Making it Easier for You to Buy Good Spring Clothes

- You ought to be interested in what we have done to lower the cost of men's clothes. It's important:
1. We've purchased only the kind of clothing we are certain will give the maximum service—long wear; KUPPENHEIMER good clothes—good in style, in fabrics and workmanship.
 2. We've curtailed every expense that was not essential to the kind of service that is of benefit to you
 3. We've put our profit at a figure that most merchants would consider a loss, if interest on the investment be considered.
 4. We have ready an unusual large stock of Kuppenheimer good clothes; new Spring models; perfectly styled and expertly tailored; fabrics and patterns that will command your interest.

DIFFICULTIES FOUND

Local Stores Unable to Supply Sufficient Sail Cloth to Cover Anatomy of Some City Residents

Many amusing as well as interesting sidelights have come up in the past few days relative to the formation in this city of the B. O. S. S. Club, as a method of lowering the present high cost of commodities as well as preventing their future raise. Rev. J. H. Dickson, of the Baptist church, who formerly resided in the east, saw the experiment worked out at two places there, Manchester, New Haven and New Bedford, Massachusetts, at the outbreak of the recent war when the sudden jump in prices was more noticeable there than in this part of the country. Rev. Dickson at one time preached for several consecutive Sundays in a blue denim suit resembling the ordinary overalls. He stated this morning that the experiment in those places had worked out successfully, and had materially reduced prices. One of the amusing bits concerns the birth of several of those who have signed up, especially that of Postmaster Reizenstein, who, with tears in his eyes, told a sad story of not being able to buy any that he could wear and still appear on the streets. In recognition of the truth of his plea, he was given three days grace in which to obtain a pair which would fulfill the laws of decency and order. Harry Pearce offered the disconsolate postmaster a tent that he had in stock, but the darned thing was white instead of blue and wouldn't fill the bill.

J. E. McClintock, the local contractor, was standing on the street corner this morning, clad in his new overalls, when a farmer drove up and offered him a job at $2.50 per day, found, and "Mac" nearly accepted.

J. V. Starrett, the real estate dealer, tells one on himself. He was showing a man a house yesterday and noticed that the fellow seemed very agreeable towards anything that was offered him. At last they returned to the office and signed up the papers and as the fellow wrote his name to the check he said:

"Well, I'm glad you made this deal for I can tell by the way you are dressed you need the money."

Jack Pelton got up earlier than usual this morning and was at the depot platform about the time No. 18 pulled out. He was strolling up around the engine, when a Southern Pacific special agent spotted him and told him if he wanted to ride to get a ticket.

Al Creason, member of the city council, has police power and as the police attempt to keep the transients off the street Al, upon seeing a visitor of the "Weary Willie" type, went over to accost the gentleman, only to be told:

"Keep on your own side, bo, I'm working this side."

O. C. Brown, county school superintendent, was over in the Benson school this morning making an inspection when a young teacher rushed out into the hall and said:

"Please, Mr. Janitor, can't we have a little more lead in our room?"

Deputy Sheriff Rafferty decided this morning that he would wear his overalls, so when he climbed out of bed dug around until he found them and put them on. However, Tom's job isn't conducive to slowness and he found that they "wouldn't go half way 'round" and consequently is still wearing his "army pants."
