"Even a professor can learn"

THE PROFESSOR dropped in.
LAST NIGHT and said.
HE HAD a puzzle.
YOU KNOW he speaks.
FIFTY SEVEN kinds.
OF HIGHBROW talk.
BUT HE'D just heard.
TWO FELLOWS talking.
SOMETHING LIKE this.
"HERE'S THE real cheese.
ON THE kind of butt.
FOR STEADY stuff."
"SPILL IT," said the other.
SO THE first one said.
"IT'S GOT the goods.
AND PEP and all.
JUST TOUCH one off.
AND YOU'LL be living.
THE LIFE of Reilly.

I FELL for it, and gee.
I'M JAKE for keeps.
AND SITTIN' on the world."
AND THE second one said.
"JUST SLIP us one.
FOR THE double-O."
AND THAT was all.
I LAUGHED and puluted.
OUT THE window.
AND THE prof read.
THE ELECTRIC sign.
AND HE was on.
THE SIGN just said.
"THEY SATISFY."

THESE may be a hundred other ways to say it, but in good, plain United States, it's "they satisfy." Those fine Turkish and Domestic tobaccos and that can't-be-copied Chesterfield blend put Chesterfields where none can touch them for quality and value.

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

JOHN IS ANGRY.

"So Alice knew about Elizabeth," I said to myself with a smile and then my heart hurt just a little that even my baby's name had been talked over between my husband and Elizabeth Moreland.

It wasn't the same. It just wasn't the same—this love of Elizabeth's for John and Karl Shepard's for me. I almost made up my mind to show Karl's letters to John. In fact I went and got them as I heard John's footstep in the hall and was on the point of handing them to him when his first words made me place them back in my pocket

"Just had a telegram from Elizabeth, Katherine. And she tells me that she has gone to live with mother already. Said that as long as she was going to go there pretty soon she might as well go immediately, and especially as our rooms were vacant now and they were more comfortable than her own."

"Oh, John, I wish that Elizabeth would not go into our rooms" I said, "until after we have moved out"

"Why, what's the difference? She isn't going to break up the furniture."

"No, but you must remember that all my clothes, except the few that I took to Atlantic City, are still in the wardrobe and drawers Honestly, I would not even care to have Alice go into those rooms without being there myself." I continued, trying to be very calm as I did not want to quarrel with him

"You women are fussiest things I have ever seen. I am quite sure that Elizabeth won't hurt anything that you have. I don't think she would be interested in them."

"Oh, won't she?" I said thoroughly enraged. "She will probably look over every piece of underclothing I left in my drawers and I expect to find the lock of my desk broken when I come back."

"Are you judging Elizabeth Moreland by yourself."

"I am judging her by herself as I know her, and I do not want her or any other person in my rooms, among my intimate belongings, until I can be there to make the arrangements of moving."

"You are altogether too late. She is already there."

"You know as well as I do, John, that Elizabeth Moreland has done this thing thing purposely. She wanted to get into my rooms."

"It can't be helped now, so why worry? I don't know why it is, Katherine, that you and I can't be together five minutes without quarreling. I have just come back from Goodwin happy over the fact that he was so delighted that I asked him to invest Mary Elizabeth's money."

"John, I want you to understand that my daughter's name is not Mary Elizabeth. Her name is Mary Gordon. You know very well that I do not object so much to the name because it is your mother's, although I would not care to have her called Elizabeth even if it were not the name of Elizabeth Moreland."

"Well, wait a minute, wait a minute. Don't go off half-cocked. All right, if you don't want it. But you seem to think that I have no part in this child"

"I sometimes wish that you hadn't," I spoke quickly before I thought.

"And whom, may I ask, would you like to be the father of your child, Mrs Gordon"

"I am not sure," I said bursting into tears, "that I want any man to be the father of my child If I could be like Juno and have fatherless children it would be a great joy to me."

"Are you pulling some of that Ruth Gaylord stuff"

"Ruth Gaylord stuff? What do you mean?"

"Why Ruth seemed to think that her children were all her own and Robby got tired of that pose, as you know, and married Helen.

"A woman can't neglect a man even for her children. Keep that in your mind, my dear girl. Don't you think that you have left me alone quite long enough. If it hadn't been for Elizabeth Moreland, I don't know what I should have done. She has been very unselfish about it. Of course she could have had lots of other men, more than eligible, calling on her, but she has kept most of her evenings free for me, not knowing whether I would be able to call or not"

"Oh! Could she?" was my comment.

GIVE PHOTOS AWAY.

One of the best advertising features staged today was when C. S. Heinline appeared on the depot platform with an armful of Roseburg photos prepared by Hemus, the local photographer. The picture were beautiful and went "like hotcakes." The Shriners in mob formation attacked Mr. Heinline and within a short time the last photo of the city disappeared. Empty fruit cans bearing Roseburg labels which were in pyramid display in the exhibit building were also carried away by the enthusiastic Georgia delegation and a "hurry call" was rushed to the Rupert company for more of the cans, so great was the demand.

MARRIED YESTERDAY.

Miss Lillian Hixson, of Brockway, and Oliver F. Fisher of Sutherlin, were united in marriage at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon at the courthouse, with Rev. C. H. Hilton conducting the ceremony. The young couple left immediately following the ceremony for Sutherlin, where they expect to make their home.

ESTABLISH BOUNDARY LINES.

VANCOUVER, B. C., June 25.—Boundary lines between Alaska and Canada, near the Portland Canal, north of here, are to be defined clearly this summer so miners, who are flocking to new silver strikes in the canal country will know, at all times, on which side of the line they are working. Strikes have been made on both sides of the boundary.

Several Canadian government engineers were here recently on their way from Ottawa to Prince Rupert, where they will start north, working along the lines. They will proceed northward until they meet a party of American government engineers who are to work south from the Unuk river, 100 miles north of Prince Rupert.

A boundary trail, cut fifteen years ago along the boundary, will be cleared and new cairns and monuments will be erected.

WANTED TO SEE WRECK.

UKIAH, Calif., June 25.—A desire to see a train wreck is reported to have led two 12-year-old boys of Fort Bragg to wrap a logging chain around the inside rail of the railroad track, one mile from Fort Bragg, Calif., in an endeavor to ditch the eastbound passenger train. The engine and three coaches passed over the obstruction safely. Had the chain been around the outside rail, the train, filled with women and children bound for a picnic on Pudding creek, would have been dashed into the creek many feet below. The boys confessed that their desire to wreck the train was inspired from a movie film.

Hundreds of Filipinos have come and are coming to work in the sugar fields of the Hawaiian Islands and police and medical authorities here have stated their belief that careful selection of these would cut down the number of undesirables shipped from the Phillipines.

SOLVE MANY PROBLEMS.

CORVALLIS, June 23.—Emergency situations which involve the saving of large sums of money to Oregon farmers are being solved in several counties by farm bureaus.

Eastern Oregon farmers were up against a hard proposition when the supply of distillate in the northwest became exhausted. The Umatilla county farm bureau, assisted by Paul V. Maris, now director of the extension service at the college, located a supply in San Francisco. The farm bureau under the direction of Fred Bennion, county agricultural agent, has just finished the distribution of 100,000 gallons and a second shipment of nearly equal size is on the road. Morrow county got 70,000 gallons through quick action on the part of L. A. Hunt, agricultural agent. Wasco county obtained 50,000 gallons through E. R. Jackman, county agent, and the Wasco County Farmers' union.

Miss Edith Brown, of Wilbur has accepted a position at the Rose confectionery, and will take up her new duties immediately. She replaces Miss Leah Lahey, who recently resigned her position to accept one at the telephone office.
