EVENING ROSEBURG REVIEW

MAY 5, 1914.

APPLES GO TO DENMARK.

The apples trees in Denmark number about 5,343,000, but the production is not large enough to supply the home demand, as evidenced by the fact that the importation in 1909 (the latest available statistics) amounted to 39,234 barrels, of which the United States supplied direct 7822. It seems, however, that considerable quantities of American apples are also imported from Hamburg, and other German and British ports, and on the other hand some are also exported to Norway, Sweden, Finland and Russia. We are informed that the prices for the York and Baldwin varieties average $3.50, exclusive of brokerage, and that some Winesaps have sold as high as $4.30 to $5.00. The varieties of boxed apples imported from the United States are Winesaps, Jonathans and Lauvers. The public seems to prefer the red apples. The American Consul is of the opinion that the California Newtown Pippin are the most popular and that the Wenatchee apples that have been shipped are too large for the market.—Ex.
