A TOOTHACHE RECIPE FOR BAKED BEANS.

Hudson Maxim is not only famous in the chemistry of high explosives, but he is an expert, though less widely known, in the chemistry of the kitchen. That the inventor knows beans—as well as gunpowder—may be judged by any housewife who will follow his directions for preparing Boston's celebrated Saturday night dish. "Beans," he says, in an article on "Science in the Kitchen." In the Youth's Companion, "are more nutritious than almost any other vegetable food, and when properly cooked they are among the most delicious of all articles of diet. I have experimented a great deal in the preparation of baked beans, and have obtained the best results by proceeding in the following manner: "Take two quarts of plump, dry beans, preferably those known as marrowfat. Do not use any beans that have withered from being picked before they were ripe. Cover the beans with cold water and let them soak for 12 hours overnight. The next morning, between 6 and 7 o'clock, parboil them until the skins crack when blown across strongly with the breath. Drain the water off and cover the bottom of a farina boiler, or other water-jacketed kettle, about three inches deep with the beans. Now put in half a dozen small onions, or one large Bermuda onion, pared and used whole, one pound of solid-fat salt pork from the back of the animal, one pound of fresh-pork loin and one pound of beef shank.

"Then add the remainder of the beans, two tablespoonfuls of maple-syrup, a little salt, and fill up with tomato juice obtained by rubbing or sifting canned tomatoes or other cooked tomatoes through a sieve, to free them from seeds and skins. Keep the water in the outer jacket gently boiling until supper time, when the beans will be ready to serve. While they are cooking they will require no other attention than the addition of a little hot water to replace that lost by evaporation."

SPANKS WIFE KISSED BY MINISTER; GETS DIVORCE.

RENO, Nev., Jan. 20.—Because the elderly minister who pronounced the words that made her the wife of Mahlon E. Havener, kissed her after the wedding ceremony, Mrs. Anna M. Havener, a pretty young woman of Boston, was marched straight home from the church by her newly made husband and was subjected to a sound spanking by him as he held her across his lap, much to her humiliation and discomfort.

"He just laid me across his knees and spanked me 'awful' hard," she declared at the hearing of her suit for divorce here, in which she charged her husband, a well known business man of Boston, with cruelty.

The couple were married in 1909. The decree was granted.

Advertising is the silent drummer that tells the public what the business man wants it to know about the goods he has for sale—an injection of advertising into the veins of trade grows the business heart.

No one has awake thinking of your business; out of print out of mind. The Presidential candidates are well advertised every four years. Ask your neighbor who ran with Bryan the last time—five out of ten will say they have forgotten and the other five will think a long time before they correctly answer.
