

SHOP SURROUNDINGS.

Employees of Plant Combining Beauty and Commercialism.

The appearance of many towns and cities is spoiled by unkempt surroundings of business streets, and seldom is any attempt made to improve and beautify these places. The plan is being tried in Brooklyn, N. Y., however, to interest the employees of a company in improvement work, and the story of how an esprit de corps came to replace a don't care feeling in the personnel of one of the largest single traction concerns in the country is an interesting one.

Some time ago the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company adopted a policy of beautifying as far as possible the different portions of its property. It was a pet idea of Mr. Winter, its president, that the mere fact that a structure is built for commercial purposes is no excuse for its being hideously ugly.

This was quite a reversal of old traditions, but it has already gone partly into effect. The great new Williamsburg power station is the company's most striking exposition of this new policy.

Beginning was made at the construction shop of the elevated lines at the foot of Thirty-ninth street. The yard that surrounds this shop—formerly a passenger terminal station—was cleaned of the litter of old locomotives and discarded coaches. These were sold when possible and given away for firewood in other cases.

Last spring the shop foremen were informed that the railroad would proceed to lay out the edge of the yard with grass plots and flower beds. Similar steps were taken at the other elevated shops at East New York, Fresh Pond road and at Thirty-sixth street. The same methods of decoration that proved so successful on the company's property at Brighton Beach were put in effect.

Then came the surprising part of the programme. Shopmen displayed an astonishing amount of interest in the plans for beautifying the property. They organized into bands and ensembles on summer nights reported after hours for work on the shop grounds. There was an entirely a voluntary procedure. They showed an interest in the whole project. It was a new spirit showing itself.

Nor was that all. The men from lathe and plane and drill press worked alongside the laborers, and then they got together with the shop foremen and made a new proposal.

"Let's buy big flags—big, fine American flags—to float over every shop of this company and show folks when they go riding by that there are good Americans working under the roof."

So the big movement started. The men all wanted to subscribe—nickels, dimes and an occasional quarter were the order of the day—and when they were done the foremen topped off the list for the big flags. The railroad company put up high steel poles, and there has been a series of flag raisings all summer.

Every elevated shop now flies its flag as regularly as a military post. Out at the newest shop in Fresh Pond road the transportation men watched the big pole and flag of the shopmen ascend. So the guards, motormen and conductors of the trains running there bought a flag and had the company erect a second steel pole for their flag. Other plans of the same sort are under way.
