Officers Chamber Commerce Resign

...erly carry on the work. "All this could and has been done but not without many disappointments. We have been woefully short of funds. But still shorter of men. We have called meeting after meeting, where matters of extreme importance were to be considered, have spent hours and hours notifying members and endeavoring to secure their attendance, only to have two or three respond to our call. A successful Chamber of Commerce cannot be operated in such a manner. If the best work is to be done its members must respond to meeting calls and must take an interest in the affairs brought before the chamber. Had the members of this body been present at the meetings where this campaign was discussed, our present difficulty would not have occurred, and now tonight, when those who have opposed our work have succeeded, they are absent and do not offer suggestions as to how to continue. At the present time the progress we have made has brought us to the point where we need a great deal more money. We must have funds or else quit completely. We are doing so much and leaving so much undone that should we fail to keep going forward we must stop short. To raise more funds we must have a campaign of some sort. Our campaign has failed, we can do nothing more. If there is a way out then personally I stand ready to do anything within my power to assist and co-operate."

"It is no more than fair to Mr. Heinline that we accept his resignation," Mr. McClintock said in making the motion of acceptance. "When a man has given his whole time and energy, when he has made a supreme effort to put over what he believed to be best for the organization and for the city, and has met with such opposition as has been brought against Mr. Heinline, it is only right that we should allow him to resign, but it is with great reluctance that I make this motion." Mr. Heinline has served this Chamber of Commerce for years and during that time has not only given his time but also his money to the work. He has been paid a salary of $50 a month and he has added to this and turned it over to a stenographer. He has served without hope of remuneration merely because he had faith in the Chamber of Commerce just the same as the rest of us. I know that I express the sentiment of all present when I say that whatever the new officers propose that will in any way benefit the Chamber of Commerce they will find all of us ready and willing to co-operate with them. We may be through insofar as our offices are concerned but we will still be active in Chamber of Commerce affairs."

Other talks were made praising the work of Mr. Heinline and voicing the opinion that the Chamber of Commerce should not be neglected and the meeting was then adjourned. The resignations of the officers take immediate effect with the exception of that of Mr. Heinline, who remains in office until such a time as his reports can be completed and his accounts adjusted.

PROBING ONE BIG UNION PLAN STARTS

Committee of Public Welfare Takes Up the Task In New York.

APPOINTED BY WILSON

Many Individuals Volunteer Services to Prevent Tying Up of the Nation's Industries by Walk-outs and Strikes.

By Associated Press

NEW YORK, May 12.—An investigation of the "one big union of citizens" idea and its feasibility in protecting American communities during possible fuel or food famines during strikes is now under way by 10 members of the New York State Chamber of Commerce, recently appointed by the president of the organization as a "committee on public welfare."

Revolutionary labor upheavals and strikes designated as "outlaw" walk-outs by union officials and the employment of volunteer Americans in keeping the channels of communication and transportation open, are the object, it is said, of the chamber's present inquiry. The chamber for several weeks has been listing and classifying volunteers who, with no antagonism toward unions or partisan interests in labor quarrels, obligate themselves to operate motor trucks or do any other work necessary to keep the nation's commercial arteries open in times of stress. To prevent the "tying up" and throttling of whole communities, the committee has received hundreds of responses to blank questionnaires specifying the ability and equipment of the various volunteers. Their occupation, home addresses and telephone numbers, together with other similar data, are in possession of the committee which, in time of crisis, may be utilized.

The chamber at a recent meeting authorizing the appointment of the committee by President Alfred E. Marling, passed resolutions in which it said that "civilization is now menaced by false and distorted and political ideas and the public welfare demands that the men and women of the nation, who hold to high ideals of personal and political conduct, who believe in sound economic principles and in constitutional government, shall undertake more resolutely to fulfill their civic duties." The resolution further declared that "the structure of government and society as a whole" was imperilled by the interruption of the normal channels of communication and public service due to "an irresponsible minority of the population of the United States." It further stated that the duties of the committee on public welfare should be to draw up "a plan of organization and co-operation whereby the public may, by volunteer service, aid in maintaining the uninterrupted use of public utilities and assist the duly constituted authorities in preserving law and order."

Many interesting letters accompanied the applications of volunteers. A doctor who formerly was a telegraph operator offered his services in any capacity for "the maintenance of social equilibrium against the rebellious and misled small minority." He said "that the movement deserved the support of all right-minded citizens who are the backbone of the country."

A Russian refugee, a major-general in the former Russian army, "who has suffered the loss of everything I possessed through the Bolsheviks," said he felt in duty bound to offer his services. He wrote: "I am perfectly familiar with the beginning of the Bolshevik movement in Russia which started, as you know, with strikes, uprisings and the curtailment of food. I know thoroughly the Bolsheviks of other countries as well as Russia and their methods and, since I am the guest of America and everybody has been so very kind to me, I wish to do all in my power to help America."

A man, a consulting engineer, 67 years old, in "fair health and vigor," wrote: "I am fully in sympathy with your apparent theory that the way to combat 'outlaw' or even 'in-law' labor obstructions to public activities is to develop a strong and widespread sentiment among the masses of right-minded citizens against such labor disturbances. Also that the best way to develop this sentiment among right-thinking people is to permit them to take part in combatting lawlessness and to aid in the carrying on of public activities which may be interrupted by labor disturbances."

A lawyer whose enrolling his name "as a member of your organization which has for its purpose the preservation of the national life. No other country," he added, "gives to its citizens and others so large an amount of freedom and privilege as does America, yet many of those within our borders fail to appreciate that with liberty also comes responsibility toward others. It is high time that the true American citizen awakens to the conditions that threaten and rallies to the support of law and order."

The committee on public welfare is expected to make a report of its investigations and progress in the near future.

GAS SHORTAGE IS VERY SERIOUS

B. L. Hyland of Standard Oil Says They Are Trying to Supply Farmers.

ALL MUST CONSERVE

Should Be the Duty of Every Motorist to Curtail the Use of the Fuel Which is So Scarce at This Time.

The gasoline shortage in Roseburg and Douglas county is assuming serious proportions, according to B. L. Hyland, manager of the local agency of the Standard Oil Co., who has been trying day and night to secure additional shipments of the fuel to this section and has only partially succeeded. Late today the shortage became quite acute and several of the pumping stations were closed as a result. However, Roseburg is not the only city in the state suffering from the shortage. Virtually every part of the state faces the same situation and Hood river has only received one car load of gasoline which the officials say must last the residents of that section three weeks. The stock of gasoline in the Coos Bay towns has also been depleted. The local agency yesterday distributed a small amount of gasoline to local stations from the shipment received from Wyoming. Mr. Hyland received word today that two cars are en route here and should arrive tomorrow which will be good news to the many farmers throughout the county who are at the present time unable to work with their tractors and handle their crops.

"We receive many pitiful appeals for assistance," said Mr. Hyland this afternoon. "We are doing our level best to supply the farmers and others who must have the product to conduct their businesses. One farmer has written us for gasoline saying that he is over 50 years of age and that a mortgage is hanging over his farm. In order to meet the payments it is virtually necessary that he operate his tractor and put in his crops. Such appeals only go to show why those operating pleasure cars should conserve and assist us in stretching out the supply. Preference will be given farmers who demand gasoline for operating sprayers and tractors. Yesterday 257 tourists in autos passed through Roseburg. Nearly everyone of these cars filled up with gasoline here, stating that it was impossible to get any at Eugene. I would suggest that local stations only supply the Roseburg trade. Such action would make it possible for us to handle the situation more easily. We have telephoned to Portland and San Francisco numerous times within the last few days but get no satisfaction and it is up to every one to save the gas in the face of a more serious shortage."

"It has been intimated in case other oil companies could come in here the situation would be cleared up. I can only say that we would only be too glad for them to come in. It would relieve matters greatly. It is for that selfsame reason that Medford has plenty of gasoline, but they have already started to curtail the sale of it here. Northern California is also affected. Our books and records at this station will show any person in doubt as to whether or not we have a supply on hand. Those doubting the fact that we are short can call and inspect our tanks. The demand exceeds the supply in every instance."
