

DOUGLAS COUNTY HAS FRUIT RECORD

Douglas Products of As Fine Quality As Found in Entire United States.

WEATHER TELLS STORY

Climate is Responsible for the Excellent Fruit Raised in This Section of the State—Table of Temperature Compiled.

The fruit records of the world, as applied to fancy apples and fancy pears, are held by the fruitgrowers of Oregon, says the Portland Telegram. This condition has only existed during the past few years, since fruit culture in Oregon has been placed in the hands of the commercial fruitgrower.

It is no easy matter to establish a national fruit record as there are so many competing districts and all records must be based on actual cash sales at auction on the open market and returns made therefrom in the regular manner. One carload of Oregon Comice pears sold at auction in New York City for $4558, and a single acre of Bartlett pears produced $2550 worth of fruit.

Douglas Stands High.

Douglas county can well lay claim to as fine a quality of fruit as is produced in any section of the United States. There are at present 6000 acres of apples and pears in Douglas county, and located in the well-known smaller valleys of the Umpqua known as Sutherland valley, Garden valley, Looking Glass valley, Winston and Riddle districts. These orchards are nearly all young trees, from 8 to 12 years old, and are of the Spitzenberg, Newtown Pippins, Jonathan and Winter Banana varieties. The pears are Bartlett, D'Anjou, Howell du Comice and a few of the less popular varieties.

The famous Harding orchards are at Winston, owned by W. C. Harding of Roseburg, and Dr. George A. Bradburn of Winston. The two orchards are now thirty years old, and are producing every year from $750 to $2000 worth of pears per acre. These orchards are considered the best pear orchards in the state by many horticulturists, who have visited this section.

Big Apple Orchard.

In the same district is the famous L. B. Skinner apple orchard of the Spitzenberg and Yellow Newtown Pippins, which has been bringing the owners from $500 to $1000 per acre for the past five years.

The Garden valley apples are now within their third year of profitable production, and all being young orchards their maximum yield will not be reached for at least two more years. There are over 3000 acres in fruit in this valley, and the Garden valley vineyards of Charles A. Brand, where the famous Flame Tokay grapes are raised, are the finest to be found anywhere in the state. Peaches and cherries are also produced in equally high quality.

The cherries from this section bring from 12c to 18c a pound. The prices quoted here are not the present inflated prices comparatively speaking, but were the prevailing prices two years ago.

Weather Tells Story. There is a reason for such fine

"FOURTH LINE OF DEFENSE"

Judge Bale of Columbia Lectures at Chautauqua.

Judge Fred G. Bale, who comes to Chautauqua on the sixth night, is a courageous crusader for those things which make for a bligger and better community. He has a gripping lecture on things fundamental at the present hour. "The Fourth Line of Defense." It is a "fact" lecture, full of meat for the man or woman interested in tomorrow's citizenship, and is resplendent in a sound advice and hopeful incentive for young and old. Mr. Bale is one of the biggest lecture "finds" of recent years—a man of fire and energy, a clear thinker, a hard hitter. His message is particularly valuable to the young and to those charged with responsibility for their welfare. Hear him—he's worth while.

fruit, and one is the climate, of which the following table of the temperature compiled by the Roseburg weather bureau, is the average for the past 31 years:

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idah McGlone Gibson

RUTH SURPRISES ME.

The poem "Which" I knew meant to my husband the contrast between his desire for Elizabeth Moreland and his love for me. It was the first thing I had seen since my marriage to John that made me think of the man with whom I had fallen so desperately and quickly in love, in contrast to the man I had married.

It showed me clearly that there are two natures in every man—one the primitive, which responds to the one great law of the universe—the hunter who must ever enjoy the spirit of the chase—and the other one which man has developed through centuries of groping for something that is higher and better than instinct.

The poem was beautiful. Something in me responded to:

"When I look into those wells of truth, her eyes,
My soul leaps out from its hiding place of clay
And flies to do her bidding—"
I smiled for whatever John Gordon's soul might have done when he looked into her eyes I never could remember when it flew "to do my bidding."

Just An Unruly Boy. Poor John, he's just a little unruly boy; a boy who has always had his own way, always felt that he was supreme; a boy who has always been able to talk back to his mother and sister, and yet who, deep in his heart, felt superior to both.

How much happier a man would be if, instead of this eternal warring with the opposite sex, he accepted woman at her true valuation and made her his comrade and his friend, instead of treating her always as a plaything or a servant. I read the poem once more. It was beautiful. It had more real human nature in it than the one which Karl Sheppard had sent me. Again I felt the old-time thrill which had never wholly vanished and which returned when John was near and kind to me. It was probably because of this that I have lived with John Gordon as long as I have. Since we were married John has seemed to feel that it is not quite manly to make love to me any more. He had forgotten all about "what should be" in the ever present "is."

I presume to some women the finding of that scrap of paper would have caused a greater hurt than anything else he had ever done. The mere fact that John acknowledged there was a chance of choice between us might have made another woman jealous and unhappy. But I confess that I would much rather be the queen of his soul than the minister to, or the companion of, his senses and I was rather complimented.

But I believe that I could be both if he would let me. I see no reason why a man's wife should not be all in all to him. Because most men hold different opinions is perhaps the greatest reason that we have one divorce in every eight marriages. Will Understand Each Other. "Oh, my dear; my dear," I said as I snatched up my baby, who was worrying in her cradle, "surely I will never have any such problems with you. You and I still understand each other. You will always

80 Years Old-- Attributes Health to Internal Baths

Mr. D. C. Newcomb, 704 ... 4th Ave., Atchison, Kan., writes Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute of New York as follows: "My next birthday is July 12th--80 years old. Have used Tyrrell's 'J. B. L. Cascade' for more than 20 years. Best and only remedy that brings relief without the use of drugs. My experience proved that it always relieves. No danger from it. My ailments were principally Uric Acid, Biliousness, Constipation, etc."

This is by no means an exceptional letter for Tyrrell's Hygienic Institute to receive, as there are now over half a million Americans using Dr. Tyrrell's "J. B. L. Cascade" with like results. By the scientific use of Nature's cleanser--warm water--it eliminates all poisonous waste from the lower intestine and gives Nature a chance to work unimpeded. You will be astonished at the difference in your feelings the morning after an internal bath. The "J. B. L. Cascade" will be shown and explained to you by Nathan Fullerton, Cass St., Roseburg, Ore., who will also give you free, on request, an interesting booklet by Dr. Chas. A. Tyrrell, "Why Man of Today is Only 50% Efficient." Get this booklet and know just why Internal Bathing is so effective in the promotion of better health.

know that mother means the best for you. You will always understand her experience will help you over all your troubles." Then again I laughed mirthlessly as I thought that probably deep down in John's heart he had the same feeling that I should understand that everything that he did was the best for me as I expected my baby would understand.

I laid my back in its cradle. Then I resolved to go back and fight for my own--to make John feel as he did when he first fell in love with me.

In spite of all that everyone may say about the impossibility of warming our love I am going to make John fall in love with me all over again. And while I am doing it I am going to try and make him understand that the love that I am asking from him and being so disappointed because I do not receive it is but a part of the experiences of marriage--and marriage is but a part of the experience of life.

One thing, however, I am going to try to make myself as well as John understand, and that is that love may be for a week, a month or a year, but marriage is for every day and all time. I am going to work for the love of my husband, but I am going to try to achieve a successful marriage for myself.

Alice has achieved it--why may not I?

Ruth's marriage was a failure because she made motherhood instead of wifehood her goal. Marriage includes both being wife and mother. As I was thinking of Ruth she illustrated the old adage, "Thinking of angels you hear the rattle of their wings." For she passed my window on the other side of the street with Cousin Charles.

Surprised at Defiance. I wasn't surprised to see her with Charles, but I was certainly surprised to see how deferentially he bent over her, and to note the smile she gave him.

This time she was not thinking of her children to the exclusion of everything else, for with sudden terror I saw tiny Ruth, who had been walking along by her mother's side, suddenly dart out almost in front of an automobile. The mother did not notice the child's danger until Charles flashed quickly in front of her, brushing her aside with such sudden force that she almost fell to the sidewalk, and snatched the baby almost from under the wheels.

There was a great commotion. Ruth shrieked as Charles stumbled and fell, flinging the child from him. John, who had evidently seen the whole thing from the window below me, rushed out to them and saving no attention to Ruth, raised Charles from the ground. He evidently asked him if he was hurt for Charles shook his head. The both men turned to the baby, who was lying in a little tumbled heap. She had evidently thought it was some game, for she was laughing and holding out her hands to Charles.

Ruth came forward with outstretched hands, and as Charles clasped them, I said to myself, "Tomorrow--is Ruth Falling in Love?"

URGE EXAMPLE OF SELF-DETERMINATION

That friends of Irish independence in the American Congress could make a more effective impression on Great Britain by granting Philippine independence than by merely expressing sympathy with Irish aspirations is the suggestion contained in a statement issued by the Philippine Press Bureau of Washington, D. C.

"Twice in a period of nine months," reads the statement, "the United States Senate went on record as being in sympathy with the aspirations of the Irish people for a government of their own choice."

"Still another way for the friends of Irish independence in the American Congress to make an impressive argument would be to grant the independence of the Philippines have repeatedly demanded. America's own representatives in the islands have officially reported they are ready for independence and have recommended that such independence be granted."

"We submit that the granting of Philippine independence would be likely to be accepted by Great Britain as even stronger proof of America's belief in self-determination than the passage of the Irish resolutions, because Great Britain's councilors of state could not then successfully make the point that the American Congress is asking Great Britain to do something the United States itself has been asked to do and has not done."

"The Filipino people have confidence in the word of America and hope that now that the Senate has reiterated its sympathy with the principle of self-determination it will give Great Britain and the other powers of the world a concrete example of consistency and good faith by granting Philippine independence."

YOUNG FILIPINO WON FRENCH WAR CROSS.

Gregorio Cailles, a Filipino, recently returned to his Philippine home wearing a French uniform and a Croix de Guerre with palm. Cailles in December, 1918, arrived in France and enlisted as a private. He made an excellent record as a soldier. At one time when all the officers of his company had been killed, he took command and led the men in a charge. He was decorated for this act of bravery by the French Government.

Miss Evangeline Gibbs has accepted a position at the office of Dr. B. R. Shoemaker and will assume her duties the first of the month.

NOTICE OF SALE OF GOVERNMENT TIMBER--General Land Office, Washington, D. C., June 1, 1920. Notice is hereby given that subject to the conditions and limitations of the Act of June 9, 1916 (39 Stat., 218), and the instructions of the Secretary of the Interior of September 15, 1917, the timber on the following lands will be sold July 12, 1920, at 10 o'clock a. m., at public auction at the United States land office at Roseburg, Oregon, to the highest bidder at not less than the appraised value as shown by this notice, sale to be subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior. The purchase price, with an additional sum of one-fifth of one per cent thereof, being commissions allowed, must be deposited at time of sale, money to be returned if sale is not approved, otherwise patent will issue for the timber which must be removed within ten years. Bids will be received from citizens of the United States, associations of such citizens and corporations organized under the laws of the United States or any state, territory or district thereof only. Upon application of a qualified purchaser, the timber on any legal subdivision will be offered separately before being included in any offer of a larger unit.
