

Plan Rebuilding Of Mexican Mines

NOGALES, Ariz., July 9.—The chamber of commerce has joined with Charles Butters, mining expert of New York and San Francisco, to promote the formation in Mexico of an association of silver mine owners and silver producers to rebuild the abandoned mines throughout the nation and thus bring about once more the free and unlimited coinage of silver. Mr. Butters states that if the old-time mining plan is re-established it will mean that Mexico will coin 500,000,000 ounces of silver.

The mining expert has extensive interests in mines in Mexico, Salvador and Nicaragua, and is known for his introduction of the cyanide reduction process into Mexico. He says the greatest need of Mexico today is small change and "hard money."

The revolution and the world war, says Mr. Butters, have stripped Mexico bare of silver coin. In its place he says is a vast quantity of paper money issued by the various governments as fiat money. He blames the great flood of paper money in Mexico for most of the suffering in that nation in connection with the various revolutions.

His plan, backed by the Nogales chamber of commerce, is to have the old mines rebuilt and placed in operation by the association of silver mine interests at the cost of the association and place the mines in operation. Then the cost of the renewed mines would be recovered by the association from the mint profits over a course of years. Upon the paying out of the capital charge in restoring the mines, they are to be returned to the Mexican federal government as its property to be thereafter operated under the supervision of the federal government.

This system, according to the silver mine expert, has threefold benefits. First, it will at once restore Mexico the "hard money" and small change needed by merchants, banks and business men and now lacking. Second, it will provide a permanent primary market at home for large amounts of silver production. Third, it will stabilize the silver market because the Mexican home requirements will take up a great quantity of silver now exported and sold on a speculative market through San Francisco for the Orient. Also, this will serve to stimulate silver production because of the better market conditions and thus raise the primary market price for the semi-precious metal.

President Bracey Curtis, of the chamber of commerce, has named a committee of prominent men to take up the plan with General Alvaro Obregón on his impending visit to his home in Nogales, Sonora, this month. Meanwhile, the proposition will be submitted by the Nogales Chamber of Commerce to the civic bodies of all other border states and the officials of border states.

Pay Dirt Given Up By Old Mines

GOLD HILL, Ore., July 9.—New development on one of the oldest hard-rock mines of the 1851 gold fields has yielded pay shots averaging $28 a ton. The mine is located between Gold Hill and Jacksonville. The vein recently uncovered is believed to be the source of the placer gold that put Jacksonville on the map.

LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idaho McGlone Gibson

ELIZABETH SUBDUED.

I was almost sure, however, that I was mistaken in her. I turned toward me, as I again repeated, "Charles you may take us to a hotel," he showed a face as impassive as if I was respectful. He helped me into the trolley, but I knew that I was right, when, instead of helping Elizabeth Moreland in, he made an excuse of gathering up our parcels. She, however, entered the motor after us, looking much perturbed.

"I wish I could persuade you to come up to the house Katherine, John will be perfectly furious." "That need not worry you, Elizabeth," I answered sweetly, "and besides I am not at all sure that John would not rather be with me at a hotel than alone at the club, all the while knowing I am not particularly happy, either."

Elizabeth subsided after this, but she almost had a spasm when she heard me say to Charles as we drew up to the hotel, "Go in and ask the room clerk, Charles, if the bridal suite is empty, and tell him if it is I will take it providing he can also give me two rooms and bath, for my nurse and baby."

Only $40 a Day.

She said nothing until Charles came out and said, "Mr. Oucalt said he can fix you up handsomely for $40 a day, and he is glad to know that you are well enough to be home, and wants to congratulate you on going into your new home."

"Goodness Charles, did he send all that message?"

"No. He just said that he could fix you up for $40 a day, but he said to me that he would be proud to have you in his hotel, but that probably he wouldn't be able to keep you long, as you would be moving into that wonderful new house of yours."

"You are a diplomat, Charles," I said as I prepared to descend from the motor. I asked Miss Parker to get down before me and follow the baggage up to the rooms.

"But you are never going to take those rooms, are you?" said Elizabeth, laying a detaining hand on my arm.

I shook it off none too gently, and then as I reached the ground, turned and said, "I'm sorry Elizabeth that Charles cannot take you home, but until the baby is properly housed, I want him to be on call, so that Miss Parker can be able to do any shopping that I find necessary. Do you wish him to call a taxi for you?"

To Do Some Shopping

"No. I am not expected to do some shopping this afternoon and as I thought you would be too tired to want to use the motor, I told Charles that he could take me to the stores and then make some calls."

Elizabeth did not rise from her seat. I knew she expected me to say that probably I would not have to use the motor after all. However, I disappointed her, for just then Charles came out from taking Miss Parker in with the baby and I said to him calmly, "Charles I wish you would stay in front of the hotel until I am sure that I shall not want you this afternoon. Good-bye, Elizabeth. If Alice calls up you can tell her where I am. Give my regards to Mme. Gordon. You are sure that you don't want Charles to call you a taxi?"

Elizabeth Moreland just looked at me and said nothing as she got out of the car. I walked into the lobby with my head high. It was the first blood for me in this battle, which I had determined to wage for my own. I would use all of Elizabeth Moreland's tactics that she had been using with me. I would put her in the wrong with John. I knew that I had done so in this matter of the hotel, for with woman's intuition, I knew that in the telegram which John had sent her, he had told her that I was coming home, and that she had better fix up the rooms for me. He had not dared tell me that she was already in my rooms and had not only got himself but her in a mix-up.

He Had Run Away.

He probably had received a telegram from her that morning in which she had told him that she could not get out of my rooms, and he had rushed to tell her that she must. She had made him think she could arrange it with me, but he, man like, and seeing a little battle between two women, had run away.

I couldn't help but admire her courage in meeting me at the station with all this in her mind, because I had given in to her so often for fear of bringing John into a scandal, she thought she could depend upon me again to take the same course.

I would have given a great deal to know just when John intended to come back, but I would not have asked her for the world. I walked into my $40 suite smiling. I had met the enemy and she was mine.

Monday—Flirting With John.

THE LIVINGSTONE OF SOUTH AMERICA

G. Whitfield Ray Comes to Chautauqua This Year.

G. Whitfield Ray, F. R. G. S., noted explorer, writer and lecturer, is coming to Chautauqua. For many years Dr. Ray was Official Explorer for the Bolivian Government. Mr. Ray, one of the peaks in the mountains of Brazil, was named in his honor in recognition of his valued services for them. The Bolivian Government gave him a grant of land and made him a citizen. Fourteen years spent in exploration has established Dr. Ray's name as the "Livingstone of South America." In hearing Dr. Ray you will get more facts about our great Southern Republics in an hour than you could gather from dusty volumes in a year, and told in the shape of a charming narrative, instructive, amusing and thrillingly interesting.

THE NATION'S GREATEST ASSET

"That's the Boys and Girls," Says Judge Bale.

Judge Fred G. Bale of Columbus, Ohio, comes to Chautauqua on the sixth night with a lecture that will make you think deeper about the nation's greatest asset—America's boys and girls. It is a fact lecture built on years of contact with boys and girls in an Ohio Juvenile Court.

As Public Prosecutor of Juvenile cases for many years, Judge Bale had ample opportunity to make a "close-up" study of criminals in the making. What he learned there did not make him pessimistic regarding the worth of twentieth century youth, but it did set him on fire with a message to the men and women of America regarding their responsibility for the future citizenship of this country.

BANISH DEMON OF INSOMNIA

Physician Declares "Balm Sleep" May Be Obtained by Following Advice He Gives.

The other day a medical man, consulted by a patient who feared insomnia, instead of prescribing the expected drug, merely told his patient how to sleep. The threatened insomnia was banished, says London Answers. One should lie on the right side—not because this affects the heart, but because it relieves pressure on the digestive organs. But the right side is not "a full right." There should be a slight tilt to the left, so that the right shoulder blade, and not just the shoulder, takes the weight. The proper position is to elevate the feet three inches or so higher than the head and just to "crook" the legs slightly. Head pillows should not be used, or but just a small one. And that should come under the neck. Nature's pillow is the sleeper's own arm, curved. Bed clothing should be just sufficient for warmth. Overweight or overweight—some sheets are tucked in much too tightly—induce restlessness, which may easily develop into insomnia, which is as much a habit as a disease. Each individual has a nervous system which is his own and unlike any one else's. It is, therefore, advisable, in the case of persistent inability to sleep, to move the bedstead. Try an east-west position, instead of a north-south, or vice-versa. The sleeping result may surprise you.

Stop and reflect—great fires from little sparks are spread. Be careful with fires.
