

GOVERNMENT PAYS ITS YEARLY BILLS

Fiscal Year Ends With All Nations Bills Paid—Income Tax Yields Big Revenue.

REDUCING LARGE DEBT

Future Outlook is That Large National Debt Will be Materially Reduced in the Future—Costs for The year are 7 Billion.

WASHINGTON, July 9.—The federal government wound up its fiscal year last Wednesday with practically all the years bills paid, officials of treasury department announced today.

The operations for the last 12 months—the first full fiscal year since the war ended—will show little, if any deficit. Receipts and disbursements have just about balanced. Up to this month amounts paid exceeded income by $29,000,000, a small amount when the total of transactions is taken into consideration. It is expected that operations during June will not greatly alter that figure.

Cost is Seven Billions. It has cost nearly $7,000,000,000 to operate the federal government for the last 12 months. In the first quarter there was a deficit of $770,000,000; in the second quarter there was a surplus of nearly $150,000,000 and in the third a surplus of nearly $400,000,000. The present and final quarter, it is believed will also show a surplus.

The greatest expenditures made during the year were by the war department, of $1,503,000,000 during the 11 months for which the figures have been compiled. The treasury department in 11 months spent $310,000,000, the navy, $723,000,000; the shipping board $884,000,000, and railroads $591,000,000. The interest on the public debt required $864,378,864.

This last item alone is almost as much as the entire federal establishment required in a pre-war year. Income Tax Yields Much. Income and profit taxes provided most of the money, bringing in $2,927,000,000 up to June 1. Miscellaneous taxes of revenue added $662,011,000, while customs, formerly the principal source yielded $316,674,000.

The new fiscal year will begin with the gross public debt at a little less than $25,000,000,000. It reached its highest point August 31, 1919 when it stood at $26,600,000,000. Included in this amount is about $3,000,000,000 floating indebtedness—loans running a relatively short time and bearing a high rate of interest.

Large Sums Borrowed. The floating indebtedness has caused the government to come into the loan market at frequent intervals during the year, borrowing to pay current expenses. The certificates would be retired when tax installments were paid. But new certificates would immediately be issued. The last issue of the certificate...

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE

A TALE WITH ELIZABETH MORELAND.

For a moment I was too astonished to be angry when I saw Elizabeth Moreland through the window. "Welcome home, Katherine," she called in her high, hard voice. "Come out as soon as you can. I am all a-tingle to see John's baby. He has told me so much about her."

I was putting on little Mary's hood as she spoke, and for a moment I feared that Miss Parker would proceed with what deliberation I could not possibly understand how John Gordon, knowing how I felt about her, could put this tax upon me.

Nurse Knows Best. "I do not think you had better take Mary," I said coldly. "The nurse knows just how to carry her. If you want to help Elizabeth, take this. I thrust an ungainly package of baby cushions and trailing blankets into her arms. I knew she was furious.

Reductions in Sight. During the coming fiscal year the government confidently expects to make further reductions in the debt, although, this of course, cannot be accurately foretold. The revenue will vary with business conditions and the expenses of the government authorized by Congress can only be approximated, although various men at the capital have claimed to have definite figures.

What would People Say? "Oh, Katherine, if you feel this way, I think you had better take your old rooms. Of course I have them all furnished up for one person, but I couldn't think of allowing you to go to a hotel. What would people say?"

HOLY WELLS SPREAD DISEASE

Italian Pilgrims Resent Attempts to Prevent Their Using Polluted Pools They Hold Sacred.

Benares, the city of 2,000 temples, is also the city of holy wells. A pilgrim in Benares can put in a busy day making the round of these landmarks and complying with the ceremonies prescribed for those who would drink from them.

Only the devout Indian pilgrim would care to drink of the sacred wells, for custom says that flowers must be flung into them as peace offerings and these decayed floral offerings tend to make the water unfit for drinking. The British government did clean up some of the most holy and popular of the wells in the interests of sanitation.

The most holy of the wells is the Well of Knowledge which stands near Benares' most ancient shrine, the Golden Temple, and is said to be the dwelling place of a very important god. The most mysterious is the Well of Fate. Any one who looks into the Well of Fate exactly at noon and fails to see his shadow is said to be doomed to die within six months.

In another well a snake god lives, and still another is dedicated to the spirit of healing. Pilgrims not only drink of the water of this well, but also bathe in it to make sure of the water's power being transferred to them. Half a million pilgrims tour the holy wells of Benares every year and drink enough of the water to stock up their systems with the germs of every disease known to India.

THOUGHT KANGAROO A BIRD

Naturalist With Captain Cook Mistook by Remarkable Speed Displayed by Australian Animal.

A naturalist who accompanied Captain Cook on his famous voyage around the world mistook for a bird the first kangaroo he saw.

This is not likely to surprise anybody who has seen kangaroos in their native wilds, for their leaping power is so wonderful that at full speed they really look as if they were flying. A scientist, speaking of this matter to the writer, said: "I changed to come across two 'old-man' kangaroos, huge creatures, in the Australian bush, and measured the leaps of one of them. Thirty-two feet the tape line showed for each jump, taking it from toemmark to toemmark."

It is marvelous to see one of those great marsupials streaking across country in immense bounds, literally throwing itself into the air with its mighty hind limbs, and hardly seeming to touch the earth in its flight.

ROOSEVELT PAYS HIGH TRIBUTE TO STEFANSSON

Theodore Roosevelt said to Stefansson, the famous Arctic explorer who is to lecture at Chautauque this year: "Stefansson, there are few men in the world whom I envy, but you are one of them."

Harpers' Magazine said recently: "All the world's heroism has not been concentrated on the battlefields during the past years. While the war has engrossed the world's attention, this explorer has dared and won important bloodless battles against snow and ice and darkness. For five years Vilhjalmur Stefansson was extending the boundaries of the scientific world, his progress only guessed at by those who waited eagerly for news of him. For over a year he was given up for lost until the good news traveled southward that he was still alive."

His success marks a new era in Arctic explorations. Like great military commanders, Stefansson has solved the problem of supplies. Heretofore explorers have been limited in their trips by the amount of food they could carry—depending upon what their dogs on their return. Stefansson, traveling with a minimum of provisions, has lived off the land for months upon his good health.

He has explored and sounded 100,000 square miles of the Polar seas and has discovered new lands which will alter the map. In recognition of this service to the world, Stefansson has already been awarded gold medals by all the American Geographical Societies.

Edward W. Nelson, one of the United States biological survey, has been awarded a life membership in the National Geographic society in recognition of eminent services for the increase and diffusion of geographic knowledge.
