IN NATIONAL CONTEST

Miss Iris Goff Wins Cash Prize of $25 in a Contest Conducted by Truck Distributors on Value of Truck in Farming.

In the many essay contests conducted in the schools of Oregon in the past year, Douglas county has averaged high in almost every case many prizes, carrying a large amount of cash in several instances, being awarded to pupils of various schools in the county. The contest recently carried on concerning the advantages of the automobile truck in farming, received a ready response in the Roseburg schools as well as the other schools of the county, and many essays were submitted to the Roberts Motor Car Co., Inc., of Portland, who awarded the prizes. C. O. Thomas, of this city, this morning received notification of the prize winner from this county who is Miss Iris Goff of the Sutherland high school who won the third prize of $25. When speaking of the essay, D. E. Crawford, contest manager of the Roberts Motor Car company, said: "The fact that Miss Goff has been awarded first prize by the judges speaks well for the schools of your district, in that all the compositions received were of a superior order. We have sent her composition to the factory where it will be entered in the national $1000 scholarship contest."

Following is an exact copy of the essay by Miss Goff:

The Motor Truck as a Farming Asset.

Someone has said that time is the essence of value to the country business man, but it is of even greater importance to the agriculturalist the stock raiser, the dairy or truck farmer.

No matter where you live, whether in the east or west, north or south somewhere among your neighbors and friends you will find a farmer who owns and operates a motor truck. Ask him why he uses it. See the smile that will spread over his countenance as he tells you of the never failing day after day service that his truck is giving him; of the many men and teams the truck replaces during the year. By using a special device he uses his truck for power in operating hay and ensilage cutters, cream separators, wood saws, and many other things on the farm. Before concluding the conversation, he will probably tell you that considering the saving of both time and labor, it is one of the best investments he has ever made.

One farmer claims he hauled a load of potatoes, onions and other vegetables a distance of twelve miles in fifty minutes, by truck. With a wagon and team it would have taken him about three hours. Everywhere throughout the country you can find farmers who have practically duplicated this experience. In seed time, haying or harvest, a trip to town with a team carrying a load of produce often times means a loss of many times the value of the load either by grain lost through over-ripening or, in case a storm should come up, by less acreage in crops, for weather and growing crops will not wait. This is when the motor truck proves its worth and quickly pays for itself. It leaves the field work for the horses while it does the road running.

Farmers many miles from town, who own trucks, are, in effect, as near as those only a few miles away who depend upon teams for their hauling. Motor trucks undoubtedly often times make it profitable to go to a market that is better than the nearest one. In certain centers where there are large slaughter houses, the moving of livestock by motor truck from surrounding farms has increased so rapidly that in some sections it is nothing unusual to see from thirty to forty trucks unloading hogs, sheep and cattle at one time. The saving to the farmer in shrinkage alone more than pays for operating his truck. It also allows the shipping of smaller numbers and many farmers are now raising a few head of stock who formerly did not care to bother with them.

Many farmers have been inclined to decrease the production of perishable foodstuffs because of the time formerly required to haul them to market. In some sections this difficulty is being overcome by the joint use, by a number of producers, of rural motor express trucks which gather up the produce and deliver it to the markets. Even this small amount of co-operation increases the food supply of perishables and aids the grower in marketing when the prices are highest and when the vegetables and fruits are in their prime.

It is said that America's 1920 fruit crop is to be protected from transportation delays through the increased use of motor trucks among the big growers in the famous fruit belts. The reason for this is that in the past the railroads have been unable to accommodate the thousands of tons of perishable fruit, which consequently was never harvested. Due to the high cost of fruit products combined with a growing popularity of fruit, the growers this year are protecting themselves against a recurrence of such losses, by purchasing motor trucks on a larger scale with which to transport their fruit from the orchards to shipping points and even ultimate destinations.

A trade publication recently stated that at the present time there are only about 450,000 motor trucks available for all lines of business. It is estimated that 2,000,000 trucks could be profitably used on farms and between the farms and markets in handling all kinds of farm products. Even if this estimate were cut in half, it would appear that here are available for all purposes less than half the number of trucks that might be used advantageously or agriculturally purposes.

Some of us have seen the development of the electric light, the telephone, the wireless telegraph, the aeroplane, the motion picture—all great inventions—but of all the modern conveniences that benefit the farmer there is nothing which stands out so prominently, nothing which is so absolutely necessary to every farmer, whether great or small, as the motor truck.

GETS RID OF NINE YEARS OF RHEUMATISM AFTER TAKING TANALAC

"After being laid up in bed with rheumatism as long as six months at a time and having the worst form of stomach trouble," Tanalac has made me well and I am so pleased with it I just don't know how to express it," declared Henry Clark, of 1822 East Harrison street, Tacoma, Wash., recently.

"There was hardly a day in nine years," he said, "that I didn't suffer the keenest pain in my legs, knees or ankles, and lots of the time I could hardly get around at all. These pains were so severe that I just rolled and tossed all night long and was unable to sleep. I got so nervous the least little thing would completely upset me. To add to my misery my stomach began giving me trouble, and I had spells of indigestion that caused such suffering I really didn't know where I hurt the worst. All my food soured and fermented, nothing I ate seemed to digest and I soon got to where I dreaded to eat on account of the suffering it brought on. I lost weight and was in such a weakened, run-down condition I simply didn't know what to do."

"After reading so much about Tanalac I decided to try it and the first bottle made me feel like eating. After the second bottle I could eat a hearty meal and enjoy it without fear of its hurting me. As I kept on taking Tanalac my stomach trouble entirely disappeared, and by the time I finished the fourth bottle the rheumatism was gone, too. I have regained my lost weight and strength, and feel as well now as if I had never had a day's sickness in my life. I consider Tanalac the best medicine in the world and I am so delighted with what it has done for me that I am glad to recommend it."

Tanalac is sold in Roseburg by W. F. Chapman, and by the leading druggist in every town.
