

Presbyterian Synod To Meet In July

The synod of Oregon, governing body of the Presbyterian church in this state will meet on the University campus in Eugene July 13 to 21. Some of the delegates will speak to students of the summer school during the week that the body will be in session. Among these men are: B. Carter Millikin, secretary of the department of missionary education of the Presbyterian Church, William Hiram Foukes, former Portland pastor and general secretary of the New Era movement, John F. McDowell, National Social Service secretary of Home Missions, and Dr. Silas Evans, President of Occidental college, Los Angeles.

Meetings of the synod will be held in the Y. M. C. A. Hut on the campus, or in Guild Hall. The session in Eugene is part of the plan of the University, which is anxious to welcome any organization to Eugene and to furnish University facilities for meetings or conventions.

Endeavor to Keep Tourists at Home

Attempting to keep residents of Southern California from touring the northwest, the automobile dealers association from Southern California is publishing statements to the effect that the gasoline shortage throughout the northwest is so severe that tourists should not attempt to make the trip. In order to conserve the gasoline they are advising tourists to stay at home. The fact of the matter is the gasoline shortage is practically ended. The California tourist season is ended. The weather is becoming warm and the people there are beginning to see visions of a cooler climate to the northwest. The merchants and various associations of that section realize that the departure of the people for the northwest means a loss of money to that community and consequently are resorting to misstatements of facts in order to keep their people at home. The Northwest Tourist Association has registered a rigorous protest and members of commerce all over the states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho are fighting the propaganda circulated by the Californians. The matter will be taken up this evening at the executive meeting of the Chamber of Commerce here and it is quite probable that this organization will co-operate with other associations in letting the people of Southern California know the true state of affairs.

STANDS NO CHANCE.

SEATTLE, June 25.—An American minor stands no chance of getting rich by working placer claims in northeastern Siberia, according to Thomas Tennessee, who is in Seattle on his first trip out of Alaska in 16 years, for the purpose of buying supplies. Any show of wealth will destroy his chances of success. If he comes to the placer fields with a few pans and a poor mouth, the Siberians will help him along and direct him to the rich grounds. But let him hire a few helpers and he becomes a capitalist in the eyes of the Russians. So long as he does not acquire too much wealth he is not molested. At least 500 men have crossed from northeast Alaska peninsula into Siberia, most of them making the journey in open rowboats. Mr. Tennessee reported. The trip from the Alaskan to the Asian side takes about 24 hours in a row boat, he said.

Marketing Fruit—
W. E. Clingenpeel was in from Looking Glass today preparatory to harvesting his cherry crop, mostly Royal Annes. He expects to market which he receives 12 cents per pound at the cannery Prunes, however, are his principal crop, and he states he will probably have about 20 tons of prunes after they are dried. It is plainly evident that this grower will be able to keep the wolf from the door during the winter, anyway, with cherries at 12 cents and nobody knows what prunes will bring, but the market is around 15 cents just now.

OFFERS TO MARK FIELD.

Forest Supervisor W. F. Ramsdell today offered to mark the aviation field whenever the council takes definite steps to purchase the land. Up to the present time the council has done nothing towards purchasing the field or issuing the bonds authorized by the residents of the city at the recent election. The need of a suitable marking was shown Saturday in the plight of aviators from San Francisco to Albany, who were forced to chance a crash because of the failure to have the field properly ton amendment to the Sherman anti-trust act was passed, freeing American labor and taking it from the list of commodities. The Smith-Lever bill for the improvement of agricultural conditions was passed. Federal employment bureaus were created. Farm loan banks, postal savings banks and the federal reserve system were established.

"The federal reserve system, passed over the opposition of the leaders of the republican party, enabled America to withstand the strain of war without shock or panic and ultimately made our country the greatest creditor nation of the world."

Turning to the record of the republican congress since 1918, Mr. Cummings said it was "barren of achievement, shameless in waste of time and money and without parallel for its incompetencies, failures and repudiations."

President Wilson's two appeals before congress for legislation dealing with profiteering, reduction of taxation, aid for soldiers, and laws to improve relations of capital and labor were ignored, he declared, and "after a year of sterile debate our country has neither peace nor reconstruction."

He dwelt particularly on attacks made upon the president. Malice followed him to the peace table, he said, and widespread propaganda made it imperative when he returned from Paris to "make a struggle for that which had been won at incalculable cost. This meant a struggle for health, sickness for months on a bed of pain, and worse, the sickness of heart which comes from the knowledge that political adversaries are aware of destroying not merely the work of men's hands, but the world's hope of settled peace. This was the affliction—this the crucifixion."

Mr. Cummings continued that in one sense "it is quite immaterial what people say about the president. Nothing we can say can add or detract from the fame that will flow down the unending channels of history."

He cited the republican and progressive platforms of 1916 as part of the record placing this country in favor of the league of nations.

"The republican platform contains a vague promise to establish another or a different form of association," he said. "There is no mental dishonesty more transparent than that which expresses fealty to a league of nations while opposing the only league that exists or is ever apt to exist."

"What nations stand outside? Revolutionary Mexico, bolshevist Russia, unspakable Turkey and the United States."

"It is not yet too late. Let us stand with the forces of civilization. The choice is plain. It is between the democratic party's support of the league of nations, with its program of peace, disarmament and world fraternity, and the republican party's platform of repudiation, provincialism, militarism and world chaos."

It is not reservations that the president stands against, said Mr. Cummings, but nullification. He told how President Wilson had published the tentative text of the league covenant widely in 1919, asking for criticism and receiving suggestions from Taft, Hughes and others that were "actually incorporated into the revised draft of the league."

Senator Lodge, he said, refused to offer constructive amendments at any time. "So intolerant was his attitude that he would not even consider a compromise proposed by former President Taft of his own party, and which was assured of support of 40 democratic senators."

Senator Lodge knew that he controlled the senate and that in his own time and way he would destroy the treaty.

"This is the sordid story of its defeat," said Cummings, after reviewing the senate's action in the matter. "No blacker crime against civilization has ever soiled the pages of our history. The last chapter was written at Chicago."

"Let the true purpose of our party be clearly understood," he said in concluding his address. "We stand squarely for the same ideals of peace as those for which the war was fought. We support without flinching the only feasible plan for peace and justice. We will not submit to the repudiation of the peace treaty or to any process by which it is whittled down to the vanishing point. We decline to compromise our principles or pawn our immortal souls for selfish purposes. We do not turn our backs upon the history of the last three years. We seek no avenue of retreat. We insist that the forward course is the only righteous course."

"We seek to re-establish the fruits of victory, to reanimate the good faith of our country and to restore it to its rightful place among the nations of the earth. Our course constitutes a summons to duty. The heart of America stirs again. The ancient faith revives. The immortal part of man speaks for us. The services of the past, the sacrifices of war, the heroism of the future, constitute a spiritual force gathering about our banners. We shall release again the checked forces of civilization and America shall take up once more the leadership of the world."

Forest Supervisor W. F. Ramsdell today offered to mark the aviation field whenever the council takes definite steps to purchase the land. Up to the present time the council has done nothing towards purchasing the field or issuing the bonds authorized by the residents of the city at the recent election. The need of a suitable marking was shown Saturday in the plight of aviators from San Francisco to Albany, who were forced to chance a crash because of the failure to have the field properly

Shriners Will Not Forget Roseburg

Among the many admiring words which have been said regarding the beautiful Roseburg roses, quantities of which have been given to Shriners on passing through this city, not the least is a conversation which was overheard in Portland during the celebration. The conversation took place in the lobby of a prominent hotel, a group of Shriners having stopped for a few minutes during the activities to compare notes concerning their trip to the metropolis. In the group were several Hawaiian residents, not natives of the country, but Americans there for business reasons, and their conversation ran something like this: "Yes we had a fine trip to Portland, and went through some pretty country, but of all the towns, there is not one that will have the place in our heart that Roseburg has. The ladies of the city met us at the train and gave us as many as we wanted of the most beautiful roses I have ever seen and they seemed so hospitable and acted as if their heart was in their gift. It will take us a long time to forget Roseburg."

cause of freedom, but, dwarfed by loss of principle, it has developed into a vicious, crabbed old scold. America will not look for leadership in that party; America will not tolerate the leadership of that party. Never, more than now, does our country look to democracy to save it from the course of national degradation prescribed by republicanism, or to save it from abject humiliation before the nations of the earth.

Our party is almost as old as the nation itself. It was created when the forces of popular government assumed for the first time in the world's history the direct conduct of a nation. It has progressed in thought as our nation progressed in growth and attainment. It has kept pace with the time and has measured the tread of the advancing host of liberal government.

Our party has never been an evasive party. It is not evasion that made Thomas Jefferson the patron saint of democratic government; it was not evasion that made Andrew Jackson the personification of honesty and fearlessness; it was not evasion that made the democratic party of today the champion of the world's hopes, and neither will it be evasion that will make the nominee of this convention the president of the United States.

Our party will present policies in a direct and constructive way; the republican platform is but an ingenious device meant to conceal irreconcilable differences.

In delivering our message to the American people our party will raise its anchor upon the shores of honesty and steer unflinchingly to the straits of courage.

With civilization's entrance upon its hand to stay destructive forces. We placed her once more in a fallen position and raised again the light that tempers brutish hearts and softens human souls. The world is waiting to hear the declaim of the American electorate upon the covenant of the League of Nations—a war-worn world implores America to take the lead in the great movement, and humanity's voice cries imploringly to our great nation.

Our country did not fall in its duty to silence the guns of war; our party will not fall in its duty to perpetuate peace.
