THEATRE RE-OPENS.

The Antlers theatre reopens today after being closed for the first three days of the week. During the months of July and August the theatre will not run on Mondays, Tuesdays or Wednesdays, but will be open on the other three days of the week. The program for tonight is a good one and doubtless will be well attended. On account of the extreme heat of the summer months it was thought best to close the theatre a portion of the week. The Maletic will continue to show each day.

NEW ORGAN IS COMING.

The new organ recently ordered for the Maletic theatre will arrive within a few days. Although smaller than the one now in use it is one of the very latest models and is equipped with all of the modern appliances. It will be installed by Fred Durham.

SUTHERLIN DANCE.

Social dance at Sutherland Friday night, July 9. Oakland orchestra will supply the music. Everybody invited.

NOTICE OF REMOVAL.

All patrons and the public generally are hereby notified that Smith and Friend have moved their office stand from Phone 271 to 21. Call 21 hereafter. SMITH and FRIEND

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

BACK HOME.

I think I surprised myself more than I did Miss Parker, when I said that I liked men as men but not in the mass. Had, thinking it over, I knew that I had told the truth. I could not remember a man whom I did not like individually, and yet when I thought of men as a sex, I almost hated them.

"I like to narrow women better than men," confided Miss Parker. "Women are braver and much more patient, although I have met a few men who were exceptions to the rule just as I have met a few fussy and querulous women. You were a splendid patient," she added with a smile.

"I couldn't have been otherwise; I was unconscious most of the time."

"It is then that people show their true nature," remarked Miss Parker.

"I do not believe that I have been told by physicians that some of the loveliest mothers in the church used blasphemous language under an anesthetic, and some of the roughest men became as little children under like circumstances."

"That in no way controverts my assertion," said Miss Parker unexpectedly.

"Oh," was my astonished remark as I subsided.

Filled with Wonder.

I looked at this woman sitting beside me again and again during the next few hours of our journey, and I wondered how two people could live together as we had done for the many weeks and yet not know each other at all. Miss Parker had seemed to me a scientifically ministering automaton. I had never thought of her as having her thoughts and opinions upon probably every subject which had intrigued my mind. "I must get her point of view," I said to myself, but all at once I felt too tired to probe farther. I wanted to rest and look out on the ever changing landscape. I did not want to think. I knew that soon I should be back in the world—the world of bustle and strife, of hurry and business, and that I should need all of my energy and all the enthusiasm I possessed.

I was awakened from my reverie by Miss Parker asking me, "Shall we go directly to your home Mrs. Gordon?"

"I think not," I answered, although Mr. Gordon did not say. I think though, he expects us to go for a few weeks to our rooms in his mothers house. I would rather not move into the new house until at least a few of the rooms have been made habitable."

"Will Mr. Gordon's mother live with you in your new home?" asked Miss Parker in tones that made me understand that she was not at all curious in the matter, but just wanted to make conversation.

"No, she is to live in the old house where she has lived so many years. A friend and distant relative of Mr. Gordon's and his family is to live at her home. Mme. Gordon is a handsome woman for her age, rather austere, and, you might say, set in her ways. She has always run the house and John and I have been more as guests or boarders with her. However, as in most cases, the arrangement has not been particularly pleasant. Mme. Gordon has expected more of us than she would have asked of guests, and we have felt sometimes that she has not paid as much attention to our wants as she might have had we actually been boarders, although, of course, John has always paid the house bills."

Miss Parker made no comment but I was curious to know just what she was thinking, for there was a peculiar look in her face. "You look relieved," I said.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," she said quickly. "I did not mean to show my thought, but if I may be allowed, Mrs. Gordon, I will say that the only trouble I have experienced in nursing in families came from older people, who thought they had a right, not because of any special training or fitness for the work, but solely because of age, to know better what to do in all cases than I or anyone else."

"It is said, Mrs. Gordon, that she almost always brings selfishness and conceit in its train. I have rarely met an old person who could say to me 'Yes, my dear, I have been through all those things which you are going through now, but take courage, I have weathered them and so will you.' Instead most old people will say to you, 'You are not doing the right thing. It isn't what I did at your age, and unless you change and do not only the things I want you to and in the way I want you to do it, you will never come through as I have done.'"

I had no time to go farther in the conversation, because we were beginning to slow up as we went into the home station. I felt my heart beat a little faster, as for the first time I allowed myself to ask inwardly, "Would John be there to meet me?"

I did not expect to see him, really, but, oh, how I hoped he would be there. Although we had begun to pass some people who were evidently waiting for friends, I did not really look out the window until we came to a full stop, and then to my amazement, I saw Elizabeth Moreland—and no one else.

Beauty Secrets for Women

A woman's fondest hope is to stay young. She often resorts to paints, powders and cosmetics to hide her years. Some women pay large sums to so-called "Beauty Doctors" in the belief that money will buy youth. Others wear girlish dresses, thinking they can fool the world about their age. But no one is deceived. The more you try to hide your age, the more it shows.

There is but one thing that holds old age back, and that is health. Sickness and weakness bring old age early in life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a building-up medicine for women. It makes them healthy and strong when they suffer from women's troubles. It keeps them looking young by keeping them well. It is a woman's tonic for the frail, the delicate and those who are nervous, dizzy and who have backache and dragging pains. Favorite Prescription is altogether vegetable and without a particle of alcohol. It is safe to take. Try it now. In tablet or liquid form at all druggists, or send 10c for trial package of the tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

twelve foot dry goods box and Charlie Chaplin is at the top of a pile of hot tar in the opening scenes of "A Days Pleasure" which will be shown at the Maletic theatre tonight.

This production marks the fourth of Chaplin's pictures of the million dollar class, which he is producing for distribution by First National Exhibitor's Circuit. Eastern critics who have seen advance runs of the production declare that it embodies the hearty laughs of his previous First National successes, "Shoulder Arms" and "A Dog's Life," and Sunnyside, but is in itself the most quality laugh success yet produced.

The famous comedian makes a decided departure from his previous pictures, intending to eschew the slap stick for events that are likely to be Chaplin's pictures of the million on an excursion boat.
