginning of last year, and now covers courses in English Classics, Shakespeare, Pedagogy, Botany, History, Algebra, Geometry, Trigonometry, Analytic Geometry, and several courses in Mathematics for teachers.

By means of this work any student who has not time to attend college or high school, can pursue with hardly any cost, practically the same work by correspondence through the University courses, and receive credit for it. Thousands of dollars each year are sent out of Oregon to various correspondence schools, and the University believes that a large part of this might just as well be saved to the people of the state. The enrollment of this department will reach three thousand students for the year.

STORY OF A DOLLAR.

Ten years ago an Allen county, Kan., farmer put his initials on a dollar bill. The next day he went to nearest town and spent it with a merchant. Before the year was out he got the dollar back. Four times in six years the dollar came back to him for produce, and three times he heard of it in the pockets of his neighbors. The last time he got it back was four years ago. He sent it to a mail order house. He never saw that dollar since, and never will. That dollar bill will never pay any more school or road tax for him, will never build or brighten any of the homes of the community. He sent it entirely out of the usefulness to himself and to his neighbors when he sent it to the mail order house. The moral is plain.

Moral: Trade at your home stores where your dollar buys most anyway and where you may get it back again.

Would Mortgage the Farm.

A farmer on Rural route 2, Empire, Ga., W. A. Floyd by name, says: "Bucklen's Arnica Salve cured the two worst sores I ever saw, one on my hand and one on my leg. It is worth more than its weight in gold. I would not let it go without it if I had to mortgage the farm to get it." Only 25c at A. C. Marsters & Co.'s drug store.

Where Bullets Flew.

David Parker, of Fayette, N. Y., a veteran of the civil war, who lost a foot at Gettysburg, says: "The good Electric Bitters have done us worth more than five hundred dollars to me. I spent much money doctoring for a bad case of stomach trouble, to little purpose. I then tried Electric Bitters, and they cured me. I now take them as a tonic, and they keep me strong and well." 50c at A. C. Marsters & Co's drug store.
