Eastern Capitalist Visits Roseburg

S. D. Levings, vice-president of the Columbian Bronze Corporation, of Fifth Avenue, New York, stopped off in this city yesterday on his way south to enjoy a visit with his old-time friend, W. C. Harding, and while making the rounds of the city dropped into the News-Review office for a few moments. He was very favorably impressed with Roseburg and the beautiful Umpqua valley. In company with Mr. Harding the principal fruit growing sections of the county were visited yesterday afternoon and it was a revelation to Mr. Levings to note the modern methods employed for the care of orchards in this section of the state. In fact, the gentleman stated that the average eastern citizen was almost wholly in darkness concerning the great progress being made in the far western states and his trip has proven to him there are better places for one to cast his lot than in the thickly populated eastern districts. This is Mr. Levings' first visit west of Denver and he was delighted and surprised at the wonderful resources in this section.

JOHN HENRY.

John Henry had laid in a stock of "Wizard Chicken Meal"—Declared the price on it "red rock." And thought that closed the deal.

He didn't make another move—
Sat back to wait for sales.
They didn't come, and lower hung
The cloud that spells out f-a-l-l-s.

Across the street from him there was
A store called Timpkin's Place.
That had a brisk proprietor
What set a lively pace.

The customers would come and go.
John Henry marvelled much.
The things that Timpkins sold them,
Too,
Most surely "beat the Dutch."

At last he called on Timpkins.
Just to learn the how and why
He got those people in his store
And how he made them buy.

Friend Timpkins smiled: "It's simple,
Why, just come out of your shell,
And run a full page ad to show 'em
What you've got to sell."

John Henry gasped: "That's SOME expense!"
"Oh no," friend Timpkins said,
"Through 'merchandising service.'
It's quite simple stuff instead."

John Henry followed this advice:
You ought to see his store;
He's sold off all his Wizard meal
And ordered that much more.

He has a car and motors,
Spends his Sundays in the woods;
For "merchandising service" taught him
How to sell his goods.

ESTABLISH BRAKE FACTORY.

R. Z. Farmer, president of the Automatic Electric Brake Company of this city, left Friday morning for Portland, where he, assisted by Geo. S. Marsh, also of Roseburg, will superintend the manufacture of brakes for the company. A number of brakes have been put on trucks and trailers in Eastern cities for test purposes and orders are beginning to come into the local office of the company from large firms who are desirous of standardizing the brake as part of their regular equipment. The local company have installed a factory in Portland for the purpose of experimental and manufacturing purposes and with the Messrs. Marsh and Farmer in charge, great improvements have recently been made in the strength and simplicity of the brake. Judging from the tone of the communications being received the success of the brake is practically assured.

THE "EYE" WORM OF AFRICA

Dangerous Pest That is Apt to Be Imported on the Visitor to the Congo.

Every one who lives in central Africa any length of time sooner or later becomes affected with the flaria loa, a worm which is about two inches in length and the size of a hair. Its larva is supposed to be taken into the body in drinking water, and when incubated, it wanders through the body for a long period. At one time it may make its presence known in the forearm or the back of the hand by a painless swelling. At another time the same indications appear in a leg or about the lips or forehead.

Missionaries tell me that I have several of them in my body, although, save for the indications described, they have caused me little or no inconvenience. The worm is supposed to end its career in the eye of the victim, and in Africa is commonly called "eye worm" because of this tendency. It then produces inflammation, and, unless skillfully extracted, it sometimes ruptures the delicate membranes, frequently causing great suffering and even blindness.

The natives take it out with a bamboo splinter. But if the worm breaks in the eye, the virus is liable to poison the organ completely, frequently with the result of loss of sight. European surgeons, however, find little trouble in removing it successfully.—R. L. Garner in the Century Magazine.

Mole's Marvelous Appetite.

Incredible stories are told of the mole's appetite, and in order to see if there was anything in them (writes an English correspondent) I tried an experiment. My mole—a matronly lady—weighed three and half ounces. Each item of food that she was given was carefully weighed, and here is her record between 9 a. m. and noon: One frog, three slugs, twenty-four earthworms, a piece of raw mutton, and a bit of cheese, a total of just over four ounces. Some delay followed, as my stock of weighed food was exhausted. Probably by the time I had replenished it she thought it was time for a fresh meal, for she went at it again with no visible damage to her appetite, and before three o'clock she had got through another three ounces, mostly earthworms this time. That was twice her own weight in food in six hours. After this display I gave up the attempt to measure her maximum capacity.

Bohemians Fond of Geese.

A traveler in Bohemia quickly learns that there are certain things which are essentially Bohemian, writes Kenneth Roberts in the Saturday Evening Post. True Bohemians eat enormous quantities of caraway seeds and goose. When a Bohemian cook prepares anything she instinctively reaches for the caraway seed box and heaves a handful of seeds into the dish. She uses caraway seeds with hors d'oeuvres, soup, fish, meat, vegetables, desserts and cakes.

As for geese, it is the common food in Bohemia, because everyone raises geese, and, according to Mr. Roberts, geese in some form or another is eaten at every meal every day in the year.

Something Worth Seeing.

For tourists who drive through the Catskill mountains of New York state, Ashokan reservoir is well worth a visit. The shore line of the reservoir is 40 miles and the depth varies from 50 to 200 feet. The width of the reservoir runs about three miles average. The capacity is 130,000,000 gallons, from which, says the Automobile Blue Book, Manhattan may draw daily 500,000,000 gallons, carried by aqueduct 175 miles and siphoned under the Hudson river near Cold Springs to the city proper.

Vexing Problems Face Government

BERLIN.—A practical suggestion to solve the vexed problem what to do with 100,000 army men, who, in compliance with a Spa undertaking, are facing discharge, is offered by the "economic union of German professional soldiers", which has worked out a scheme to distribute the men in different state-owned plants which are at the present moment lying idle. The German government is to subsidize working expenses of these plants and fix a scale of wages. The operation of the plants would constitute a novelty because they would be worked on the principle of "mutual comradeship", and the relationship of employer and workmen would be eliminated. The government would take over the main output of the plants and there would be planned extensive land settlements on state-owned lands which workers would cultivate and on which they would build their own dwellings after performing eight hours daily factory work. The promoters claim that the scheme has already secured official support on principle.

All Prussian district presidents have been summoned to meet Minister Severing to confer on matters affecting the security police.
