

DALLAS, S. D., Oct. 17.—At 4:30 o'clock this afternoon the registration of chances in Uncle Sam's great lottery for lands in the Rosebud reservation comes to a close, and on Monday the wheel of fortune will begin to revolve merrily, bringing joy to a few and disappointment to thousands.

Today was the final period for registration, and the land hungry who desire homes on Rosebud's rich acres took full advantage of the fact. All night and all day tomorrow the land office officials from Washington will work unceasingly preparing the stage setting for Monday's great drama, "The Land Lottery." Nor will the drama lack an enthusiastic and excited audience. Thousands of people are gathered here and at the other registration points, living in hastily improvised shacks, tents and prairie schooners, awaiting with nervous and feverish impatience the whirling of the wheel that may spell for them the magic word "home."

While a vast majority of the land seekers are legitimate settlers, actuated by the honest impulse to secure a home for themselves and families, and wrest a living from the virgin soil, there are not lacking adventurers, gamblers and fakirs who have been attracted by the opportunity to "take a chance" and possibly to pick up a little "easy money." Dallas, on a whole, is about the most recent speak of the map of South Dakota, has become a great sweltering mass of eager, hungry humanity, representing every strata of society.

The wheel to be used in Monday's land lottery is very similar to those once operated by the Louisiana Lottery Company, which came under the ban of the United States government. Representatives of the government draw the numbers from the revolving wheel.

The first number drawn out entitles the holder to his choice of any one of the 160-acre tracts in the broad Tripp reservation. The first prize is a jim-dandy and thousands of others are just as good. All are distributed according to the order in which they are drawn.

The land is not distributed absolutely free. Each lucky man or woman must pay $6 per acre for his tract, and live upon it 14 months, as provided by the homestead laws.

Tripp county is more than a county, as one would be accustomed to regard it. It comprises nearly a million, or 938,000 acres. It is the county directly west of the land opened in 1904, the drawing of which was generally known as the Homestead drawing. The development of the lands which were opened before, shows the value of the lands included in the present opening. The farms have been developed and the occupants have prospered. The quarter sections which were drawn, and were purchased at $4 an acre, are worth upwards of $3 an acre, and some of them as high as $50 an acre. Tripp county has not had much identity until now. It has been only a part of the great Rosebur reservation, the home of the Sioux Indians.

FINED FOR CONTEMPT.

Glendale Doctor Regarded Care of Patients First Duty.

SALEM, Or., Oct. 16.—Dr. H. R. Kaufman, a prominent physician of Glendale, Or., was fined $10 for contempt of court by Judge Burnett yesterday, the court taking advantage of a privilege which it is said had not been exercised in this county for years, by the finding of a witness who fails to appear in time to testify in court.

Dr. Kaufman was subpoenaed to appear in the case of the state vs. Jackson and was not present in Salem on the day of the trial.

A bench warrant was issued and Dr. Kaufman came to this city. He pleaded to the court that he is the only physician in Glendale; that several matters of extreme importance detained him in his town and it was practically impossible for him to leave.

In passing sentence the court declared that the method of procedure adopted by the physician would be liable to place the workings of the court in disrepute and consequently gave him a light fine.

Dr. Kaufman telegraphed to the district attorney here telling him he could not come, but the telegram was lost in the shuffle and was not definitely recognized by the court as an excuse.

EUGENE LIQUOR CASES.

EUGENE, Or., Oct. 16.—Judge Harris today handed down a decision in the case of Charles Kuthe, arrested for selling "near beer" in violation of the city ordinance, in which Kuthe was discharged. The main point in the decision is that the ordinance had not had sufficient time to become a law when Kuthe was arrested.

Sid Pitman, the Springfield man who was arrested there a few days ago, charged with selling liquor at leavey's hop yard during the picking season, in violation of the local option law, appeared for trial before Judge Bryson, of the Eugene justice court, this forenoon. A trial was not necessary, as the defendant entered a plea of guilty. Judge Bryson sentenced him to pay a fine of $100. He was unable to raise the money and still spend 50 days in the county jail.
