Improvements to Start Very Soon

Improvements to the North Umpqua fish hatchery will be started within a few days and will be rushed to completion at the earliest date possible. It is the intention of the commission as expressed by R. E. Clanton and A. H. Gerduff to make the North Umpqua renowned as a fishing stream and to do this the hatchery will be increased to care for a large number of steelhead salmon and trout.

Particular attention will be given to the propogation of game fish which will be released in large numbers to make the stream an ideal place for sportsmen. The Umpqua has a great advantage over many streams for this class of fish in the fact that its waters are always cold and of the proper temperature to keep the fish in a healthy condition.

The dam will be put in a few yards below the hatchery and will be of such a type that the fish can be handled and controlled by the superintendent of the hatchery. Arrangements will be made to take out a sufficient number of fish for propagation purposes and the remainder will be allowed to go up the river and spawn naturally.

The present method of control on the Umpqua river the commission has found, has resulted in a great increase in the number of game fish and it is expected that a still greater increase will occur in future years. The natural increase will be augumented by the increased capacity of the hatchery and the indications are that the Umpqua river will take first place among the sporting streams of the state.

NEW RULING ON TAXES.

Under a recent ruling by the treasury department the tax on toilet preparations and patent and proprietary medicines is based upon the selling price of each article and not upon the total price of a number of articles. If a person buys five packages of cough drops, a 1 cent stamp must be attached to each package. If a person purchases a tube of tooth paste for 35 cents and a bottle of perfume for 65 cents, a 2 cent stamp must be placed on the tooth paste and 2 cents on the perfume—a total of 5 cents. In other words, the tax is on each article and is not on the combined purchase price. This revokes a ruling previously made by the department.

PLANE RESCUES CHICKEN.

During the airplane flight here Sunday, a small Plymouth Rock chicken was being carried through the air by a large hawk which on being over taken by the airplane dropped the chicken in its fright, which came struggling through the intervening space for mother earth and finally landed on Fifth street safe and sound, and is now the cherished property of an Albany boy, says the Albany Democrat.

JOHN RETURNS.

"Well, I said to Charles as he hesitated, "What do you mean by that 'but?' When people hesitate after saying 'but' I always know they are going to say something very disagreeable or very interesting."

"I mean just this, Katherine. I believe that almost all the incompatibility between you and your husband is caused by John's peculiar ideas about money. You are always laboring under a sense of injustice because of it and now you have some money of your own and you will be happier, and so will John, in the long run, if you will just keep it for yourself."

"But, Charles, John knows that I have that $2500. I think he would never forgive me if I did such a thing."

"Then you might say to him that now there was no more use of him having the power of attorney and consequently you had told your banker not to honor anyone's checks but your own."

"That would be worse yet. I think if John knew that I had even told you how matters stand between us on the money question he would leave me immediately."

"Isn't it strange how much trouble either money or the lack of it makes in this world?"

"People who love each other dearly become estranged over money questions and lose much more in losing friendship than they could possibly gain with all the money that caused the trouble. I have seen families broken up—and made strangers over a few paltry dollars. I believe one of the greatest causes of unhappiness between husband and wife is money."

"The more I thought of what Charles had said the more I determined to keep the $2500 to myself. Now that I know the baby is coming, I know that I shall need, or at least I shall think I need, little things that John will insist I can get along without and this will hurt my feelings and make me angry.

I am quite sure that Charles is right.

I did not tell him so, however. We talked of other things, but when he left to find out when the train would be in on which I expected John I called up the bank and asked them if they had a safety deposits box vacant. They said the had and I put on my hat and went down immediately, taking with me a number of pieces of jewelry as an excuse for renting the box. Then I said: "I think I will close out my checking account for a while, as I want to make an investment," and I drew a check for the $2500 I had remaining and put it in the safety deposit box.

On the way home I met Charles, who said we had just time to go to the train on which he thought John was coming, and we walked over to the station.

Gruff and Uncomfortable.

Sure enough, there was John standing on the steps as the train drew in. He waved his hand at us, but I noticed he was looking very gruff and uncomforable.

"I didn't expect you. How did you know I was coming on this train?" he asked. He did not wait for a reply, neither did he offer to kiss me. I put out my hand half way, but as he did not notice it I pulled it back again. Quickly he turned to Charles. "That was a smart piece of business those crooks tried to pull off, wasn't it, Goodwin? And we all fell for it. It seems to me that any old fool might have known that if oil had been found on Katherine's land we would have heard something about it before her mother died. I guess we were all bitten by the get-rich-quick bug and I didn't stop to look into it very deeply. I'll tell you it's taught me a lesson. I am going to stick to my own business after this, and I give you fair warning, Katherine, that I won't turn a hand over or say "boo" in regard to it if somebody leaves you a million."

"Yes, you would, dear. If I had any money tomorrow you would want the managment of it."

Lots to Talk About.

"I'm quite sure," interrupted Charles as he noticed John frown, "that you people will be glad to excuse me. You must have a lot of things to talk to each other about."

"No, we haven't, Goodwin; come on up to the house," said John.

I felt my lips tremble and hoped that Charles was not looking at me and I was very glad when he said, "I'll come up later. I haven't been a bachelor all these years without learning that there are things married people like to talk about without the handicap of a third party."

Carnival Visitors Will See Snakes

In one of Foley & Burke's numerous circus side shows is Big Ben. Ben is only an Amazon Anaconda, but he is a celebrity nevertheless. If Ben could stand on the tip of his tail he could rest his head on the top of a telegraph pole, and the press agent solemnly swears, this is no snake story:

In the museum at Kinsington, England, may be seen the stuffed skin of the largest Anaconda of which there is an authentic record. It measures 29 feet. Ben falls but a few inches short of this measurement, so it is safe to say that he is the largest reptile in captivity. Anacondas of less than his size, have been known to kill deer and even oxen, with their deadly coil.

Foley & Burk will be here with the Roseburg Strawberry Carnival for five days and nights starting on Tuesday, May 25th, at the Catholic school grounds, opposite the armory, which has been donated to the Strawberry Carnival committee, as has been done in years gone by.

The big parades will start next Tuesday evening about 6:45 through the business district of Roseburg, then back to the show grounds where the big time of the week will start.

ANNOUNCEMENT.

Commencing Saturday, May 22, the Roseburg Cafeteria and Restaurant will be open from 6 a. m. to 10 p. m.

Harry Seigel, who has had an S. P. run out of Roseburg since 1894, will move to Yaquina the first of the week. For more than 20 years Mr. Seigel has been on the job winter and summer, and stated this morning that he was making the transfer just for a change. He will have a run out of Yaquina, as he does not expect to quit railroading.
