

Better than Pills

YOU WILL NEVER wish to take another dose of pills after having once used Chamberlain's Tablets. They are easier and more pleasant to take, more gentle and mild in their action and more reliable. They leave the bowels in a natural condition, while the use of pills is often followed by severe constipation, requiring a constant increase in the dose. Every bottle guaranteed by your druggist.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

IS OPPOSED TO BOXING.

Walter Says Boxer Does Not Speak Truly in Distinguishing Fighting and Boxing.

Editor News-Review: In your paper of April 2 is an article "The Boxing Game Explained," on which I would like space for a few comments.

First, Mr. Non De Plum's explanation does not explain the difference between the so-called boxing game as recently staged and the prize-fight of one, two or three more years ago. Why? Because there is no difference.

Second, he says a prize fight was a battle with bare knuckles and a round was concluded only when one of the principals was knocked to the ground. The bare knuckles rule was before my time and I expect before his. Dempsey, Willard, Corbett, Sullivan and Herron all fought with 20 rounds and a round was marked by a period of time, so the time of brutality was extended. No decision was rendered in any of their fights (and they were called fights, not boxing contests) until one of the principals was not only knocked down, but down and out so the referee slowly counted ten; and there are some cases on record where the one principal went down and out the long road (dead)—using the present day phrase "went west."

There is no difference. Cedarstrom when in Coos county was required to knock his man down and out, so the referee could slowly count ten before he was granted the decision. Also Cedarstrom had to go down and take the count at Grants Pass to be declared loser. So the recent bout at Portland and other places.

Would the game be played any different in Roseburg? I fear not. Yes, I read of these fights and watch the conversation of the ringside fans that I may give reason for opposing them, and I have witnessed clean boxing matches in which those participating boxed for points the same as the high jump, the spring, and the weight throwing, but never such as have been staged lately in these parts.

Third, the strong men of our legislature who champion reform bills, and bills calculated to uplift and better morals of state and country are men who formed their opinions from personal observation and experience, and not from the prejudiced mind of someone else. If we

THINGS THAT MAKE A DIFFERENCE.

"Katherine, Katherine, you must not feel this way," said Alice, as I still kept sobbing. "But I can't help it, Alice. I know that it is very wrong, but you know, don't you Alice, how happy I was when I thought my first child was coming to me? And you know how it hurt me when John said he was sorry that I was to become a mother. I probably shall love this child when it comes. I think it is a beneficent law of nature that whenever a woman feels the soft little flesh of her baby within her arms, she can't help loving it."

Going to Tell John. "Oh Alice, you know, and you still know, that I am heartbroken. I think almost the last conscious thought I expressed was that I was going to tell John the entire truth; that I was going to tell him that I could not live with him any longer, and we both agreed that, as long as I had no children, I owed it to myself and also to John to separate from him. For although you have said that you do not think he is unhappy, I cannot see how he is otherwise. Alice, he must miss the faith and trust and spontaneous affection that I poured out to him when we were first married. He must feel that marriage does not mean to him all that he thought it would. Perhaps, if this baby had not come to me, and I had left him, he might have been much happier with some other woman."

"If you feel this way about it, my dear," said Alice, "why not separate from John anyway. You are a rich woman now. You are independent. You can bring up your child as you choose. It doesn't seem to me that things have changed in such a fashion that you must continue to live with your husband if you feel as you evidently do toward John."

All These Unhappy. "But you said yourself, Alice, that since Bobby Gaylor fell desperately in love with Helen and left Ruth and her children in order to marry Helen, all three are unhappy. And you were right. Bobby writes and asks me to go to see his children and to tell him about them. 'Try to persuade Ruth to let them come and see me,' he says. Helen is unhappy because she has found that she cannot be every thing to Bobby. The strings of his parenthood draw tighter and tighter. And even though Ruth told Bobby, when they separated, that she would be glad to get rid of him if he would leave her the children—she has always been more mother than wife; yet you tell me that even she, with money to bring up her children as she wishes, is not perfectly happy without their father. No, Alice, I do not believe in divorce when there are children."

"I do," said Alice, unexpectedly reversing her attitude on the subject. "I think it is much better that children should be brought up in an atmosphere of peace and happiness, and I know that Ruth's children, and I know that Ruth's children, are getting this, than it is for them to be where there are always quarrels and bickerings and black looks."

"There have never been any bickerings and black looks between John and me," said Alice, and I do not think we have many real quarrels. He never understood. "Whenever I have found fault with John for something he has done, he has always put me aside with a little smile, and said: 'Oh, you are not yourself now, you are not feeling well.' Always attributing it to some physical ailment. That has been one of my greatest burrs. He would never understand when I tried to show him my heart, that it was my heart that was aching and not my body."

Alice sighed and turned away. I knew that she felt that longer discussion of the problem would only make me more nervous and unhappy. I had become calmer and the doctor's sedative had done its work. My brain felt numb, and I said rather drowsily: "Alice go and see Ruth as you had intended. Ask her how she feels about being away from Bobby. We know exactly how Bobby and Helen feel, but Ruth has said nothing on this subject. In the meantime, I will go to sleep and forget, if possible."

Forget? Ah, the times that I have wished and wished and wished in vain for that "good forgettery" that John seemed to have. I could always remember my unhappiness and John forgot all his troubles. That is the difference between a woman and a man.

Glendale Starts Campaign For Funds

Glendale's campaign for the Near East relief is under way under the capable leadership of J. L. Campbell, editor of Glendale's News, who is chairman for the district. Mayor A. A. Snyder has been placed on the executive committee and is giving his hearty support to the movement. Everyone in the Glendale district has expressed full confidence that the Glendale community will raise its quota. E. K. Harkness, principal of the schools, and Mrs. Maggie Hamm are also on the executive committee. The schools have already raised a considerable sum.

Nine sawmills are in operation near Glendale and the people of the community are in optimistic spirits. Reports S. S. Bruce, field secretary of the Near East relief, who visited that city on Saturday and Sunday. Mr. Bruce is aiding Mrs. A. J. Libbary, county chairman, in organizing the relief campaign now being carried on. He addressed a number of meetings in Glendale and gave an exhibition of stereoscopic views showing conditions in the Near East and the great improvement brought about so far as funds enabled through the relief work. Mr. Bruce spent yesterday in Mistle Creek carrying on the organization work.

CHALLENGES "DIVINE" HEALING

Resident Claims That "Divine" Healing Does Not Exist as is Claimed by Some.

Editor Roseburg News-Review: In your most recent issue that "Father Grammer" is in our town in some name days. I have been seeing announcements in different papers about him, at Portland, Seaside, Eugene and now here. He is called the "World's Greatest Divine Healer" but, up till now I have never read a word of criticism or protest in any of the newspapers. I do not desire to unduly criticize any man and would not offer any criticism as his lectures so far as I have heard, in telling people how to get well and keep well.

But what I object to is calling himself a "Divine" healer. Now any man of the world can do just as much in the way of healing as he pleases. I object to his method of deceiving the people and taking advantage of them in his so-called healing and begging them for money. I challenge "Father Grammer" or any other "Father" or man to meet me on the public rostrum and discuss the question of "Divine" healing. I will affirm that he is a fraud, as far as "Divine" healing is concerned. I would not say a word but my allegiance to God and His word moves me to utter my protest and warn the people.

Revival Meeting On Last Night

With a stormy night and a great many noted counter attractions to face, the revival meetings at the Christian church last night showed an attendance of interest. The fine audience that gathered last night was well pleased with the services. The pastor baptized seven candidates during the evening. The members of the church are happy and well pleased over the results thus far attained during the meeting. Mr. and Mrs. Cross have won their way into the hearts of many of Roseburg's people during their stay here. Their work has been high class in every respect. The service tonight will be of great interest. The evangelist will preach his sermon on the subject, "If a Man Goes to Hell From Roseburg, Whose Fault is it, and Who Cares?" Mrs. Cross will sing one of her most beautiful songs in the last week of the meeting, and this week will be the last week to hear these people, for it is their intention after completing their engagements in the northwest to return to the south to conduct a number of gospel campaigns.
