WHY SHOULD EVERY FARMER BELONG TO THE GRANGE?

A Factor in Society.
Every man is a factor of society, and as such he is accountable for the manner in which he performs the duties which devolve upon him.

His Moral Duties.
The first is to his home and family.
The second to his government which permits him to enjoy the blessings and happiness of his home and family. The third is to better the conditions and advance the interests of his chosen occupation.

Since we are looking at the farmer's side of the question, what should be his action and what can he do to better his condition?
Helpless as an Individual.
There are certain conditions existing that must be met and overcome to obtain results desired by the farmer. What legislation is needed to be secured by his combined efforts. As an individual among 80 millions of people he is infinitesimally small, and as an individual he is helpless to do one thing to obtain relief.

The moment the farmer attempts to relieve any burden created by unjust taxation or unequal distribution of it, it makes no difference in what direction, he is met by an organized force. No argument is needed at this time to convince any intelligent farmer that such is the case.

It is not enough that he complains and wants something done, but he is morally bound to do something himself and not merely wish it done.

He Has Power.
He has power and it is his duty to use that power so as to make it available to his influence felt. So that if he cannot make his influence felt or his power available as an individual (and he cannot) his duty is to make it so, and that can only be done through his organized efforts.

Created a Social Being.
The farmer was created a social being and needs the wholesome influence of organization to keep him so. His business is comparatively one of isolation, varying in degree according to his environment. The farmer who lives within the boundaries of 160 acres becomes very narrow and of little use to the community. His family is correspondingly dwarfed as they are shut out of society and are improved as their opportunity for association increases.
The individual excluded from society will, in time, lose his mental powers and become oblivious to his own needs as well as to the needs of others. Here again he needs a farm organization where he and his family can meet with freedom and ease, and while cultivating sociability can acquire mental culture and pleasing manners.

The Grange the Best.
Without further arguments all agree that the farmer needs to organize, and without hesitation we say the Grange is his best organization. Its Declaration of Purposes is as fine a document as we have ever seen written by man. Its application to farm life and fine sentiment contained cannot be surpassed. With its existence of almost 50 years, in which time it has met the surveillance of every opposition, it has not been found wanting in any particular. It has stood the test, while many other organizations which have sought to improve upon it have met with disaster and ruin. The plan of the Grange is right in being made co-existent with the needs of the farmer, having an organization in the township, county, state and Nation, whereby it is able to serve him in every sphere. Anything short of this is deficient.

Any district in Douglas county that wishes more information or wishes to start a Grange, some one that is interested write to T. L. Lee, Deputy Master, Looking Glass, Oregon. He will visit you and organize a Grange for you.

The Semi-Weekly Oregon Journal

Publishes the latest and most complete telegraphic news of the world; gives reliable market reports, as it is published at Portland, where the market news can be and is corrected to date for each issue. It also has a page of special matter for the farm and home, an entertaining story page and a page or more of comic each week, and it goes to the subscriber twice every week—104 times a year.
The Review gives all the local and county news and happenings and should be in every home in this vicinity.

The two papers make a splendid combination and you save $1.00 by sending your subscription to The Re-
