WONDERFUL WIRELESS TELEGRAPH.

Financial Investigation, Undertaken In Interest of Inquiring Subscribers, Reveals Marvellous Progress—A Purchase of United Wireless Telegraph Stock Undoubtedly Offers Greater Future Profit Than Any Other Investment Now Before The Public.

The Mercantile and Financial Times of New York, says:

During the past thirty days this publication has received quite a number of inquiries from its readers, asking our opinion regarding an investment in "United Wireless." Not being sufficiently conversant with the subject to intelligently advise our correspondents, and following our invariable rule of instituting a thorough investigation before condemning or recommending an enterprise, the Editor of the Mercantile and Financial Times called at the general offices of the United Wireless Telegraph Company, at 42 Broadway, New York City.

The president of the United Company, Colonel C. C. Wilson, met our inquiry fairly, and, by the exercise of his authority, made it possible for Mr. Adams, our managing editor, to make a most thorough investigation and to obtain accurate information. The books of the company were open to our expert accountants, the company's contracts, its factories, its stations with their file of paid commercial messages—everything, except the experimental department, where new improvements are conceived and worked out—all was revealed to supply facts from our judgment. It was an unusual procedure, compared to the reception we sometimes experience in our investigations, but we learned that the same privileges are extended to a committee of any body of its shareholders, a fact which augurs well for the future success of the company.

This is one of the most interesting stories this paper has published in a decade. We regret that lack of space prevents us from giving anything more than the bare facts of the present condition of the company and to touch only lightly on its enormous possibilities for its future.

On June 14, 1908, the New York Tribune, considered to be the most conservative financial authority among all of New York's daily papers, published an article on the "Marvellous Developments in the Realm of New Inventions." In speaking of the Wireless Telegraph and its stock possibilities, the writer had this to say:

"When it is recalled that one hundred dollars invested in the Bell Telephone at its inception has paid $201,000 in dividends, the marvellous possibilities of the wireless loom up like the sun on a clear June morning. With wireless bounding into universal use, over land and sea, with comparatively little cost of maintenance and possibilities beyond the most extravagant dreams of man, United Wireless presents the greatest opportunity for safe, sensible and logical investment, with better founded reasons for yielding large returns than any other stock now before the public."

In our investigations of the United Company, its present and its future possibilities, we have no hesitation in stating that the opinion expressed by the Tribune's writer is more than justified by facts, as is shown by the following condensed statement:

United Wireless Telegraph Company.
The United Wireless Telegraph Company was incorporated February 14, 1907, under the laws of Maine, with a capital of $20,000,000—$10,000,000 of which is seven per cent Preferred Participating stock and $10,000,000 of which is Common stock. Its officers and directors are all shareholders who have invested their money in the Wireless Telegraph. There is no promotion stock. The assets of other companies were purchased and combined into one system and the company began commercial operation during October, 1907. Within the first year of actual commercial operation the United Company has succeeded in establishing its business on a net profit basis, has purchased and controls over one hundred valuable patents; has over one hundred boats equipped with the system; has thirty-seven land stations established and in operation; has three well equipped factories; is endorsed by many governments throughout the world through purchase and usage of its apparatus; is established on 21 steamship lines; has a corps of wireless experts who are recognized to be the best in the world; and maintains an established position which could only be equalled by years of careful upbuilding and an expenditure of not less than one and one-half million dollars; under the most advantageous conditions. The United Company is the "first free mill" of years of mental and physical labor backed by the expenditure of billions of dollars in actual cash.

Its Commanding Position to be Maintained.
The United Company now owns or controls the most efficient and latest improved apparatus of any wireless system in the world. Improvements will continue to be made, and it is reasonable to expect that the company's own experts will be the foremost in making such improvements; all of which belong to the company's assets. The United Company offers a ready market for any improvement which might be made by others, and it is the purpose of its officers to purchase such improvements as it needs, whenever they are made, and funds are already provided for this purpose. History records that the company which became entrenched and successful when developing a new discovery has been able to maintain its position and make large profits for its shareholders. It seems logical that the United Company should progress rapidly, extend solidly and be able to maintain its control of wireless development—to have accomplished so well under the most difficult conditions of the past twelve months augurs well for the future.

Assets.
The assets of the United Company consists of patents, good-will, contracts, stations, boat equipments, factories, securities of other corporations, cash, bills receivable, and treasury stock, all of which total over $20,000,000, and is estimated now to be worth (based on future earning capacity) over thirty million dollars. The stock which shall be sold from its treasury holdings, to extend the company's operations is expected not to exceed 100,000 shares, or five per cent of its entire capital; this amount is believed to be sufficient to supply all the additional capital ever needed by the company. This treasury stock is offered for sale for the reason that it seems best to dispose of such small portion of its stock and be able to extend more rapidly than might be possible from the use of the operation profits alone, and also to enable the company to more quickly pay dividends on its stock.

Dividends.
Dividends will be paid as soon as the shareholders of the company vote that it is in the interest of the shareholders for the directors to declare a dividend on its outstanding stock. At its annual meeting in January, 1909, the matter will be brought before the shareholders and decision made whether a dividend may be paid out of the earnings from the company's business during 1908.

Future Profits.
Future profits will depend entirely on the development of the company's business. The wireless field offers greater opportunities for large profits than any discovery made by man up to the present time. With the cable supplanted by wireless telegraph and such business extended to include the thousands of islands not now connected by cable; with the use of thousands of ships on the seas equipped and kept in constant communication with the wireless telegraph; with the telegraph business on land done with the wireless entirely and the enormous expense of maintaining poles and wires done away with; with the telephone supplanted by the United Wireless Telephone; with the railway trains run by wireless signal safety devices and "aerograms" sent direct to fast moving trains; with the police call, fire alarm, burglar alarm, light-house, lighthouse service, etc., etc., and innumerable other services to be, in time, done by wireless, who can say that the profits of the one successful company may be.

Small Capitalization.
With its present assets and substantial net income, coupled with the possible enormous earnings in the future, the capitalization of the United Wireless Telegraph Company seems infinitesimal. The wire telegraph companies in American have together a combined capitalization of over a hundred times as great, yet within a few years the wireless telephone will supplant the wire phone. The Western Union Telegraph Company, in its financial statement for the year ending June 30, 1908, had an out-

Do You Open Your Mouth

Like a young bird and gulp down what ever food or medicine may be offered you? Or, do you want to know something of the composition and character of that which you take into your stomach whether as food or medicine?
Most intelligent and sensible people nowadays insist on knowing what they eat, whether as food or as medicine. Dr. Pierce believes they have a perfect right to insist upon such knowledge. Such publishers, at least and on each bottle of Pierce's Favorite Prescription, are made of and verified by facts. This he feels he can not afford to do because the ingredients of which his medicines are made are studied and understood. The more will their superior curative virtues be appreciated.

For the cure of woman's peculiar weaknesses, irregularities and derangements, giving rise to frequent headaches, back ache, dragging-down pain or distress in over abdominal or pelvic region, accumulation of uterine, with a debilitating solvent, catarrhal discharges and kindred symptoms of weakness. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a most efficient remedy. It is equally effective in curing painful periods, in giving strength to nursing mothers and in preparing the system of the expectant mother for baby's coming, thus rendering childbirth safe and comparatively painless. The "Favorite Prescription" is a most potent, strengthening tonic to the general system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. It is also a soothing and invigorating nerve and curative nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysterical spasms, chorea or St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing nervous symptoms attendant upon functional and organic diseases of the generally feminine system. A host of medical authorities and the several schools of practice, recommend each of the several ingredients of which "Favorite Prescription" is made for the cure of the diseases for which it is claimed to be a cure. You may read what they say for yourself by sending a postal card requesting a free booklet of extracts from the leading authorities, to Dr. J. C. Pierce, Invaluable Hotel and Surgical Institute, H. Fair N. Y., and it will come to you by return post.

Seems Sensible to Buy "United" Stock Now.

The officers and directors of the United Company are men of ability and excellent standing and have proven their business so that a small investor can always be assured of honest treatment and an equitable division of the profits of the company.

United Wireless stock is now low-priced and advancing rapidly in value and should soon bring high prices. A day's delay may mean that you must pay a higher price for the stock. Others are investing rapidly according to their means. All classes of investors are obtaining an interest while it is within their reach—banks, manufacturers, professional men and women, mechanics and wage-earners of all degrees. None should miss the opportunity while the stock can be bought at such a low figure.
