LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

by the noted author

A GIFT FROM RUTH.

Have you been happier with your children than you were before?" I asked Ruth.

"I should have died when Bobbie had left me if it hadn't been for the children," she said.

"Then I am glad——"

"Katherine, you don't mean——"

For answer I held up the little baby cap I was making.

"Oh, I am so glad, so glad for you," said Ruth as she came over and kissed me. "You will say that you never knew what happiness was until you held your own baby in your arms. Notwithstanding I have been very unhappy and very lonely since Bobby left me, yet if I had to choose today between him and one of the children I would still choose the child. I presume," she continued, "that's why he left me for Helen, but I cannot help it. Why, when I think of little Bob showering caresses upon her ,I nearly go mad, although I have grown used to the thought of Helen as Bobby's wife. But I could never get used to the thought of Helen standing in the place of 'muvver' to little Bob."

"Perhaps you are different from most women."

Two Kinds of Women.

"They say there are two kinds of women. One who is all wife and one who is all mother."

Ruth bade me good-bye and again kissed me and congratulated me. She had hardly gotten home before she sent back to me a perfectly beautiful little baby frock with a note saying, "This, my dear, has been worn just three times, for the christening of each of my children. As I shall never have any more, I am sending it to you for the christening of your child, and I know you will be quite as happy with it as I am with my babies."

The tears dimmed my eyes so, as I looked over Ruth's gift, that for a few minutes I did not see an exquisite set of baby pins fastened to the back of the little slip. It was my first present and I was very, very happy.

All day long I sang and dreamed as I put in a myrid of little stitches on those tiny clothes. Then, when I was really too tired to sew any more, I walked toward the village to see if I could not meet the postman. I wanted a letter from John. I saw him coming toward me and I almost snatched the white missive from him and then my heart suddenly almost stopped as I recognized the handwriting. It was not from my husband. It was from Karl Shepard.

At first I thought I would not open it. I carried it between the thumb and forefinger of my hand, as though it were something I was afraid of. Once I dropped it, and as I stooped to pick it up my foot slipped and covered it with a dirty smudge.

Sounds Almost Symbolical.

It was almost symbolical. There was no reason why Karl Shepard should not write me a letter that was perfectly conventional. But after the poem that I had received from him I was not sure what his next impulse would be and I was afraid to make the discovery. I picked the letter up and this time I stuffed it into my pocket. I was determined not to read it until I returned home. But so conscious was I that it was there that I was constantly putting my hand in my pocket and pulling it out again quickly as I felt that crackling paper as though I had touched a red-hot coal. Smilingly I greeted my friends and it seemed to me that everyone in town was out and glad to see me. Many, many times I had to tell them that my husband, John, was down south.

"Looking after your oil wells eh?" said an old friend of my mother.

"You may be sure, Katherine, that neither your mother nor your father ever thought that land in Texas would ever bring in any money."

"Did you ever hear them speak about it," I asked.

"Many times," she answered. "You see your mother bought that ground thinking perhaps that she and your father would go down there and build a little house where they could stay winters for his health.

Land Was a Wilderness.

"But they found out the land was in a wilderness, you might say, and your father never ceased to tease your mother about her vast interest in real estate. I wonder what he would say now could he know those interests would make you rich, Katherine?"

"I am sure I do not know, Mrs. Jones, what he would say, but I am also sure those lands will never make me rich. Charles, you know, has just returned, and says the wells are pottering out."

"Oh, I am vry sorroy; I expect that's the reason your husband has gone down."

I nodded silently and passed on. I had forgotten the curiosity of people in small towns.

Tomorrow—Karl's Letter.

GOOD NEWS

Many Roseburg Readers Have Heard It and Profited Thereby.

"Good news travels fast," and the many thousands of bad luck sufferers in Roseburg are glad to learn where relief may be found. Many a lame, weak and aching back is bad no more, thanks to Doan's Kidney Pills. Our citizens are telling the good news of their experience with this tested remedy. Here is an example worth reading:

Mrs. L. T. Thompson, 325 West Washington St., Roseburg, says: 'My back was weak and lame and worse when I got up in the morning. My kidneys were congested and acted irregularly. The first few doses of Doan's Kidney Pills gave me great relief and it only took one box to cure me of the misery in my back and make my kidneys normal. I have never had any symptom of kidney trouble since."

Price 60c, at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mrs. Thompson had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Let Us Work This Out Together

Republicans, It Is Up to Us to Elect a President This Fall.

He Must Be the Biggest and the Soundest and the Most Effective American We Can Find.

Before Committing Yourself Consider These Facts:

Out of thirteen states, where the contest was between Wood and Johnson for the instruction of delegates to the Republican National Convention, the elections have been decided for Wood in nine.

Total Number of Delegates Pledged to Vote for Wood at Republican National Convention, 301

Since the narrowing down of the field, the situation is generally diagnosed as follows:

A vote for Hoover, for Lowden, or for Poindexter is a vote for Johnson.
