CLEAN CITIES.

Health Commissioner Copeland, of New York City, returns from a foreign tour, devoted to investigating health conditions, with the conviction that New York is "physically and morally cleaner than any European city." Physical and moral cleanliness, he it noted, generally go together. He condemns London especially for its failure to safeguard its food supply and to supervise distribution of milk, and finds it remarkable that any London child should survive, in view of its contaminated milk supply. He finds many European cities with an insufficient or vitiated water supply, and almost everywhere conditions favorable to the spread of communicable diseases. The chief health problem in the United States at the present time, he says, is protecting this country against the invasion of deadly diseases from abroad. The commissioner is doubtless right about it. New York, with its teeming and smogging East Side, and its noise, rush, crowdedness and general air of artificiality, seldom impresses an outsider as particularly healthful. It is doubtless so, however, compared with big cities in other lands, and American cities in general are in the same situation, with a health status far better than can be found in corresponding communities of any other country in the world. This is not a thing to boast of. Most of our pre-eminence in health is probably due to causes for which we deserve no special credit. The war has hit Europe hard, and before the war its health problem was far harder than ours. A new country, given a tolerable climate, always has big hygienic advantages over an old one. Still, a large part of this national healthfulness comes from deliberate, intelligent effort and expenditure. A comparison of city and country proves this. "Foolish cities like New York are fit to live in only as the result of great effort to make them so. Rural districts in this country, which naturally ought to be more healthful than cities, generally show a higher disease and mortality rate, simply because they do not make the effort to safeguard their health. At a time when European disease has risen to flood proportions, every community in America, whether urban or rural, should make a greater effort than ever before, not only to bar disease from without but to keep down disease within.

WAR INSURANCE FRAUDS.

That there have been cases of fraud in the handling of the government war insurance seems to be a fact. The consoling side of the matter is that the heads of the bureau of war risk insurance have got after the guilty men, and are determined to wipe no stone unturned to punish all those responsible for the frauds, and to keep the bureau absolutely clean hereafter. Seven former employees of the compensation and insurance claims division have been arrested on charges of conspiracy to defraud veterans of the world war. There have been in the employ of the bureau 290 examiners and reviewers, of whom 164 are ex-convicts. These men have been selected with great care, and are required to qualify for the positions under rigid standards. It is a pity that a few dishonest men were able to creep in to the service—but it is not remarkable, for the wicked, like the poor, are always with us. The secret service of the treasury department is leaving no stone unturned to uncover the entire fraud, and to punish the guilty. There is no occasion for distrust of this important branch of government service. The cases handled honestly and fairly during the past year were very many, and the others very few. Stricter guard than ever will be maintained in the future over the work of the bureau. Private concerns are liable to the same difficulty of having the occasional wolf enter in sheep's clothing. In the fiscal year ending June 30, 176,824 claims were awarded for compensation and 26,462 insurance awards were made. The monthly amount being paid out in compensation awards for death and disability at present is $9,543,225, and the monthly amount paid out in insurance awards is $7,525,000. The government insurance bureau is still sound, and functioning honestly, and may be expected to continue so regardless of changing administrations.

German soldiers who saluted a French flag, under orders, and then marched off singing "Deutschland Ueber Alles," showed a strange understanding of the situation. What they should have sung was "Deutschland Under Allies."

A dispatch from Berlin regarding the former Prince Joachim, who took his own life, says he was "acutely embarrassed through his restricted finances," thereby meaning, we fancy, that he was broke. Isn't language wonderful!

HELEN CALLS.

Helen came over to see me this morning. Helen is really much happier than she used to be. She told me, however, that she had heard of "Charles" attentions to Ruth, and she thought it would be a very lovely thing if they would make a match. I rather hated myself for a little while because Charles had been so devoted to me for so many years that I could not quite see him for the husband of any woman, even so charming and so good a friend of mine as Ruth. And then I said to myself, "Katherine, don't be a dog to the man, Charles and Ruth are particularly suited to each other, and he will make a lovely father to her three children."

Helen said to me that Ruth had promised little Bobby that she should come to her and his father very soon again, and she seemed quite happy about it. After we had had a little talk Helen went with me over to the new house and seemed quite surprised that I was going to have my great living room in oriental decorations.

As a Background. "Why, Katherine," she exclaimed, "I can't quite imagine you in anything but a colonial environment, and yet," she said, after a moment's hesitation, "I should know from your vivid personality that, left to yourself, you would want something of this kind as a background."

"I am going to have the walls of this room," I explained to her as we entered, "covered with gold. China paper. In that wide doorway over there I am going to put some splendid temple carvings, and just inside a gorgeous painted screen. I have also picked up a beautiful pair of old temple doors, which I am going to put at the bottom of the staircase, and beside it some lovely carved lamps of gilded carving."

"Where did you find them, Katherine?" asked Helen curiously. "Oh, I have been picking up such things for years," I said. "I have told no one about them, but lately, especially since I thought that I was to have a little money of my own, I took advantage of a chance to buy some very lovely things from a Chinese art collection belonging to another explanation is necessary. The bridge stands as an ever showing fact nevertheless. Mrs. A. Larsen has just returned from Washington, where she has been visiting relatives for the past month. Schrenk, Strickland and Boardman will start their thresher Tuesday morning.

NEWS FROM LOOKING GLASS. Geo. B. Best and wife are home again from California. Mrs. Best is much improved in health, we are glad to state. Mr. F. Nouriter is out today entertaining a number of his friends from Roseburg. County club leader A. E. Street, was here Friday visiting the various club members and inspecting the industrial work. He promised to come again soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Peter Ames are entertaining one of their numerous California friends this week. Roy Erickson is home from Portland. Roy is attending the Beck & Walker business college at Portland and will stay with us a while and replenish his stock of dollars and cents.

On last Monday Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Meredith came home from Newport and it wasn't long until the word was being whispered over the line, and about dusk you could see the autos steering up and down the road and at nine o'clock sharp there was a terrible din raised at the R. C. Arnold home. Polo, pans, kettles, horns, guns, that had been used of use since the civil war were brought into play and, oh, my! such noise!—Mr. Arnold rushed out and had the serenaders an invitation in, where they shook hands with bride and groom, wishing them much happiness through life. Mr. Meredith passed the cigars and Mrs. Arnold some delicious cake with Cocoa and all speak very highly of the evening's hilarity.

Or citizens are being entertained again; an agent coming out last week trying to lease all the land in the valley for the purpose of prospecting for oil. Since this is a John Doe Company and there's no finding out just who you are leasing to, why lease to John Doe, or Richard Roe; these men are well known to every Court of Justice in the U. S. Besides the lease is very much stronger than a warranty deed and is a perpetual lease—one you could not cut loose from.—We strongly favor and encourage legitimate concerns of whatever nature lent, and we strongly oppose any non-deplume.

Mrs. Tom Heard is giving a picnic dinner to her Sunday School class today. A number of our young people did hide themselves away to the old Fishery below Roseburg, where they will fish and bath. This old resort was in early days the most popular one in all Douglas county and each Sunday would find some of our former leading citizens there.

At last our bridge is completed, and teams and autos are crossing. Mr. W. V. Hurst, the builder, has taken his crew of splendid men to Wharton, to do some repair work there. The new bridge is a splendid structure with concrete foundation. The corals for the main span being 64 feet long with abutment of 15 feet, making 80 feet of decking with some 850 feet of fill on the south end. Had this new splendid structure been placed in the middle of the road, which at this place runs due north and south, it would even have appeared more resourceful, but it stands obliquely across the road and had the bridge been sixty feet longer on the south, it would have batted into the neighbors' field. one of my friends. Black and Gold Brocade. "I have a wonderful piece of black and gold brocade which is going across that end of the room," pointing to the wall opposite the great stone fireplace, "and of course you have seen some of my Japanese prints. In rummaging over the attic of the old home I found an exquisite collection which had evidently been brought to mother by one of her sea-faring ancestors. It was a find, I promise you."

"Does John know how this room is going to be decorated?" asked Helen curiously as she looked upon the colonial paper, with which it was already hung. "No," I answered with a little smile which I could not suppress, because I knew in my own heart that Elizabeth Moreland had been decorating these rooms ostensibly for me, and that she, like Helen, had decided that my taste would run to colonial furniture and decorations, and so she had put colonial paper on the walls, thinking I would have no excuse to change it."

"I thought, of course, you had asked Miss Moreland to decorate them for you. I met her at Straus' interior decoration shop the other day and she told me she was very busy in getting the house ready for you."

Never in the House. "That's strange," I answered. "Only yesterday she told me she had never been in the house." "Katherine, why do you countenance that woman?" asked Helen in surprise. "What would you do under the same circumstances, Helen?" I asked.

"Of course I don't know," answered Helen, "but I believe I would simply ask John to allow me to run my own affairs."

"My dear, I am going to run my own affairs in the future with or without John's consent. That is the reason I am asking the paper hanging to come today and put up this beautiful gold tea paper of my own selection. Tomorrow—Helen Doesn't Understand."

MOTHERHOOD WOMAN'S RIGHT

How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps to Make Women Normal.

Washington, Ind.—"I was in such a condition that I never expected to have children and my aunt advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. It improved my health and restored a normal condition of my system so that I now have a fine baby. Until she was about a year old I was very nervous, and all the time thinking something terrible was going to happen. I could not eat and I wanted to run. So I took the Vegetable Compound again and it helped me wonderfully. You may publish my letter as the medicine is surely great." MRS. I. V. BANTA, R. K. No. 4, Box 24, Washington, Ind.

Among the virtues of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is its ability to correct sterility in many cases. This fact is well established as evidenced by the above letter and hundreds of others we have published in these columns. In many other homes, once children, these are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal, healthy and strong.

COURT HOUSE CASE UP.

SAL. EM. Aug. 2.—A temporary order restraining the county commissioners, county clerk and county treasurer of Klamath county from the expenditure of the special court house fund pending a decision on the appeal in the case of the J. M. Dougan company vs. Klamath county, was issued by the Oregon supreme court here today. Appeal from the decree of Judge Hamilton who found in favor of the Klamath county officials and the Hot Springs court house site, was filed in the supreme court Thursday by J. M. Dougan Company which is suing for collection of the final payment on the court house which it has constructed on the old court house square in the heart of Klamath Falls. Arguments on the injunction proceedings will be heard by the supreme court October 1.

"No gas" signs are displayed at nearly every station between Roseburg and Portland, according to tourists arriving here today. It was stated, however, that the filling stations in Salem were able to supply a liberal amount of the fuel. The Portland stations are unable to cope with the situation in any way and are hardly in a position to supply the specified 20 per cent of the tank capacity.

Goes to Portland.—Morris Bowker went to Portland this morning to visit for a couple of weeks with friends and relatives.

Locate in Portland.—Miss Ella Callahan left this morning for Portland, where she expects to make her future home.

WHY CITIES GROW.

A natural human desire to elude the divine mandate, "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread," has always been the seat of many of our earthly troubles. As interpreted to mean the kind of perspiration that accompanies tilling the soil, it may account for so many abandoned farms and the swarming emigration of the agricultural population to the cities—where, indeed, the sweating doesn't stop, but is in thousands of instances greatly stayed. On the farm, physical exertion well-nigh reaches its maximum. Stripped for the struggle with nature, reduced to the merest remnant of clothing, the gladiatorial combat is carried on.

There are no fat farmers, unless they have become "landed proprietors" and have delegated all violence of labor to other hands. It is the cry from Macedonia now that the hired man is no longer to be hired; and all the railing toil of the farm descends upon one hapless pair of shoulders; no one is to be had for love or money to share it. The rendering of the soil into nature's hands again is quite accountable. And when the rewards of easier employment in the city are so great, even partial dependence on a sense of conscientious self-sacrifice is not to be expected.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.
