PENDLETON OUTLAWS ARE CAPTURED TODAY

Hart and Owen Found Asleep In a Sheep Herder's Camp Near La Grande.

SHACKLED; AWAKENED

Worn Out From Lack of Food and Sleep, Two Pendleton Outlaws Were Easy Victims for the Man Hunters.

By Associated Press.
LA GRANDE, Ore., July 31.—Neil Hart, the alleged slayer of Sheriff Till, and Owen, a partner in the Pendleton jail break last Sunday, and his pay, Jim Owen, are in jail here this morning, having been brought in early today by a posse of six men headed by J. H. McLaughlin, of La Grande. The two men were found asleep in a sheepherder's camp on a hillside near Wenhaha forest, and when the fugitives awoke they were in poses. Poses had been trailing the two outlaws since late yesterday and during last night the man hunters came upon a sheep camp. They asked the herder if he had seen anything of the men, but he stoutly denied any knowledge of their whereabouts. At this moment the posse noticed two forms lying near the feet of the sheepherder and upon quick investigation discovered the much-wanted outlaws fast asleep. Shackles were at once placed about their wrists and the men then awakened to find themselves at the mercy of the posse. They were at once hustled into a waiting automobile and taken to La Grande, arriving at an early hour this morning and placed in jail with a strong guard about them to avert any possible chance of escape until they could be taken to the county jail at Pendleton.

Sheriff Warnick, of Union county, said this morning that Hart had a clipping taken from a Pendleton newspaper pinned to his coat pocket. Hart, the principal in last Sunday's jail break, has made a full confession of the shooting and jail break, according to Sheriff Warnick.

Hart Confesses to Killing.
PENDLETON, July 31.—"Hart admitted to myself and Special Deputy Kead of Pendleton, that it was he who fired the shot which killed Sheriff Taylor," declared Deputy Sheriff McElroy. McElroy said that Hart had made this statement shortly after being placed in jail at 4 o'clock this morning.

May Five Ring Leader.
PENDLETON, July 31.—It is reported this afternoon that a posse near Gibbon has apprehended Jack Rathie, the alleged leader of the Pendleton jail break last Sunday. The suspect is being brought to this city as none of the posse has ever seen Rathie and absolute identification by them is impossible.

Have the Right Man.
PENDLETON, July 31.—Rathie arrived here late this afternoon in charge of a posse and at once placed in the county jail. He was unarmed when caught near Gibbon. Will be Taken to Pendleton.

LA GRANDE, July 31.—It is expected that both Hart and Owens will be taken to Pendleton soon. Jenks Taylor, brother of the late Sheriff Till Taylor, arrived here at noon today to take charge of the prisoners.

Chase is Thrilling.
PENDLETON, Ore., July 30.—Beated telephone reports received here at the sheriff's office early in the evening from the posse which has been on the chase for Hart and Owens, his breed leaders of the last Sunday jail break stated positively that the bloodhounds in charge of Sheriff Warnick of Union county were but a few hours behind the two men.

The report said that Hart and Owens were in the Summerville district and headed for the tollgate district through which it seemed evident to make a break over the crest of the Blue Mountains and into the Grande Ronde reservation.

The trail of the two outlaws was followed throughout the night and early this morning the posse came upon a secluded spot where the fleeing men were said to have camped for a time during the night.

The report received from this posse since it took up the search early last evening after the trail of the two men was first definitely located on the far side of the Meacham hill.

An hour before this report was received from the posse hunting for Hart and Owens, another report from the posse in the Gibbon district said that Rathie had made another appearance at 1 o'clock this afternoon about five miles from the tollgate toward which point the two half breeds are headed. The report said that Rathie had appeared at a farm house, where he again demanded food and after getting it, he disappeared into the brush.

The fact that Rathie had come into the open three times for food since early last night was an indication that he had about reached the limit

GRANGE MEETS AT CITY HALL TODAY

Adopts Stringent Resolution Calling Congress to Stop Wheat Speculation.

RESTORE CONFIDENCE

Plea is Made That Congress Make Speculation in Wheat and Gov- ernment Bonds a Criminal Offense—Stabilize Trade.

The Douglas County Pomona Grange met this morning at the Roseburg city hall, with delegates present from Glendale, Evgreen, McLone, Drain, Yoncalla and South Deer creek. Reports from these delegates and written reports from several granges not represented showed that the grange is in flourishing condition throughout the county.

The youngest grange in the county, the Smith River grange, is building a hall on Smith river at the Will York place. This grange reported a membership of 72, with applications for membership being received at every session.

A committee composed of J. T. Redford, W. C. Edwards and R. A. Busenbark was appointed to work with a committee from Melrose grange over the matter of fire insurance.

The following resolution was adopted and copies ordered mailed to Oregon congressmen:

Whereas, speculation in wheat has been resumed on the stock exchange, and

Whereas, government bonds have been selling as low as $84 on the exchange; bonds the people were induced to buy during the war on the plea that they were the finest and best security in the world; and

Whereas, our stock yards and packing plants are being continually used for speculative purposes, juggling the market almost daily, to the great detriment of producers, legitimate trade and the public in general;

Now, therefore, we, the Douglas County Pomona Grange, in regular session assembled this 31st day of July, 1920, do most respectfully request and earnestly urge upon congress the necessity in the interest of peace, justice and safety of our country, that these things, together with all profiteering, be strictly regulated under heavy criminal penalties to the end that confidence again be restored, the people encouraged to engage in productive industries without fear of being ruined by conscienceless speculators.

(Signed)
DOUGLAS COUNTY POMONA GRANGE.

Following the passage of this resolution another one was unanimously adopted thanking the mayor and the city council for permitting the grange to use the city hall for the purpose of conducting its sessions.

Will Inspect Water System

Capt. Stokes, of the state fire marshal's office, is expected in Roseburg tonight to make a survey of the local water system in its relation to fire protection in order that he may advise the council and fire department whether or not a pump is practical in this city. The fire department has made an extensive investigation and finds that a pump for fire fighting purposes is generally advised. Some of the councilmen, however, believe that the water pressure as it now stands is sufficient and that a high pressure pump is not needed and is impracticable. Capt. Stokes has been investigating the recent fire at Medford and was instructed by the fire marshal to stop in Roseburg on his return to Salem to survey the local situation. He will report to the city council whether or not he deems a pump to be of sufficient importance to warrant its purchase.

Sportsmen Working For Bird Reserve

The local sportsmen's league has taken up the matter of the establishment of two pheasant reserves in the county and papers have been placed in the hands of officials in order that formal application may be made to the state Game Commission which is said to be favorable to the establishment of these reserves. In the event that the commission rules favorably, two reserves will be established by the sportsmen of Douglas county according to the present plans. In these areas the birds will be protected and every effort will be made to increase their numbers. In other counties, similar action has been taken and several pheasant farms are being started. The local sportsmen are very enthusiastic in this matter and will take the project up with the commission as soon as the forms can be properly made out and submitted.

Gasoline Shortage Is Less Critical

PORTLAND, July 31.—Indications point to more plentiful supplies of gasoline throughout August than were available this month in Oregon and Washington. The situation is easing up in central and eastern Oregon by shipments of tank cars from the Wyoming refineries of the Standard Oil company, making available large allotments of California motor fuel for consumers in the Portland and Willamette valley district.

Shipment of 1,500,000 gallons of gasoline from the Mid-Continent field to the Pacific coast by the Union Oil company also will help to supply the local demand.

Increasing allotments 50 percent by the Associated Oil company will permit reopening of all filling stations for the week-end period. The Shell company's stations are rationing gas at 75 percent to essential purposes and 20 percent to pleasure automobiles. Prices still are variable.

Myrtle Creek Sees Airplane Stunts

Pilot Leo Donavney, flying the Duddy plane "Roseburg" left yesterday evening for Myrtle Creek, where the demonstrations held in the southern part of the county are to start. Before leaving Roseburg, "Mike" pulled off a bunch of good stunts, and then cutting off his motor and dropping low to the ground, called out "good bye" to the people watching him. Ralph Quinn flew with him as passenger to Myrtle Creek, where a large crowd surrounded the field which had been put in shape for landing purposes. As the Roseburg plane was the first to ever land in Myrtle Creek, and practically the entire population was present, before landing in Myrtle Creek, the crowd was entertained with a series of spiral nose dives, zooms, side slips, loops, and other stunts which pleased them greatly. The landing was made without trouble of any kind, the field being in fairly good condition. The plane will remain in Myrtle Creek for three days giving exhibition flights and carrying passengers, and will then go to Riddle, Canyonville and Glendale.

University Reports Large Number Young People Paying Own Expenses.

EUGENE, July 21.—"I am working my way through," is a frequent answer one receives today from a student in answer to the query as to who is financing him in college. This is especially true of many University of Oregon students, co-eds as well as men. Although some occasionally receive a little outside aid, many of them do not, and rely entirely on their own efforts in different lines of work.

LIST POSITIONS KEPT

The great majority of students, practically all of the men, and many of the women, work during the summer at various occupations in order to help defray their expenses during the school year. Many take all manner of work, from forest airplane painter work, to working in Alaskan canneries, and generally return in the fall with enough to give them a good start for the next school year. Women work as clerks, in canneries, offices, and on newspapers.

Found That Students Working Way Through Schools Given as High Social Standing as Those Who Have Money.

The number of students working during their spare time during school last year was very high. Majors in the different vocational schools where practical training is given, generally find time to work a few hours a day at some occupation, the position many times being obtained for them by the school itself. Majors in the school of journalism are especially fortunate in this way, for several newspapers employ correspondents at the university, and the Eugene papers often use part-time workers. The same applies to majors in the school of commerce, and a large percentage of these students spend part of their time earning their way through school. The school of education employs part-time teachers, at the same time maintaining an appointment bureau through which teachers for schools in different parts of the state are engaged.

The Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. on the campus, each have employment bureaus, and each year place hundreds of men and women at steady part-time positions, while keeping a list of odd jobs for those who are unable to work at regular periods.

Scholastically, it has been found that the student working his way through is favored with the average student who does not rely on outside support. The idea of working one's way through is becoming more popular each year, especially during this period of high prices and high wages. It used to be that the young man who could not attend college on account of financial reasons had to sacrifice his chance to go. In the past few years, when more and more people are seeing the advantages of a college education, the young man who has not the means to attend goes through in spite of this by his efforts in outside work. Students learn to know and respect the self-supporting man, and find that he is the one who generally is foremost in student activities and social affairs as well as scholarship.
