

Don't Tie a String to it

Surely not, if it is a bandage over a wound. A surgeon does not tie with strings—neither should you. He uses our

ADHESIVE TAPE

So should you. It holds without slipping. It does not interfere with the circulation. It is a good thing to have in the house.

GLENDALE NEWS.

A refreshing shower of rain commenced falling last night and continued until the present hour—and still it rains. A delightful coolness pervades the air and everybody is enjoying the showers that are general over Oregon, and will add untold wealth along many lines to our unequalled resources, we have no doubt. As usual, our state always gets the showers in due time to insure excellent crops and enhance our interests, and offer new inducement to the great influx of new comers who are arriving by thousands to make permanent homes in Oregon.

Mr. and Mrs. Grant Levons, of Walla Walla, arrived in this city ten days ago to visit their daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Hanks in this city, and other relatives, and many old friends. They are natives of Douglas county and for many years lived at the Asatola river farm, where Mr. Levons was born. Mrs. Levons is a native of Roseburg, where they will visit relatives as they return to their home. We would all welcome their return to us permanently, yet fate has decreed otherwise, and we wish them peace and continued prosperity wherever their lot is cast. They represent the highest order of excellent Christian citizenship and pioneer manhood and womanhood.

Born in this city June 4th, to Mr. and Mrs. Carter, a son.

Wedding bells rang out the sweet acclaim, announcing the marriage of two of our popular young people on June 8th, at Roseburg, Rev. Keany officiating. Miss Doris Gillons, of our public schools, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Bert Gillons of this

CHARLES' REQUEST.

Tears of gratitude filled my eyes. This splendid request, added to the some which mother had left me and the little $150 a month income, would make it impossible for any man to make Mary as unhappy over money matters as John had made me.

I wondered what John would think about it. And then I smiled to myself because I understood that however he might feel about Charles giving it to Mary, the thought of having an extra $25,000 in the family would make him good natured.

I was not sure, however, that I would tell him, and then the thought came to me how far I had gone along the road since the time I thought I must tell my husband everything. When I first married there was no matter of conduct—myself or the house—that I did not want to consult John about, and then I found that he never gave me any constructive advice whatever, that he either found fault with me or was bored, consequently I decided to tell John very little.

Grows Tired of Thinking.
I grew tired of thinking about it all and decided that I would never again cross a bridge until I came to it. One by one my experiences were making me philosophical and teaching me that impulse and emotion could not be the only motives in life.

The nurse came forward and I turned a little impatiently—not from my baby, but from my thoughts. She gently lifted the tiny form and put her in a darling basket which Helen had sent me. I then turned to the letter—the thick letter which I was still holding in my hand.

"Shall I open it for you?" asked the nurse.

"If you please," I answered.

She ran the paper knife through the flap and handed it to me. With a curious, pleasurable feeling I drew the thick folded pages from the envelope—the letter I had seen written in my waking dream some time before.

"I know, my dear Katherine," the letter began, "that it is folly—utterly—folly—for me to spend this interval in my life as I am doing now. Truly I think I could label it as Mary Roberts Rinehart has one of her stories—'The Amazing Interlude'—for it is amazing that I, Karl Shepard, can leave behind all thought of business—all thought of other friends—all thought of anything in my life—and stay out here in the solitude living to the utmost what must always be nothing but a dream. It is night, my dear, and the wind that scarcely shakes the flapping sails is like a cold, heated wall.

Sheeted, Mysterious Forms.

"As I drift along past the city I have a hazy vision of sheeted, mysterious forms, huddled together here and there against vague habitations, while overhead the date palms creak and moan as they brush their branches against the gale, unhappy moon. Over there comes into view the squat minaret of a queer old mosque, and I can almost hear the mournful call of the pigeons resting on its eaves.

"Since I saw you last, dear Katherine, I have had much time to think of you—nothing else has seemed to matter. Nothing seems real to me—rather I feel as though I were the only living thing in a painted world wherein disports a queer kind of marionettes, like gnats in a sunbeam.

"During the day in this far-off land I see through half-shut eyes within the mystic gloom of deep set arches where sit the ever present attendants—chanting, chanting his walling cry for alms. Here and there amid splashes of almost blinding light and through amber shadows, under brilliant canopies, one gets a glimpse of like bits of ruby glass—like opals—pink, purple, blue—gleaming in the sun.

Olores Are Indescribable.
"The odors are indescribable. The taint of sweating animals; the bitter tangling smell of coffee and the clinging oriental scent of coriander assail the nostrils with something almost visible. All seem to add to the pitiless heat and accentuate my gaunt loneliness.

"I do not know just why I am staying here, my dear Katherine, unless it is that when at last the sky clamps down its purple spanned lid upon this scorching great brass bowl filled with quivering creeping, restless bits of fotsam and jetsam, I close my eyes and then—can you believe it—I am with you—I feel your face; I look into your eyes—I feel your very presence, although you are at the other end of the earth. What madness is this—what utter madness!"

Tomorrow—Karl's Surprising Letter.

STAGE CARS GO THROUGH.

Two big Packard cars which are to run on the Pickwick stage line between San Francisco and Portland, passed through Roseburg last night. Roseburg was made a stopping place for the evening meal and the stages will operate so that the passengers will stop for at least an hour in this city. These two big cars are going over the road to acquaint the drivers with conditions and at the present time are making a trial trip. They went on to Eugene last night and it is expected that the stages will operate on a regular schedule soon.

SHOULD DISPLAY FLAGS.

It has been requested by the committee in charge of the Flag Day observance next Sunday that all local residences and business houses display the American flag on that day. Everyone has been urged to join in this celebration and the big parade on Sunday afternoon led by the Roseburg band will be followed by exercises in the Elks' lodge room.

CONFIRMED PROOF

Residents of Roseburg Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for relief from aches and ails of bad backs—from distressing kidney ills—thousands have purchased Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Roseburg, who so testified years ago, now say the results were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Roseburg kidney sufferers.

A. J. Carman, railroad conductor, 416 S. Pine St., Roseburg, says: "So much riding, no doubt, affected my kidneys and caused a dull ache in the small of my back. I used Doan's Kidney Pills with the very best of results."

AFTER THREE YEARS Mr. Carman said: "I know Doan's are reliable. Whenever I need a kidney remedy Doan's Kidney Pills do the work."

Price 50c. at all dealers. Don't simply ask for a kidney remedy—get Doan's Kidney Pills—the same that Mr. Carman had. Foster-Milburn Co., Mfrs., Buffalo, N. Y.

Schedule Changed—
The schedule on second 13, has been changed from 5:25 a. m. to 6:25 a. m., according to announcements from S. P. headquarters.

Will be Home Sunday—
Mrs. C. S. Heintline will return Sunday from Portland, where she has been taking a much needed rest. On account of her health she will probably be away from the city for the remainder of the summer.

Visited at Hotel—
L. L. Hollingsworth, wife and son, of Shelton, Neb., stopped in this city yesterday for a short visit, surprising W. J. and R. Scott Weaver at the Umpqua hotel. These friends had not met previously for five years and a very enjoyable visit was had. The Hollingsworths are traveling by auto and have been over the New Mexico and southern California route and are now on their way to Portland. They expect to start home soon.

Will Visit at Coburg—
Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Boyle left this morning for Coburg, where they expect to visit for a short time with friends and relatives.

Return to Portland—
Mrs. W. N. Carter and children, of Portland, who have been visiting and attending to business matters in this city returned to their home this morning.

Miss Gazley Leaves—
Miss Claire Gazley left this morning for Eugene, where she expects to visit for a couple of days.

Car Off Track—
A minor derailment near West Fork this morning caused a slight delay in traffic. The local wrecker was called out and repaired the damage.
