

Increase Takes Effect Aug. 26

Passenger rates will increase 20 per cent on August 26, and on the same day freight rates on all commodities will take a 25 per cent increase, according to instructions received by the local Southern Pacific agent. In the meantime no round trip tickets extending beyond that date will be sold at the old rate.

The increase comes as a result of the general rate increase recently granted the railroads all over the country by the interstate commerce commission. The general effect of the freight rise on the prices of various commodities is still a matter of conjecture. Lumbermen of the Pacific northwest are watching it with particular interest as it is thought that it may curtail the entire industry unless compensated by a marked increase in the supply of equipment now available for handling their product. Local mill men do not venture a prediction yet as to what the effect will be on their mills.

WHEN DOES A WAR END?

While the United States is still "in a state of war with Germany" and is doing some little peace business with her, and under that congressional declaration practically fought Austria, Red Russia, Bulgaria and Turkey, Great Britain is at war with these peoples, and has only made peace with Germany. That peace was not accomplished at Versailles, but on January 10 last, the date being fixed by an order in council. This order has already been tested and accepted in the London high court of justice. A suit was brought to compel fulfillment of an obligation "six months from the date of the signing of peace between Great Britain and Germany." The court decided that peace was accomplished by the order in council and that the signature of the treaty of June 28, 1919, did not terminate the state of war. And the date when the whole war will be over for Great Britain must also be fixed by order in council. That will not take place until the last of the treaties of peace has been signed and ratified.

As between the United States and Great Britain, we may after all "out of it first."—Boston Transcript.

MOTHER.

It has been written about, and told, and sung, and acted, and preached, and related in stories, and rhymed in poetry, all over and over again, until you'd think the world was weary of it, but it isn't.

I refer to the mother theme.

For mother is not only the oldest, it is also the newest word in the language.

It strikes a little deeper note in the heart of men than even wife. The woman who bore him lies just a bit closer alongside a man's everlasting soul than any other man or woman can creep.

It's nature. Its the cryptic cogency of instinct.

It is the unanswerable argument of blood. For any other person can let you go if you are bad enough, but your mother can not let you go.

She stands by. You may flout her and forget her, outrage and mistreat her, but deep in her soul you can never be anything else but her baby.

She never forgets you as that wonderful little life that grew in her body, and lay on her breast, helpless in her arms.

We can forget, and do, those who have done us favor, but we can not forget those who have called out our fiercest fires of love and sacrifice.

There is a story I heard told the other night—I think it is an old one, and has been done into a song, but old or new, sung or unsung, it's a piercing story of tragic beauty.

It is of a man who had become infatuated with an evil woman who was very comely. So great was her beauty that the man was mad over her. And he swore to her in the excess of his passion that for her there was nothing in the world he would not do.

Then the evil-hearted woman smiled, in her lust for power, and proposed a horrid test, so that her pride might be stated by the knowledge that she could make a man do anything.

"If you love me so much," she said, "prove it, by bringing me your mother's heart."

So the man, insane from the heat of his infatuation, slew his mother, and cutting out her heart ran with it to the evil woman.

And as she was running, and carrying the heart of his mother in his two hands, it happened that he stumbled and fell.

And as he fell the heart cried out and said:

"Have you hurt yourself, my boy?"

This information was telephoned to the state penitentiary. There has been no escape from the prison, however, and the information was turned over to the sheriff.

If the report is true the officers are inclined to believe the man had escaped from an officer on a train. The officers here did not get the name of the woman who telephoned the report.

"GOL DURNED WARM."

With the pavement soft as mush and things in general hotter'n'ell, Weather Observer Bell brings forth the comforting news that it's just about two or perhaps one and a half degrees cooler today than the temperature registered yesterday. At 3 o'clock the thermometer was hovering around 97. The mercury started on its upward flight at about 11 o'clock this morning and since that time has been slowly climbing. No relief is in sight and tomorrow is scheduled to be just as hot. It is safe to predict that Roseburg will be practically deserted tomorrow and the North and South Umpqua will be brimming over with bathers.

BUBAR BROTHERS

State Editors in Session at Astoria

ASTORIA, Or., Aug. 13.—The 13th annual convention of the Oregon State Editorial association opened here today, Friday, August 13, and some one has figured out that its sessions, business and social, will total 23 hours. Despite this multiplicity of hoodoos the large attendance, cool and bracing weather, abundance of enthusiasm and interesting discussions have combined to make this convention one of the most successful in the history of the organization, and the editors, especially those from the more torrid sections of the state, are having the time of their young lives.

The convention was opened at 10 o'clock this morning by President C. E. Ingalls, of Corvallis. After an invocation by Rev. H. L. Dunn, pastor of the Christian church, C. W. Robinson, in the absence of Mayor Bremer, extended a cordial welcome to the editors. He assured them that nothing would be left undone that might contribute to their pleasure and entertainment while in the city.

Visiting in Garden Valley—Ross Hutchinson, of Kellogg, and Mrs. H. R. Dimmick, of Elkton, arrived here today and after looking after business matters left for Garden Valley to visit with Vernon LaRaut.

Home From Newport—Rev. E. W. Warrington and family returned last night from Newport, where they have been enjoying a week's vacation. They report a most enjoyable outing.

To Our Customers:--

The only way to paint economically is to FORGET GALLON PRICE and figure cost by area cover and years of life.

SWP covers one-third more area than paints which are cheaper per gallon. It lasts twice as long without re-painting, so requires half the material and labor costs.

On that basis, SWP is the cheapest-per-gallon outside paint you could buy.

SWP is the best prepared house paint. That is why we sell it. Now is the time to consult us about your house painting.

Prepare to do it this fall before the rains fill the wood with moisture. Oil and water do not mix well and it will be better to fill cracks, crevices and exposed pores of wood with linseed oil and pigment now while water is absent.
