Last Sunday's Oregonian contained a full page Adv. for Roseburg and Douglas county, inserted by the Sunset advertising bureau of the Harriman railway system. Some good local pictures were included with a summary of Douglas county's advantages. This announcement stated that Roseburg is one of 24 towns in the Pacific Northwest that is using the Sunset Bureau's advertising system. The descriptive matter in this Adv. is the same as was included in a homeowner's folder issued by the S. P. R. R. Co. some time ago and reproduced in The Review about that time. Its repetition in the Oregonian at this time should be productive of further good results for Douglas county.
