

150 Shaves!

Every tube of Purola Shaving Cream contains the "makin's" for about 150 cool, satisfying shaves. Each particle of cream multiplies itself hundreds of times with water.

We waited years before we put out a "Purola" Shaving Cream. We were not satisfied to put the "Purola" name and guarantee on record until we had a cream that represented a real improvement.

Now, make this test! Take a several days growth of beard—those boasting of tough, wiry beards, especially invited. Use hot water and a pinch or so of Purola Shaving Cream. Sixty seconds of lathering and you'll have the face covered with the creamiest, softest lather a man could want. It'll retain its creaminess without replacing until you've been over the face, and leaves a comfortable, exhilarating impression that lasts long after you shave.

Get a tube at your druggist's. Try it tomorrow, and if Purola Cream doesn't do what we say, the trial is on us. That's our guarantee.

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idaho McGlone Gibson

JOHN WANTS MONEY.

"I'm glad he's gone," said John as Charley left us.

"Why, you told him you'd like to have him stay," I said.

"Well, he bores me to death, I'd have never gone down to the oil fields if you had gotten someone, in whom I had confidence, to take care of your business."

"You wrote me from down there that Charles had done as well as anyone could do."

"Yes, I think he did," said John reluctantly. "But he's too suave, too gentle—I like to talk and act straight from the shoulder when I do business."

"Does it seem to get you any further than Charles' way?"

"Oh, I don't know. But I do know this, that his way always lets the other fellow think he's putting it over on you and I don't want any man I'm doing business with to think that."

"Isn't that a little egotistical, John?" I asked. "Sometimes I am not sure but that it helps a business to let the other man think he is getting something over on you. I would rather put a deal through as you call it than to rub the other man the wrong way and lose out."

"I don't very often lose out, Katherine," said John sulkily.

"I wasn't speaking of you in particular, John, but I do hate to have you prejudiced against Charles just because his method is different from yours."

"Well, I don't believe he has ever made any money in his life. He's done well if he's been able to keep what his father left him."

"That's where you're mistaken, John. The estate that Charles' father left him was very much encumbered and he's taken it out of debt and is worth probably a quarter of a million dollars now."

"Good Lord, he's very modest about it! I wouldn't think he had a quarter million cents, except that he spends money rather generously if unostentatiously."

"I'll bet, John, that Charles knows exactly how much money you've got."

"No, he doesn't," exclaimed John somewhat ruefully, "because I haven't got enough to talk about. I've been plunging on the market lately more than I should and I dropped a lot of money within the week. And then I had that house on my hands you know, Katherine. By the way, another payment is coming up day after tomorrow. I promised to pay them $5000 a month until it was paid for, you know."

"I didn't think anything of the kind, John—you didn't tell me anything about it. How long before the house will be paid for at that rate?"

Cost Was $75,000. "It cost me $75,000 and I gave them $15,000 down—the balance in $5000 payments."

"But John, I don't think we should own a $75,000 house."

"My dear, I expected you to be a millionairess and, as such, we should have the finest house in town, of course."

"How much money have you already paid on the house, John?"

"Twenty-five thousand dollars."

"Well, I expect we'll have to live in it," I said with a sigh.

"We won't live in it," said John gloomily. "If I am not able to make the next payment, how much money have you got in the bank?"

"None."

"But, Katherine—you had $5000 in there the other day."

"I had $10,000, my dear John, and you drew out $5000 as you said to pay up some debts down at the oil fields."

"I paid that $5000 on the house. Charles had paid up all the oil field debts when I arrived."

"But John, I don't want Charles to pay out his money for us."

"I told him not to be a fool," said John uneasily, "but he said that he was your only relative and he was anxious to save you any trouble. I told him to send the bill in to us and we would pay it as soon as we could."

Reason Becomes Apparent. Now I knew the reason why Charles had told me not to let John have the rest of my money, and I more than ever determined to keep that last $2500.

"What did you do with the money you have been making lately?" I asked in return.

"That has nothing to do with the case. But I can't see where you would have a chance to spend so much money."

"That has nothing to do with the case," I said.

Tomorrow—John's Thoughtlessness.

GLENDALE NEWS.

It is with an assurance of permanent prosperity that we enjoyed an early morning walk about the city. The morning being ideal, with sunshine and the crisp air blending into an invigorating elixir, conducive to health and insuring perfect enjoyment, we note that every available house is occupied and many new people, who are preparing to build—while they occupy tents or camp near their cars—under the shade of the trees.

We have a welcome for them all; here is employment of many kinds for all who need it. Men are needed at two of our nearby mills. Tourists with heavily laden cars; pleasure seekers in cars of every degree of workmanship, are coming and passing on the whole of the live-long day, and we pause to reflect on the sudden decline in real estate and oil kinds of business that occurred 14 years ago. We are just beginning the new era of permanent and positive prosperity in which we all can seek together for a bigger and a better city. Our war slogan was "over the top" and our aim that one year, hence our population will be 5000 permanent residents with good sidewalks and homes that are made attractive by our progressive people.

Our public schools are closing a very successful year under Prof. E. K. Harkness and an eminent corps of teachers of which we are pleased to speak. Our Sabbath schools are well attended, and our church bells ring out a joyful invitation to all newcomers. Rev. J. W. Knott, an eminent minister after 60 years in the pulpit, is serving as pastor until the change of positions is settled. A splendid attendance is increasing each week. Our city officials are very tireless in looking after their social work. All lines of trade is represented here and prospering. Our newspaper is improving along all lines, mechanically and intellectually, and financially. Cause: Campbell, who is a caustic and careful writer is "on the job." Say folks, he knows just how to make the Glendale News popular and interesting. We are enjoying a tidal wave of prosperity, so let us all remember our war slogan, "Over the top" for a large city and everybody happy.

Last week it was our privilege to go to Roseburg via the old stage route of 30 years ago. In every place we noted the splendid developments of our natural resources and the increasing population of all cities along the road, and the highway-men, they never stop their splendid work. We do not know by observation whether they ever take time to sleep or eat, but we do know their work is artistic, durable, beautiful. And we did note, those "highway-men" are an intelligent and very handsome aggregation of typical Oregon manhood.

Mark Tisdale, of Sutherlin, was a Roseburg visitor Saturday, coming from his home on the morning train.

CASTORIA For Infants and Children In Use For Over 30 Years

Always bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher

Prof. H. D. Scudder, head of the farm management bureau of the Oregon Agricultural college, who has been spending a few days in Douglas county, returned to Corvallis Saturday morning. Prof. Scudder is also general superintendent of the Oregon Land Settlement commission, and has been investigating land settlement conditions in this county. According to a statement made by him Saturday morning he is of the opinion that there is an excellent opportunity here to promote land settlement, and he will interest the commission in this part of the country. He is also examining locations and the advisability of locating a model farm, for experiment purposes, near Roseburg. These farms are managed under the direction of the agricultural college, and several have already been established. He stated that nothing definite concerning the location had been decided as yet, and would not be until he made his report.

BABY NAMED LYDIA E.

Because Her Mother Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I could not write all my thanks for your blessed medicine, Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I was in a very bad condition and had lost two babies. One of my good friends told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after I had taken eight or ten bottles I felt like a different woman. I kept on taking it until my baby girl was born last month and we have had her christened Lydia Elizabeth. I wish you to publish my letter to benefit other women who are suffering as I was."—Mrs. KATHERINE KNECHER, 1050 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Women who suffer from any feminine ailment should not lose hope until they have tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough for women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.
