TO UNITE CHURCHES.

Greatest Protestant Movement of the Age Begins Tomorrow.

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., Dec. 1.—Representing 20,000,000 communicants in 27 religious denominations, some of the leading churchmen of the nation are gathering in Philadelphia today to participate in the federal council of the Churches of Christ in America. The session will be formally opened tomorrow and will mark the greatest step ever taken in America for a unification of Protestant churches. Among the distinguished laymen who will be in attendance will be Governor Hughes of New York, who will discuss "civic righteousness," and Governor Ansel of North Carolina.

This meeting is regarded as the most representative gathering in the history of Protestant Christianity in this country. Its members have been chosen by the highest adjudicatory bodies in the denominations to be represented.

Among them will be more than 20 bishops, many presidents of universities and colleges, some of the most noted theologians and preachers in the country, officers in mission boards and other departments of church work and a large number of laymen of prominence. Nearly all those who have been appointed have signified their intention of coming to the council.

The sessions of this representative body will continue until December 5. "For the prosecution of work that can be better done in union than in separation"—is the expressed purpose of the meeting, which is unique in character and which is regarded as certain to prove historic in the annals of American Protestantism. It aims "through counsel and co-operation to avoid the two great faults of Protestantism, overlapping and overlooking," and one of its principal purposes is to organize the Protestant Churches in this country so that every section shall be directly under the supervision of Protestant influence.

At the same time it is expected to effect an organization that will prevent the establishment and maintenance of too many Protestant churches in a given locality. An effort will be made to perfect a system as thorough and exact as the parish system of the Roman Catholic church.

The federal council is the outcome of the inter-church conference, held in New York in 1905, which adopted the plan of federation, and set the year as the date for its first convention as this year.

He was married Sept. 5th, 1887, to Miss Anna Carey, who survives him. He leaves three children, Mrs. O. P. Standley and Irvine and Ray Thompson. His aged mother, Mrs. N. J. Jones, who is far in the eighties, lives to mourn her son's early demise.
