PROBING SCANDAL

Judge's Connection With Hill Under Investigation

POPE PIUS GROWS WORSE

Bellingham Man Horribly Kicked by Horse—Heavy Snow Storm in Inland Empire

Special to the Evening Review. SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 1.—The State Bar Association is today conducting a secret examination in this city into the cause of the resignation of Supreme Judge Milo K. Root. The first witness called was L. C. Gilman, western general counsel for the Great Northern Railroad. He was followed by J. J. Lavin, secretary to M. K. Gordon, who formerly held the position now occupied by Gilman. At one time Gordon was on the Washington supreme bench, but later became counsel for the Great Northern Railroad at the invitation of James J. Hill, losing his job recently upon the discovery of a shortage of $100,000 in his accounts. It is charged that most of this money was paid to Root, and the charge is given credence by the fact that Gordon was not prosecuted. Gordon, it is reported, has threatened to expose the corruption between Hill and Root if proceedings are instituted against him.
Pius is Worse. ROME, Dec. 1.—Pope Pius' condition is reported worse today. Bronchitis has developed from his severe cold of the past few days.
Horse's Awful Kick. BELLINGHAM, Wash., Dec. 1.—Angus Young was found unconscious this morning under his horse, which had kicked him in the jaw. The lower part of his face is hanging loose from his head, and there is little chance of his recovery.
Heavy Snow Storm. SPOKANE, Wash., Dec. 1.—Snow varying from one-half to three inches in depth mantles the Inland Empire and covers the mountains in northern Idaho and central Washington for a depth of two feet. Cattle are being driven from the hills near Walla Walla for grazing in the lowlands.
Navy Commission. WASHINGTON, Dec. 1.—President Roosevelt stated today that he contemplates appointing at an early date a commission to investigate the entire system of the navy department, looking to reorganization and to the establishment of the general staff to act in an advisory capacity to the civilian secretary. It is reported that Secretary Root will head the commission.
Ban Placed on Opium. SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 1.—Opium was today barred from all Pacific coast ports by order of Collector Stratton, after receiving a secret message from Dr. Wiley, the Federal food inspector.
Roseburger's Case Opens. PORTLAND, Ore., Dec. 1.—The trial of Louis Kohlhagen, charged with swearing falsely at the Roseburg land office to get possession of land near Grants Pass, was begun in the Federal Court here today.
The Ladies of the '95 Mental Culture Club enjoyed a Colonial party today at Mrs. W. R. Willis' home, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion with chrysanthemums. Miss Florence Alken presented the poem "Courtship of Miles Standish," (Longfellow). Appropriate music, both vocal and instrumental, interspersed the poem, those assisting in this phase of the rendition being Mrs. S. C. Flint, Mrs. J. A. Buchanan and Miss Belle Curry. At the close of the program refreshments were served. The hostesses of the afternoon were Mrs. J. C. Hume, Mrs. J. C. Fullerton, Mrs. C. L. Hadley, Mrs. S. C. Bartrum, Mrs. A. C. Marsters and Mrs. F. G. Micelli.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

We wish to thank the public in general, and our regular customers in particular, who have helped during the past to make our business a success, and to announce that we will RETIRE FROM BUSINESS on January 1st, 1909. To accomplish this we realize that we must dispose of our large and complete stock at a BIG SACRIFICE, and we have decided to give the people of Roseburg and vicinity the opportunity to purchase any article in our store at LESS THAN COST TO US. There will be absolutely no restrictions. The sale will open Monday Morning, Dec. 7th, at 9 O'clock, and will continue till the entire stock is all sold. Come with the crowds and participate in this GIGANTIC SLAUGHTER SALE the kind of which was never known in the mercantile history of Roseburg. The sale involves the entire store, stock, fixtures and all. H. MARKS CO.

Washing the Butter.

After drawing off the buttermilk pour a pailful of cold water in the churn over the butter and give the churn four or five quick revolutions. Then draw off the first wash water and put on the second and turn as before. If the butter is hard, enough after the second washing, draw it off and take out the butter.—American Cultivator.

A Dangerous Operation.

Is the removal of the appendix by a surgeon. No one who takes Dr. King's New Life Pills is ever subjected to this frightful ordeal. They work so quietly you don't feel them. They cure constipation, headache, biliousness and malaria. 25c. at A. C. Marsters & Co's drug store.

WIT AND WISDOM

Opie Read Entertained a Big Audience Here

IS A BELIEVER IN IDEALS

Tells Splendid Stories and Philosophies on the Drift of National Affairs

"First One Thing and Then Another" by Opie Read, attracted a large audience to the Baptist church Monday evening. And this famous author and lecturer, who appeared here under the auspices of the Commercial Club, did not disappoint his hearers. When he finished his address a hearty round of applause was given him and the audience remained seated for a minute or two, apparently hoping that he might go on. Mr. Read has been upon the lecture platform so long that he not only knows how to entertain his hearers, but he leaves them filled with a desire to hear him more. "First One Thing and Then Another" is what may be termed a lecture of good things that during the hour and 20 minutes of its delivery frequently runs the whole gamut of human emotions from mirth to tears and back again. Summed up it is an effort which is bound to prove an uplift to humanity with a broadening of human affections and ideals. Droll—and at times convulsing—humor marks the progress of Mr. Read's lecture. Then sage wisdom, delivered in sparkling epigrams, delights his hearers. A spirit of humanity as broad as time itself is next portrayed, this being illustrated by characters whose life-work sends forth bright beams of love which finally sweep away the passion for revenge which had been fostered for generations. To a considerable degree Mr. Read is an idealist, and he believes the world is growing better in spite of the maddening rush for sordid gain. That even the desperado has within him a spark of humanity which if rightly touched will become aglow with benevolent action. In another phase his sparkling bits of humor are clothed with the keenest sarcasm. Needless to remark, Mr. Read is a prince of story tellers, and the 30 odd books (no pun intended) which he has written have only created an ever-increasing demand for more. He has others now under way. One among the many humorous incidents related was of the Indiana farmer who said about 40 of his hens were "setting." "A Boston miss overhening this remark could not refrain from using the opportunity for a correction. She interposed: "You mean that your hens are 'sitting.'" "Well," he replied, "they may be 'sitting' or they may be 'hening,' but when them hens are cackling, can you tell me whether they air a layin' or a layin'?" A Review representative had the privilege of a chat with Mr. Read shortly after his arrival in town, he having come in on the afternoon train from the south. Mr. Read is delighted with Oregon scenery and climate and he also likes the people. On being urged to stay longer he remarked that he was like the itinerant preacher, he had to keep going in order to meet his "appointments." One of the good stories he related, none of which were repeated at the lecture, was of the prevalence of the boisterous spirit. He says the people of Atlanta, Georgia, are among the greatest boosters on earth. Once while he was there he heard an Atlanta man—they are all boosters—talking with a resident of Savannah. He was lavish in his praise of Atlanta, finally admitting that its only drawback was lack of facilities for transportation by sea. Waxing enthusiastic he declared: "Why, if we only had the water over here, as you have, it wouldn't be long until we would have the world at our command." "Well," responded the Savannahite, "you just lay a pipe over there, and if you can suck as hard as you can 'blow' it won't be long until you'll have it." An above stated, Mr. Read is a believer in ideals. A nation must have ideals or it will have no progress and is drifting toward ultimate dissolution. Ancient Greece and Rome are powerful illustrations of this fact. He fears that our own country is losing sight of its ideals in the rapidly increasing tenacity of the struggle for wealth. Politically he supported McKinley and Roosevelt. This year he favored Bryan, for two reasons. In a republican (democratic) form of government no president should have the power to say who shall be his successor. Then the ideals of liberty and honor upon which this government was founded are being lost sight of or subordinated to the demands of business. When material gain displaces the higher ideals of any people, that na-
