LECTURE ON HOODOOS.

Dr. George Gilbert Bancroft, lecturer and entertainer, assisted by Miss D. Lillian Lewis, impersonator, were listened to by a good sized audience in the Armory last night. The entertainment was under the auspices of the W. C. T. U.

Mrs. Hadley introduced Dr. Bancroft and Miss Lewis in a few well chosen words. Miss Lewis sang a contralto solo entitled "If," which was thoroughly enjoyed, judging from the liberal amount of applause. Next Miss Lewis acquitted herself creditably in an impersonation of Aunt Eliza at the opera.

Dr. Bancroft then delivered his scientific lecture on "Hoodoos" dealing especially with the so-called supernatural phenomena; explaining why the table tips, dances and answers questions at Spiritual seances; why and how Sandow lifts such ponderous weights. He explained presentiments, "hunches," mental telepathy, etc. Dr. Bancroft contends there is nothing supernatural about all these things; that they are all governed by known natural laws. He says every person is endowed with two minds, the objective and the subjective. The subjective is used only when the body and objective mind is at perfect rest. Dr. Bancroft gave several illustrations to prove this point and also to prove that the subjective mind was capable of receiving suggestions, and how those suggestions could be made to benefit the person without his apparent knowledge. The subjective mind knows no weight or distance, hence can lift any weight and receive messages from any distance known to the objective mind.

Dr. Bancroft is a very forceful and entertaining speaker and commanded the strictest attention of his large audience for over two hours, though the time seemed much less. He delivers another lecture tonight on "Whom, When and How to Love," from a purely scientific or physical standpoint.

A note from Frank Davey, ex-speaker of the Oregon house of representatives, who has been sick at Burns for many weeks of typhoid pneumonia, says that is sitting up every day and is getting well. Reports were that Mr. Davey was very low, but it would appear that he is now on the road to recovery.—Oregonian.

W. H. (Bid) Fisher celebrated the arrival of a new suit of clothes this morning with a light luncheon (a la tomato soup and beef tea) to which he invited a number of his intimate friends. The clothes were built to order by the well known house of Hart, Schaffner & Marx, and according to the popular verdict will attract more attention than even the suits recently received by Messrs. Cannon and Salzman.

The case of a number of Russian heirs against the estate of S. Marks & Co., H. Wollenberg, administrator, which was decided in favor of the plaintiffs in the circuit court at Clackamas county, has been affirmed by the Oregon Supreme court, and a petition for a rehearing denied. In this case the plaintiffs claimed to have been defrauded out of their just shares of the estate, notwithstanding a settlement that was made with their representative by the late Asher Marks shortly after S. Marks' death. Mr. Wollenberg states that the decision of the supreme court will prove a detriment rather than a benefit to the plaintiffs. The decision will force them to return to the estate all that they previously accepted in full settlement of their shares, and that, owing to the condition of affairs, they will receive less when final distribution of the estate is made.

BRYAN IN ROSEBURG.

At the Crescent Theatre Sunday afternoon and Evening, Oct. 25.

William Jennings Bryan, democratic candidate for the greatest office in the gift of the American people, during his visit to Chicago, on Labor Day, posed before the moving picture machine.

The photographing was done by The Selig Polyscope Co., of Chicago, and it is a marvel of perfection, interest and clearness. Every move made by Mr. Bryan, his walk, his gestures while speaking, his genial smile, his cheery hand-waving—all these are shown with such startling distinction that when the picture was first shown to Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic National committee, he gasped, sat up in his chair and exclaimed:

"Why, man, its marvelous. Simply marvelous."

This is not a political picture at all. It shows one of the world's best known public men—a man who is in the limelight of the world; a man who is seeking the nation's greatest position of honor. It shows him arriving at the depot in Chicago, driving along the streets, arriving at the Auditorium Hotel, the largest hotel in the world, by the way.

Next, it shows him on the balcony of the hostelry, reviewing the monster union parade of Labor Day.

All the beautifully decorated floats that featured the procession, all the various bodies of men, the stockyards men in their clever uniforms, the various mounted squads, including Chicago's famous mounted policemen —all there are pictured beautifully.

The scene shifts to Forest Park, where Mr. Bryan delivered his Labor Day address.

The moving picture machine was located so close to him that every line of his face is shown as clearly as though you were standing face to face with the candidate.

It certainly is a great piece of work and you can't afford to miss it.

At the Crescent Theatre, Sunday afternoon and evening only, Oct. 25. Admission 10 cents.
