Three Candidates For School Election

The regular school election is to be held Monday, June 21, from 2 to 8 p. m. at the high school building. There are two directors to elect, Dr. K. L. Miller and A. J. Geddes being the retiring directors. Dr. Miller has declined to become a candidate, but Mr. Geddes, who has served for the past term on the board, will again be a candidate for re-election. Two other candidates are out, Dr. B. R. Shoemaker and T. A. Rafferty. All three men are well known to the residents of this city and possess the qualifications of good directors. The school meeting is called for 2 o'clock at which time nominations will be made, and until 8 o'clock the books will remain open for all to vote. All qualified voters residing within the district are privileged to vote for candidates for school director. No property restrictions are made.

Plans to Entertain Prize Winners

CORVALLIS, June 17.—Plans are being made for the entertainment and work of the 23 capital prize winners and other club workers who will attend the 1920 junior summer school at O. A. C. as a result of their winnings in boys' and girls' club work at county and state fairs last fall. These trips to the college are made possible by Portland business men. The young people will be here from June 21 to July 3.

An assembly will be a feature for the entire group. The list of speakers, subject to change, includes President W. J. Kerr, Superintendent J. A. Churchill and Assistant Superintendent E. F. Carleton of the state department of public instruction, Dean M. E. Smith, director of the summer school, and Dean Mary E. Fawcett.

Arrangements have been made to accommodate the girls in Shepherd hall and the boys in Waldo hall. Both groups will take their meals at Waldo. The young people will be expected to provide their own bedding, toilet articles and clothing.

The following is a list of those who will attend the junior summer school: Avert Richards and Pauline Glenger of Tillamook, James Grubbs, Grant McMillan, Albert Zenger, and Lillie Biherr of Multnomah (outside of Portland), Elizabeth Watson, Ruth Melindy and Margaret Melindy of Portland, Verle Jarl, Edward Nelson, Lillie Flata, Thelma Sluma, and Lois Parenhoff of Clackamas, Bessie Bloom, Charles Russell, and Emaline Bloom of Marion; Morris Black of Douglas, Burl Smith of Columbia, Frances Johnson of Wasco, and Robert Goetz of Coos.

Seward Hotel Passes to New Owner

From the current issue of the Pacific Northwest Hotel News, published at Portland, we clip the following article concerning the recent purchase of the Seward hotel in that city by Attorney W. C. Culbertson, who is also owner of the Cornelius. The traveling public will be interested in the transfer:

One of the most important hotel transactions of the year was that reported late last week, when the Seward hotel lease and furnishings were sold by Mrs. Seward to W. C. Culbertson, proprietor of the Cornelius hotel, the "House of Welcome."

The amount involved in the transaction is somewhat under the one hundred thousand dollar mark, and included in the deal was a Montana ranch owned by Mr. Culbertson, which constituted the bulk of the purchase price. Fifteen thousand dollars actual cash changed hands. Mr. Culbertson has been busy for a week taking inventory and getting things in shape for the rush which will be on now within a few days.

Patrons of the Seward will soon realize that Mr. Culbertson does not do things by halves. He will, as soon as the rush is over, begin important improvements in the interior of the hotel which will practically revolutionize the place, and if he does this in the same scale as that by which he rejuvenated the Cornelius hotel, which he bought something like a year ago, the Seward certainly will shine.

Mr. Culbertson, aside from being an attorney, has acquired the facility of doing big things in a business way and his taking over the Seward to operate on his own account at a price in excess of what the average man would care to pay for it, would indicate that he can see ways of instituting methods of economical management in conjunction with the Cornelius, that the average man could not put into practice. Later the patrons will probably see a laundry and an ice machine installed to supply the two hotels, and one bus operated for both. Publicity work will combine the two hotels, and the House of Welcome slogan atmosphere will be placed around the Seward management. Therefore, if anyone can make money out of the Seward at the price paid by Mr. Culbertson, that man evidently can do it.

A leading Kansas City paper had this to say concerning Portland's most recent chain hotel magnate: William C. Culbertson, the subject of our review, is a native of Missouri, having first seen the light at Rolla, September 12, 1874. The family was of old Scotch-Irish origin. Mr. Culbertson obtained his early educational training in the public schools at Rolla. Later he launched out into the newspaper field and was editor of two weeklies for a while in his home town.

"In 1889 he graduated from the Kansas City Law school and at once became a member of the firm of Wallace, Wallace & Culbertson. In 1903 he branched out for himself. The ease with which he handled his cases and the success he has met stamp him as a man of unusual legal knowledge, and capable of digesting the most complex problems of law."

In 1908 Mr. Culbertson was nominated by his party and was elected to the upper house of the city common council. During his campaign for this office a Kansas City paper said: "It can be well said that Kansas City has never had a representative in the council chambers that has at all times served the people better than has Mr. Culbertson. There is nothing to his discredit that can be brought against him."

The opportunity coming to him, Mr. Culbertson decided to go to Montana and there engage in ranching on an extensive scale. He acquired a substantial interest in a big cattle ranch called The Pines. After getting things to going right on the ranch he opened a law office at Stevensville in September, 1915. This step was taken largely through the continued importunities of friends that he do so. After a few months at Stevensville, Mr. Culbertson moved to Missoula to get wide scope for his activities.

As a booster for the great resources of that rich section with its five flourishing valleys merging at Missoula, Mr. Culbertson at once applied himself. He did this to the limit and in a write-up of a big booster meeting the Missoula Sentinel said: "Brother to a prince and fellow to a beggar, if he be found worthy. Also, 'A Booster?' Yes, is he hails from Kansas City. If you don't think he measures up, just go talk with him, walk with him and exchange a handclasp with him."
