Roseburg, Oregon, May 15, 1929.

SUPERFLUITIES OF DISTRIBUTION.

A fellow who bought some men's furnishings the other day in a neighboring city, came home reporting that he was tired of paying for style.

It took nine pieces of paper product, counting the box and its cover as two pieces, to hold six collars. Every one of those pieces called for costly labor and stock, and nothing whatever was added to the value of the collars.

People realize these wastes perfectly, but it is hard to organize them to work against it. There should be a good chance for stores run on a more democratic basis, which should make substantial service instead of style and fussiness the motto.

The stores of Roseburg do run on that basis just as far as possible. But they have to conform to trade customs, and buy goods in the form in which they are distributed elsewhere.

RUNNING IN HARD LUCK.

A candidate for the office of commissioner of a certain county in Georgia is said to have filed the following itemized account of his expenses in the campaign:

Lost 1349 hours of sleep thinking about the election. Lost two front teeth and a whole lot of hair in a personal encounter with an opponent. Fed one beef, four shoats and five sheep to a county barbecue.

Service Men Should Record Discharges

The memory of Theodore Roosevelt is so cherished, that it may prove necessary to invent a new coin in order to give his rugged face a place of honor in daily life.

Of course anybody who doesn't view things as you do probably is either crooked or weak-minded, but did you ever think he's putting you in one of the same classes?

The difference between a man gossip and a woman gossip is that the man always says he "knows" something derogatory to another, and a woman merely says she has "heard" it.

Some people have talked so much about the mistakes of the government they will have no time to get out to the primaries and vote.

Profound satisfaction is felt by the people when the producers are asked a tax which they will pay by raising their prices.

The only apparent reason why the Sherman anti-trust law has remained on the statute books so long, is that no one has any idea what it means.

The boys who are anxious for muscular development are reminded of the splendid results they can get by mowing the lawn this summer.

The people who work only five days a week, are kicking hard about the scarcity of all the necessities of life.

The world doesn't expect much of you—just that you be human; and if you're not that you've no business in it.

Things in this world are not well balanced or it wouldn't be so much easier to lose money than to make it.

If you have a sense of humor that never fails, you're wealthy and don't know it.

Many a man claims to have the key to heaven—in his cellar.

Every profiteer is very indignant about all the other profiteers.

Money doesn't cause many sleepless nights, but the lack of it does.

The man who says he has no bad habits has at least one—lying.

Riddle is Joyous Over the Decision

The Riddle Enterprise, the booster publication of that thriving city has the following to say concerning the Pacific highway decision of Judge Shipworth:

The best news that has hit Riddle since the armistice was signed, came by phone at about eight o'clock yesterday morning when the Roseburg News-Review wired us the intelligence that Judge Shipworth had rendered his decision in the highway case, favoring this city.

For a few minutes there was as much excitement as on that other morning a year and a half ago. Ben Duffin was running around the streets, bareheaded, spreading the news. Elsie Logsdon was stopping tourists to inform them that they were on the highway "and we are free."

The telephones all over town were jingling to spread the news and Dave Crosby resurrected his white tie and ran the flag up over the hotel. Beals said "business as usual. I'm going to try to work anyway."

Frank Bramhall threatens to appeal because he lost a dollar on it. A tourist passing through stopped and asked a bystander if there wasn't a "still" around here somewhere. He had seen Judge Riddle dancing a hornpipe on the sidewalk.

A paper salesman happened along and said he was glad he got here early "because everybody was feeling good and he was getting his order book filled."

Dave Hughes has been flapping his wings and crowing like a rooster for the past 24 hours, but no one so far has seen the report from McGilvray. Maybe another bridge down.

E. A. Stacks says it looks so good to him he'll buy a flock of shares in the packing plant and urge everyone else to. G. E. Atkins is wearing a man's size smile and in fact everyone is happy.

Seriously, the decision is just as we expected it would be, and it comes at a time when it will make us all feel optimistic and want to get in on the packing plant stock. Then the electric lights, a new church, a community hall—well there are lots of things. The ball has started to roll—get your shoulder to it and "keep 'em going."

Hoors! Riddle is on the highway.
