LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

By the noted author
Idah McGlone Gibson

MY BABY.
Charles told me one of the telegrams from John, consequently the doctor, thinking John had not received the wire he saw me send, asked Charles to telegraph again.

"Mr. Goodwin," said Hannah afterward, "insisted that the doctor write the telegram himself, or at least dictate it to be signed in his name. Then Charles took it to the telegraph office."
This brought a wire from John's secretary saying, "Mr. Gordon is out of town on business. I am not quite sure just where he is at this moment. He told me that business might take him to three different cities. I have relayed the wire to him at these three places, but doubt the possibility of his being able to get to his wife in less than thirty-six hours."

Exactly Like Him.
It was exactly like John Gordon to think when he received my telegram that I was not really ill; that I had sent him the wire because, as he expressed it, "I wanted to make up" it was exactly like him to discount all I implied in the telegram, describing it to himself as a woman's whim and start out of town without making definite plans so that a wire would reach him quickly in case of necessity. John's absolute cockiness and belief in himself and that "the whole world must rally around him, in perhaps his greatest fault."

His telegram brought consternation into the house where I was lying mercifully unconscious of it all. For the doctor at this time had despaired of my life and another telegram was sent to the office with this information. Hannah told me afterwards that Charles was like an insane man. "It was the first time," she said, "that I have ever seen Mr. Charles taken out of his calm, but he certainly did curse, and curse awfully. I almost believe that something terrible would have happened if Mr. Gordon had been able to make his appearance within the next 12 hours."
Too Weak to Speak.
It was many hours before I awoke to consciousness. For a moment I had no feeling except the blessed realization of surcease from pain and then I raised my eyelids and although I was too weak to ask the question the nurse understood, and with a smile she went to the door and brought to me my baby.

Poets have lamented the inadequacy of words to describe the ecstasy of love's first kiss, and as I lay there too weak to move, too weak to even put my arm closer around the little bundle which the nurse had put within my clasp, I knew that no word spoken by human tongue could express my emotion. Only a woman who has felt this greatest of all thrills, when her first born is placed within her arms can know my feelings at this time. Well can it be said to be woman's crowning glory, and as I felt the warmth of the little body close to me and looked down into the tiny face I knew that at last I had come to realize what love meant. I closed my eyes again.

"Isn't she sweet?" asked the nurse. I opened my eyes in surprise and perhaps a little consternation crept into them.
Out of Her Thoughts.
Until this moment I had not thought to ask whether my baby was a girl or a boy—and until this moment John had been absolutely out of my thoughts. My baby had usurped everything. It had been my world from which all else was shut out. But at hearing the pronoun "she" I visualized John looking down at us there—his mouth curled in that little crooked smile I had so often seen. His face half satirical, half contemptuous.

I could almost hear him say, "Oh, it's a girl, is it?"
A little shudder ran from my head to my feet as I realized how keen would be his chagrin and knew that he would feel that this would seem to be the climax of all the disappointments I had caused him. He would never for a moment remember that I was not to blame and doubt in his heart he would hold it against me and feel that in some way I had tried and succeeded in thwarting him in his ambition for a son.

WILL ADJOURN FRIDAY.

WASHINGTON, May 31.—A tentative agreement to adjourn congress sine die on Friday next was reached today by the republican leaders of the senate and house.

Members of the conference committee said that with a recess impending the disagreement means there will be no river and harbor appropriations this year.

CONVICT IS CAUGHT.

SALEM, May 31.—Frank Maese, a convict who escaped from the state penitentiary wood camp near Aumsville last Saturday, was apprehended at Jefferson early today by the town marshal of that place. Maese is a Cuban who was sentenced for five PACKERS PREPARE FOR IMMENSE PRUNE CROP.

EUGENE, June 1.—Manager J. O. Holt, of the Eugene Fruit Growers' association, returned the last of the week from a trip to Sheridan and Dallas, where he went to look after the construction of new prune plants and driers. He states that in spite of the big freeze of last December, which destroyed whole orchards in the north part of the valley, there will be an immense crop of prunes in western Oregon, and in anticipation of this they are putting up new plants at Sheridan, Forest Grove, Myrtle Creek, Riddle, Grants Pass and Carleton, in addition to that at Dallas.

The plant at Eugene has just shipped a mixed car of canned goods to San Francisco, and several more are being prepared for shipment during the next few days, one of them to go as far east as Boston.

CONFERENCE IS CALLED.

PORTLAND, June 1.—Representatives from each of eighty-seven American Legion posts in Oregon will meet in Portland June 12 to clean up existing chains of former service men against the government before July 1. The conference was decided upon yesterday by William B. Follett, state commander of the Legion.

"We want every ex-service man in the state, disabled or otherwise, to get every benefit that is due him from the government by reason of existing provisions relative to vocational training, compensation and insurance," said Follett.

A banquet at one of the leading hotels the night of June 12 is planned by the state committee in honor of the guests, with automobile trips on the Columbia river highway the Sunday following.

Better co-operation in the handling of state affairs for the American legion will be sought at the meeting, and appointment of vocational training officers in all posts will be asked.

HUMBERT LEAVES FOR EAST.

EUGENE, June 1.—Harold H. Humbert, formerly of Eugene, who has resigned as general secretary of the Oregon Sunday School association, has left for the east. A new secretary is to be elected by the secretarial committee which includes Elton Shaw, A. A. Morse and Dr. S. Earl Du Bois. Miss Georgia Parker is associate secretary and will have temporary charge of the field work under direction of William Moll Case, of Eugene, and Charles A. Rice, of Portland, the present president and chairman of the executive committee.

Mr. Humbert has been with the association for the past two years. His schedule for the summer includes speaking engagements at state conventions in North Dakota and Iowa, county conventions in Minnesota and instructorships at training schools conducted by the International Sunday School association at Lake Geneva, Wis., and Lake Winnepesaukee, New Hampshire.

WHEAT CONTROL ENDS.

WASHINGTON, June 1.—Federal control of wheat and wheat products ended today, the wheat director ceasing to function under limitation of the law creating the office, and the food administration control ending by proclamation of the president.

FAVORS EQUAL SUFFRAGE.

CHICAGO, June 1.—On motion of Coleman Dupont, of Delaware, the republiation national committee today unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon the republican states which have not done so, to pass the woman's suffrage constitutional amendment.

SUGAR SOARS HIGH.

SAN FRANCISCO, May 31.—A price of $26.30 a hundredweight was declared by the California-Hawaiian Sugar Refining company here today for its latest allotment, the new price being a raise of $2.95 over the previous figure. Jobbers and retailers profit rules imposed by the United States attorney general would mean a price to the consumer of 25 to 30 cents a pound in the San Francisco bay region. Elsewhere the freight from the San Francisco seaboard will be added to the charges.

Recently H. Clay Miller, chairman of the federal trade commission here, announced that this raise would be the last one and that future allotments of sugar were due to be sold at a decreased price.
