AERIAL SPORTING EVENTS.

The army aviator who on being demobilized went back to ordinary callings, must often have felt like a race horse hitched up to plough a corn field. Also many thousands of men who worked on the Liberty airplane motor, must have had a little of the same feeling when they returned to ordinary automobile work. The airplane seems to have dropped out of ordinary thought, since the days one read of its exploits as a daily part of the war news. But many thousands of men can't forget it. They still live airplanes, think airplanes, dream airplanes. Their minds are fixed on the possibilities of this great new facility. Over $1,500,000 is offered in prizes in this country and Europe this summer for various airplane demonstrations. Greatest of all is the proposed aerial Derby around the world, for which the effort is made to raise $1,000,000 in prizes. The list of fatalities to follow from the aerial events of this year is not likely to be a short one. But so it has been all through the world's progress. The primitive people who first developed sea navigation, must have suffered astounding loss of life. Who can estimate the number of who gave up their lives in developing electricity? Man always has to pay his toll for his scientific progress. There are always daring spirits willing to take chances which the ordinary person would feel to be foolhardy. Among the prizes offered this year are 100,000 francs for aerial safety appliances. This is the heart of the problem, and the end for which the most liberal rewards should be given. The people are not interested in the airplane as a sporting proposition or an instrument of war, but as a possible means of facilitating industry and the communications of daily life.

OIL YOU BURN.

Some weeks ago the Courier told the story of a local shipper who had sent a shipment of prunes to a Portland commission man and received a bill for 60 cents to balance the account, says the Grants Pass Courier. The grower of that shipment of prunes who was out his time, his boxes, and his investment, was in the Rose City a few days ago, and at one of the leading hotels he was served with a dish of steamed prunes at breakfast. Upon the menu, the prunes were listed at 20 cents, and when the dish arrived, the diner found just six petite prunes of the variety that the commission man said he could not sell in Portland. Each box that the commission man dumped in the hay contained no doubt, at least 400 prunes. Served upon the table in the breakfast room, these 400 prunes would have cost the hungry public more than $12. Yet the commission merchant said he could not find a man in Portland willing to take them off his hands at 50 cents per box. It all depends upon whose prunes it is: whether you are the man who produces it, or the man who adds the jazz and the decoration and feeds it back to the customer at 2400 per cent increase in price.

The service which the stores of Roseburg offers to our people, is an achievement which is not always realized as we thoughtlessly make use of their service. And it is something far beyond what has been considered by any one group of men. It is linked up with a system of world wide distribution, which has been built up through years of effort of the brightest business minds. Years ago the ordinary retail store had no such command over the resources of the world. Today a system has been organized by which even a small store can draw at once on central distributing points for anything under the sun. It is visited regularly by trained representatives of these distribution centers, who give expert help on supplying public needs. Even the little store becomes an integral part of a great system, able to rise to high standards of service.

Rhode Island and Delaware are the two smallest states in the union, yet they are serious stumbling blocks in the path of national suffrage for women and national prohibition. Sometimes it is the little things that make a lot of trouble in our lives.

The fact that you could get out a yelling crowd to holler for the soldiers during the war, does not prove that anyone will attend a meeting now to discuss ways of getting them all to work at good jobs.

The people who complain that the wind always blows when they get out to clear away ashes, may be the same ones who always stand on the windward side of the ashes.

When people get more pay and less work for themselves, they usually produce less pay and more work for some one else.

You can't elect a president this year merely by proving that he'll stand without hitching.

The modern "hired girl" is willing to allow the mistress Sunday afternoon and two nights a week out.

Red-Haired Man Looking For Job

The Chamber of Commerce is in receipt daily of contributions from all parts of the country and some of the letters are worthy of considerable thought. If there is any merchant in Roseburg that is looking for a "red-haired" live wire who is a window decorator and card writer, there is a man who has had 12 years experience in the mercantile business, and the following letter ought to be of interest. A good plan to set in touch with this man and to stimulate local pride in making some of our windows look a little different than the average proprietor is capable of doing. The letter in part is as follows:
"Dear Sir: Your booklet has been read by us and we are taking advantage of your offer to ask more questions. The attitude here is too high and we are going to make a change. I am a red-haired man, 29 years of age and have put in 12 years in the mercantile business. I am a graduate of the Koster School of Window Dressing of Chicago, and I can trim windows and write all advertisements. I have had charge of the men's ware and shoe departments in several large stores and I am now assistant manager with my present firm. Is there any store in Roseburg that can use me?"

"It is my purpose in coming to your town to buy a few acres of land and build a home. Yours very truly."

If this letter reaches to any of our merchants, communicate with the Chamber of Commerce and the enclosed letter will be given for personal correspondence.

Garden Valley Club Meets

The Garden Valley Improvement club met at the home of Mrs. J. H. Parrott Thursday, April 15, at 2 o'clock and there was quite a full attendance. Nearly every one brought a well-worked and the topics of the day were discussed. The club was to hold a picnic at the farm for competing the woman's building on the grounds of the University of Oregon, a much needed building. This was the chief business of the day. A pleasant social hour was then passed with delicious refreshments and the club then adjourned to meet on April 29 at the home of Mrs. Hugh Ritchie.

Move - Medford
Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Simpson, who have been making their home on Umpqua avenue in this city, left this morning for Medford, where they will reside. They have rented their home in West Roseburg.

Is in Klamath Falls
Circuit Judge J. W. Hamilton is at Klamath Falls where he is to try the famous courthouse case there. Klamath Falls has three courthouses built by different factors and because of injunctions issued county affairs are administered from the oldest building.

From Connecticut
Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Morancy, of Shelton, Connecticut, arrived in Roseburg last evening and spent the night at a local hotel, leaving this morning for southern Oregon. They will continue on from there to points in California, where they expect to spend most of the summer.

Sells Home
A. B. Bell, of the Rose confederacy store, yesterday sold his home located on South Main street to Mr. and Mrs. Anna Christopherson, of this city, who will take immediate possession. The deal was made through the Casey-Harding real estate office.

Question Raised By Evangelist

Heavenly Recognition will be the theme at the Christian church tonight. Evangelist Cross will discuss this matter so much thought of by people, from a Biblical standpoint. A goodly congregation was present last night to hear the discussion, "If a Man Goes to Hell From Roseburg, Whose Fault is it?" Cross raised a good many questions in the minds of people to start them thinking. He is original, and many times unique in his statements, but has a Bible proof for his position. The music continues to be a feature, and the special songs so well rendered and so finely interpreted are always most acceptable. Five more nights now remain for this meeting. Thursday night the evangelist speaks on "The Seven Bible Triumphs." Sunday afternoon there will be a special meeting for mothers, and every one will be asked to wear a bonnet. The meetings will close Sunday night.

Music Conservatory Praised

The Heinline-Moore conservatory of music is in receipt of a letter which was sent to them by George Fitch of 21st Street, the Portland musician who, with his wife, entertained the music club here on April 17th, and which was written to Mr. Street by J. L. Wallin, editor of the music notes of the Oregon Journal. The letter is a recognition of the efforts of the conservatory to bring good music to this city, and is as follows: My Dear Mr. Street: I herewith return clipping from which I have taken notes for Sunday. Roseburg seems to be doing things musically, thanks to the Heinline-Moore activities there—which goes to show that the musical atmosphere of a community depends largely on that community's musicians. Sincerely yours, J. L. WALLIN. Mr. Street has enclosed a very fine photograph of himself across which he had written a few words of thanks for the entertainment accorded himself and wife while in this city.

CITY NEWS

Will Get Certificates
Service certificates will be issued to all local members of the Red Cross chapter who did Red Cross work during the war. These certificates are given by the national American Red Cross society to every person who did at least 800 hours of war work in the rooms of the house chapter during the period that the United States was engaged in the world war.

30-Acre Tract Sold
The 30-acre tract located north of the soldiers home and known as the Jones Shepard place, has been sold to Mr. and Mrs. E. Van Breiten, of Gazelle, California, who will take possession at once. The deal was closed by the Rice & Rice real estate agency. The 30 acres is all river bottom land, and the majority is planted to fruit at the present time.

Will Leave Tonight
Robert E. Smith, president of the Title and Trust company of Portland, who has been spending the past two days here attending to business matters, will leave this evening for his home in the metropolis. During his stay here, Mr. Smith visited with his mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. T. T. Smith, of Myrtle Creek.

Here From Portland
Mark Simpson, a former resident of this city, who has been employed in Portland for the past six months, arrived in this city last night and will remain here indefinitely. Mr. Simpson is recovering from an illness which he recently underwent in Portland.

American Legion Met Last Night

A small but enthusiastic meeting of Umpqua post American Legion was held last evening in the G. A. R. rooms of the armory and considerable business was attended to. The members last night donated $14 to the Near East relief fund and passed resolutions endorsing the educational millage tax bill to come before the voters of the state at the next election. A committee was also appointed to meet with the Women's Relief Corps and the G. A. R. to assist in the memorial day exercises. The legion voted to aid the veterans in every way possible and some definite program of the exercises will be announced later.

Bill Provides Care For Blind

Believing that a state institution where the blind of Oregon may be taught trades that will enable them to become self-supporting is badly needed in Oregon on account of the number of blind dependents in this state, a committee of citizens has taken up a campaign in behalf of a measure to be on the ballot at the state election May 21, providing for the levying of one-sixth of one mill to erect and equip such an institution. The committee is finding universal support of the plan. The bill in addition to providing the levy for its establishment calls for an annual levy of one twenty-fifth of one mill for maintenance. It is the plan to have the institution under direction of the state board of control and to make it both an industrial and an employment institution. The blind problem has become much worse since the war on account of the number of men blinded while in the service. This is true in other states as well as in Oregon and many other states are taking the same step now as proposed by Oregon in this bill. To make the unfortunate blind self-supporting by teaching them profitable trades is considered the best solution of the problem. It is expected that soon after the establishment of such an institution the blind now dependent on charity for support will be taken from the streets of various cities of Oregon and taught profitable trades.

Gen Gordon Leaves
Guy Gordon, of the Umpqua Valley Fruit Union, left this morning for Eugene to attend to business matters for a short time.
