CASTORIA

The Kind You Have Always Bought, and which has been in use for over thirty years, has borne the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher and has been made under his personal supervision since its infancy. Allow no one to deceive you in this. All Counterfeits, Imitations and "Just-as-good" are but experiments that trifle with and endanger the health of Infants and Children—Experience against Experiment.

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is a harmless substitute for Castor Oil, Paregoric, Drops and Soothing Syrups. It is pleasant. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other narcotic substance. Its age is its guarantee. For more than thirty years it has been in constant use for the relief of Constipation, Flatulency, Wind Colic and Diarrhoea; allaying Feverishness arising therefrom, and by regulating the Stomach and Bowels, aids the assimilation of Food; giving healthy and natural sleep. LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

by the noted author
Idah McGlone Gibson

LOVE AND MARRIED LIFE ... TWO LETTERS.

There was a light tap on the door and Hannah brought in two letters. One was the long-delayed letter Charles had spoken of in his telegram before John went away, the other was from John himself.

I opened Charles' first. In it he told me there was something wrong going on in the oil fields.

"I cannot understand, dear Katherine," I read, "why it is that greed will make men forget their honesty and honor. I am investigating this matter very carefully, as you know one must go slow if one wishes to accuse a man of a corporation of fraud. However, I think I have one or two very good lawyers and we have also hired a couple of good detectives who seem to be very young fellows and always on the job. The other wells on the property are not showing up very well and it is possible this fraud we are trying to unearth may have some effect on them as well. It is a nasty business, Katherine, and although I am very glad to help you in every way I can, I wish you had not asked me to do this thing for you, because, if I do not succeed John will always have a feeling that I am in some way to blame. And if I do succeed it will perhaps make him feel as though you might have given him a chance at it. However, you may be sure I will do my best. Sincerely yours, Charles."

The Difference in Letters.

"Nothing could better show the difference between two men than their letters. John's commenced as a mere matter of form:

"My Dear Katherine: It is a good thing I came down here to this god-forsaken place. If I had not you would have been cheated out of your rightful share. There is a bunch of crooks here that I am going to put over the road before I get through with it. You see, they bought the property directly adjoining ours and in some way that I have not been able to fathom they have deflected most of the flow of oil to their own wells."

"We have gone over the entire ground carefully and I have found no piping yet. Of course I shall have to explain to you that our big well is on the very edge of our property, and of course they will not allow us to make any inspection of theirs. I think, however, that I have them thoroughly scared by now. Our well is running a little faster now. Last night, however, one of our detectives, in making an investigation, was shot in the arm from an ambush."

"No, I don't think I have. I am always expecting what he gave me so freely before marriage. Little confidences, little bits of thoughtfulness and little sympathetic speeches always. It hardly seems possible to me that a man can change."

"Why, my dear, John hasn't changed. As you see him now he has always been. The John who appeared to you before marriage was John camouflaged with the beautiful colors of a man in love."

"But I must leave you now and fix up my packing. I hate to leave you here alone because of your condition, which makes you more or less morbid."

"Don't mind me, Alice. I shall certainly be all right and I am going to try to get over my romantic foolishness. But, oh, I wish John would sometimes write me something like this." And I handed her the poem of Karl Sheppard.

Tomorrow—John Is In Charge.

This assures me more than anything else that there is crooked work. It is a good thing I came down here. Your cousin Charles is altogether too easy and I think by this time our holdings would be in the hands of the enemy if I had not arrived on the scene. I hope you are feeling better. I will keep you posted.

"Affectionately yours, JOHN."

"Nice letter for a woman to receive from her husband," I remarked casually as I folded it and put it in the envelope.

Alice Explains It.

"I think it is a nice letter," said Alice seriously, and as I looked at her in surprise, she said quickly:

"The trouble with you, Katherine, is that you never have seemed to have learned that a man can only be obsessed with one thing at a time. Just now John has thrown his whole life into straightening out your affairs."

"You notice he doesn't mention them as my affairs. He simply thinks of them as our affairs."

"That is the fine point," answered Alice. "If ever any person has charge of anything for you and looks on it as something he himself is interested in, to such an extent that he speaks of it as his, you may be sure your interest will be well taken care of."

"But he might at least have said 'I love you,' mightn't he, or am I silly to want him to say that?"

"No, my dear, you are just a woman to want him to say it, but also just a little silly to expect him to say it. It isn't John's way. In two years of marriage to him you have not learned this?"

"No, I don't think I have. I am always expecting what he gave me so freely before marriage. Little confidences, little bits of thoughtfulness and little sympathetic speeches always. It hardly seems possible to me that a man can change."

"Why, my dear, John hasn't changed. As you see him now he has always been. The John who appeared to you before marriage was John camouflaged with the beautiful colors of a man in love."

"But I must leave you now and fix up my packing. I hate to leave you here alone because of your condition, which makes you more or less morbid."

"Don't mind me, Alice. I shall certainly be all right and I am going to try to get over my romantic foolishness. But, oh, I wish John would sometimes write me something like this." And I handed her the poem of Karl Sheppard.

R. A. Booth On Bond Limit Measure

"The state highway commission is not asking for any more money," said R. A. Booth, commissioner, in addressing a Lane county audience on the 4 per cent road bond limit measure; "all we want is the power to capitalize the income now on hand. The state road funds are now taken from two sources—the one cent tax on each gallon of gasoline and the automobile license fees. The state constitution, as it now reads, prohibits more than 2 per cent being put into the roads, and that the commission wants in an amendment of this clause so 4 per cent can be put into the roads. A direct additional tax is not asked for, nor is any increase in the gas tax or auto license fees."

Mr. Booth also brought out that a new road program is not to be rushed through, but the present one is to be finished providing the voters of Oregon back up the 4 per cent limit measure.

Commissioner Simon Benson is also on record against rushing construction too rapidly, considering high labor costs and the high cost of money, but favors ratification of this 4 per cent bonding amendment so there will be authorization to issue bonds at such times as favorable conditions justify. Final control over actual bond authorization rests with the legislature, as unless the legislature passes enabling legislation under the 4 per cent amendment, the highway commission is without authority to issue bonds.

Cabaret Gives Sense of Intrigue

There is perhaps nothing which carries with it such a sense of intrigue and naughtiness as a cabaret scene, either when one is participating in the real thing, or merely watching it as a part of a stage play.

But cabaret scenes, with girls in short skirts, and twinkling toes, both in evidence, intermingled with the more sedate appearance of the diners, are universally popular, and no effort has been spared by the school pupils in preparing a restaurant scene in a fashionable cafe where dining and dancing are partaken of equally. The act will be presented Friday evening, May 14th, as a part of the vaudeville to be given in the H. S. auditorium.

The cast is as follows: Headwaiter, Ralph Buckingham; Waiters, John Dickens and Leslie Pettie; dinner party, Dorothy Eddy, Donald Parker, Iris Rice and Fred McMillan; sport, Vernon McKay; newlyweds from the country, Myrtle Hall and James McClintock; would-be swells, Mary Reams and Allan Wickham; cabaret dancer who gives solo dances, Mildred Slininger; chorus girls, Adele Bemis, Fernie Reyners, Florence Simont, Grace Carroll, Rosita Porter, Mary Franklin, Nova Lough, Mildred Mathews, Mildred Lough and Camille Patterson.

Another Royal Suggestion DOUGHNUTS and CRULLERS

From NEW ROYAL COOK BOOK

DOUGHNUTS made during the war and no wonder. There is nothing more wholesome and delightful than doughnuts or crullers rightly made. Their rich, golden color and appetizing aroma will create an appetite quicker than anything else in the world.

Here are the famous doughnut and cruller recipes from the New Royal Cook Book.

Doughnuts
2 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
1 egg
1 cup milk
1 teaspoon nutmeg
1 teaspoon salt
2 cups flour
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder

Cream shortening; add sugar and well-beaten egg; stir in milk; add nutmeg, salt, flour and baking powder which have been sifted together and enough additional flour to make dough stiff enough to roll. Roll out on floured board to about 1/4 inch thick; cut out. Fry in deep fat hot enough to brown a piece of bread in 60 seconds. Drain on unglazed paper and sprinkle with powdered sugar.

Afternoon Tea Doughnuts
2 eggs
4 tablespoons sugar
1/2 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon grated nutmeg

Cream shortening; add sugar gradually and beaten eggs; sift together flour, cinnamon, salt and baking powder; add milk and mix well; add milk and remainder of dry ingredients in floured board to about 1/4 inch thick and cut into strips about 4 inches long and 1/2 inch wide; roll in hands and twist each strip and bring ends together. Fry in deep hot fat. Drain and roll in powdered sugar.

Crullers
4 tablespoons shortening
1 cup sugar
2 eggs
2 cups flour
1 teaspoon cinnamon
1/2 teaspoon salt
4 teaspoons Royal Baking Powder
1/2 cup milk

Cream shortening; add sugar gradually and beaten eggs; sift together flour, cinnamon, salt and baking powder; add milk and mix well; add milk and remainder of dry ingredients in floured board to about 1/4 inch thick and cut into strips about 4 inches long and 1/2 inch wide; roll in hands and twist each strip and bring ends together.
