Improvement Club Has Fine Meeting

The Garden Valley Improvement Club held their second annual May Festival at the home of Mrs. Peter Sinclair on May 13, which consisted of a mid-day dinner at 1 o'clock and entertainment, after which the usual business meeting was conducted. Mrs. Sinclair's house had an air of spring, flowers being seen everywhere, and the long table at which eighteen members were seated had a beautiful centerpiece of flowers surrounded by twelve different dishes prepared by the members.

At the business meeting it was voted to have this an annual affair of the club, last year being the first of the kind.

The entertainment consisted of impromptu flower verses, some vocal solos of spring by Mrs. Brand, and crowning the queen, Mrs. Hugh Ritchie, who was chosen for the part. Mrs. J. D. Young was asked to crown the queen, and she did so, repeating the following verses which she composed for the occasion:

There have been queens of England and queens of Greece,
Queens in war and queens in peace,
Queens of Egypt and queens of Rome,
But the truly great queens are the queens of the home.
There's the huge superdreadnaught, the queen of the seas,
And tiniest insect, the queen of the bees,
There are queens of song and queens of stage,
And historic queens in a tragic rage,
But worthier queens than those of archives,
Are the everyday queens—just mothers and wives."

The next meeting of the club will be held in two weeks from then, May 27, at the home of Mrs. John Sinclair.

Sewing Club Has Best Record

What is perhaps the best record in the United States for a school girls' sewing club has been accomplished by the Canyonville sewing club, of which Mrs. A. L. Miller is the leader. The club is the largest one to go on record for 100 per cent in this state, and is the fifth to finish its work in Douglas county this year. Seven of the members are at the present time taking the second year in sewing, having completed division 1 of sewing last year. Much credit is due Mrs. Miller, as well as the members, as they have all worked together for the best interests of the club, and have kept their enthusiasm unflagging. The members of the club are: Ada Coop, Merle Grove, Mildred Fullerton, Dorris Mulvihill, Clara Applegate, Echo Pardee, Erma Miller, May Talbot, Juanita Miller, Doris Bartley, Zella Hyde, Thelma Moss, Myrtle McCoy, Wilma Talbot, Marie Morgan, Naoma Winn, Dorothy Davis, Estelle Morgan, Lillian Perdue, Anna Perdue, Elsit Pardee.

Local History Recalled by Visitor

An interesting bit of local history is recalled by H. T. McClallen, who is visiting here from Marshfield. This is in connection with the old-time Marks building, which was recently re-occupied for business purposes. In the pioneer days all taxes were paid in cash (gold or silver) as well as payments in business transactions. Likewise the state taxes were paid in cold, which had to be transported to Salem, as banks were extremely scarce.

Mr. McClallen recalls the instance when John Orth was treasurer of Jackson county and came here by stage with that county's quota of state tax, being several thousand dollars in coin. There being no bank here at that time he placed the money in the Marks safe over night. Next morning the deposit was missing, the safe having been burglarized during the hours of darkness. There were a number of Chinamen in Roseburg at that time and suspicion pointed to the Celestials as the guilty parties. These were rounded up and questioned, but all firmly asserted their innocense. Finally one Chinaman who was believed to have full knowledge of the robberey was taken in hand and hurried to within the high enclosure around the barn north of the McClallen hotel. A noose was placed around his neck and the end thrown over a projecting pole or timber. He was drawn clear of the ground for a minute or two but when let down still protested that he "no sabbe" in regard to the robbery. The process was repeated with still longer periods of suspension. With returning breath he still insisted that he "no sabbe." Fully convinced that he was lying, the crowd hauled him up again and kept him there until his tongue protruded—in fact he was so long in reviving that the party had about concluded that they had finished the job so far as that Chinaman was concerned. However, he was finally revived and he then manifested a willingness to tell what he knew. He guided the party to a secluded spot between the Deer creek trestle and the big railway cut below town and showed them where the loot was buried.

The entire sum was recovered and the wily Chinese were given terms in the state prison. Quick justice was meted out in those days, no matter whether the perpetrators were white or yellow—nor was time always taken to appeal to the courts.

Merchants to Fight H. C. L.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 20.—The problem of profiteering in drygoods will form the principal topic of discussion when department store owners of the Pacific coast meet the merchant princes of the east and Great Britain in San Francisco June 2 and 3 for the first western convention of the National Retail Drygoods association.

The gathering will mark the first concerted attempt by the leading merchants of the country to attack the high cost of living as it relates to their industry. An urgent invitation has been dispatched to prominent dealers throughout the west by Marshal Hale, vice-president of the national organization, to attend the coming convention.

"This is the first time the National Drygoods association has met in the west," said Mr. Hale, "and the San Francisco convention will offer merchants of all the Pacific coast cities an exceptional opportunity to get in touch with the leaders of the industry from the east."

The drapers' western itinerary includes: Denver, May 24; Colorado Springs, May 24; Salt Lake City, May 28; Ogden, May 29; San Francisco, May 30; Los Angeles, June 5; Oakland, June 12; Portland, June 13; Seattle, June 15; Vancouver, June 16.

While in San Francisco the convention delegates will be entertained by the San Francisco Drygoods association and various commercial bodies.

Will Study at Agricultural College

CORVALLIS, May 22.—A. Kikuchi, director of the agricultural experiment station at Hodogaya, Yokohama, Japan, writes Dean A. B. Cordley, of the school of agriculture, that he expects to become a student at O. A. C.

"It is very honorable to Japanese student to study pomology in your institution," he writes. "I will be obedient to customs of your country and endeavor not to give you a trouble on my account."

Mr. Kikuchi was scheduled to leave for America May 14. After traveling in southern California he will visit Superintendent Frank C. Reimer at the Talent branch experiment station for several weeks. Superintendent Reimer met Mr. Kikuchi when on his recent trip to the Orient. Mr. Kikuchi was directed to come to this country by the Japanese government to study horticulture, and he chose O. A. C.

Should be Holy Day Not Holiday

The following editorial taken from the American Legion Weekly plainly shows the spirit of the ex-service man and his attitude towards the observance of Memorial day, May 30th:

Up to three years ago, Memorial day had deteriorated from the consecration of its origin into little more than a day off. To most people—certainly to most of us of the younger generation—it stood principally for a morning and an afternoon game instead of the customary single performance.

In 1917 a change began to be noted. Over the thirtieth of May brooded an air of suspense, of foreboding, for America had embarked on the high emprise of war, and none might say how much blood would be shed before the anniversary came again. Nineteen eighteen saw the spirit intensified; close at hand came the real days of our ordeal by fire on the heels of Chateau Thierry, and last year the full toll of a hundred thousand lives had been taken.

The army of 1918 is home now, ready and willing to bestow on its departed comrades whatever meed of devotion is fitting and proper. For some of us this Memorial day of 1920 will hold a sacredness that no anniversary that has gone before could hope to hold. For others it will be just another holiday—another day off.

What rule shall we follow? How shall we act? What sort o fconduct will people expect of us—of us who fought beside this gold-starred legion of the hundred thousand?

It is a question for everyone of us to answer individually. We cannot look to the veterans of the civil war for a close parallel. For their dead lay in home cemeteries, close at hand, and ours lie scattered in three continents. Here at home we cannot stand beside the resting place of a comrade who was killed in action.

We know, of course,, what every man among the thirty thousand in Romagnewould say if he could speak to us. "What? Go around looking mopey on my account? Say, buddy, you just run out into the sand lots and have a good time."

For once, it would be well for us to disregard that unexpressed order. Memorial day is not all for the dead! It is the day on which we revolve in our hearts not so much the thought of them, but of what they died for. And what they died for is what we live for.

MAY FESTIVAL.

The junior class at the high school sponsored an entertainment at the high school Saturday evening in honor of the seniors. It was in the nature of a May festival, and every feature was most unique. The gymnasium had been decorated and arranged to resemble a woodland bower, and settee and Japanese lanterns carried out the natural effect. A clever program, that was original in every detail, and a dainty luncheon was served.
