LOVE and MARRIED LIFE by the noted author Idah McGlone Gibson

KATHERINE'S ILLNESS.

I must have been a great worry to my friends all those months that my mind was wandering about in 'No Man's Land.' In fact, it seems that every one gave up, one after another. Helen and Bobby were first to insist that I would never again recognize those about me.

Alice told me that Karl said to her one night, 'Perhaps no one knows but me, the delicate adjustments of Katherine's mind. Why when I was in Egypt, did you know, Alice, that we talked to each other? She always knew when I was writing her a letter, and as I was writing I could see her as plainly as I do you now, and I always knew what she was doing.'

'Do you realize, Alice,' he said, 'just what that letter meant? Do you realize the impelling force that was behind that message that made me tell Katherine that I knew she was going to be in trouble and not to worry, that I would be with her? Just stop for a moment and think—there was I away out there on the Nile. I was in Egypt then, and without any rhyme or reason something within me said, 'Katherine needs you, Katherine needs you, you must go to Katherine.' Of course like a sane twentieth century man that I was, I laughed at myself called myself all sorts of a silly ass, but the thought still stuck in my mind to the exclusion of everything else.

'Of course, I was horribly frightened, because I felt that if you again had to go through the telling of John's tragic death, it would kill you; I went in, however, and you greeted me as though you had just seen me the day before. For the first time in months, you recognized me and called me by my name, and mentioned that John must have gone out early that morning. I didn't know what to say to you, but finally got up courage enough to ask: 'Katherine, did you know that Karl Shepard is home?'

MONDAY — Convalescence.

CAMAS VALLEY NOTES.

breeding is nearly completed in the valley. About one crop to fresh yet. We would like to see all done before it rains, although it seems quite threatening this morning.

Crops are turning out fine this year. Several have begun hauling wheat to Roseburg.

Luther Trueman is in the valley visiting relatives.

Mrs. Paul Spear has sold her place and is preparing to leave soon. Mr. Moore, the new owner, is already there and will take possession as soon as Mrs. Spear leaves.

Abbie Lawson has scarlet fever. Mrs. Spear is in attendance and the patient is getting along nicely.

The nursing school held by Mrs. Smith at the school house each Friday is well attended. We are glad to have the opportunity of learning all we can about caring for the sick.

Mrs. J. R. Russell and Mrs. G.

L. Coon are in Corvallis, where they attended the wedding of Miss Della Newman and Norman Coon a few days ago. Both young people are well known in Camas Valley. We wish them many years of happiness.

Mrs. Chas. Lee is home again after spending the summer in Powers with her son Lyle.

The current result list of the Legion contains the following instances, where desired information was furnished:

Mrs. Catherine Holbeck, of Allentown, Pa., asked for information concerning the circumstances surrounding the death of her son, Sergeant Joseph Hornbeck of Company C, 199th Machine Gun Battalion, 28th Division, who died in a French hospital. The mother received a letter from Dr. Joseph Lintz, of New York, who attended the dying soldier, giving details of his last hours.

Mrs. Lola Mason, of McRae, Ga., asked for information that would throw some light on the disappearance of her son, F. Mason, Jr., corporal, 83rd Company, Sixth Marines. The soldier wrote his mother that he would be home for Christmas '21 but did not appear and nothing further was heard of him. Mrs. Mason reported that she received two letters, one from the son himself saying that he had recovered from a long illness.

Many curious and touching appeals are received. A mother wants to know if her son, who died in a field hospital, said anything on his death bed. Another parent whose son was gassed, captured and afterward died, desires information from his comrades as to what kind of gas was used and how it affected him. Information is sought of an Army nurse who was last heard of enroute to France two years ago. A distressed family seeks word from the "buddies" of its soldier, who was last seen walking a battlefield wounded.

Reedsport Men Still In Trouble

One Reedsport man, Sam Conrad, convicted for prohibition law violation, gets out of jail, while another, Joseph Wilson, is not released according to the following account in a Portland paper:

Released was denied Joseph Wilson on a writ of habeas corpus proceedings in Judge Bean's court on Tuesday morning on the ground that even though he might not be held under the internal revenue law by which he was arrested and which was declared later to have been repealed by the national prohibition law, his offense showed a still of considerable capacity and manufacturing moonshine.

Sam Conrad whose case was the same except that his arrest came earlier was ordered released by the court because he has already served six months in jail the maximum penalty under the prohibition law. In default of the payment of the $500 fine, he was kept in jail still longer.

Map of the National Park to Park Highway, the longest continuous scenic motor way in the world, traversing nine western states for a distance of 4,500 miles and connecting twelve national parks and many monuments and forests. The highway was dedicated to the people of America by Stephen T. Mather, director of the National Parks Service; governors of eight states, and officials of the National Park to Park Highway Association and the American Automobile Association, at Denver. Other dedicatory meetings are being held in cities on the route, in a sixty-day official tour. Congress will be asked to consider appropriations for converting this highway into a hard-surfaced boulevard, and for sufficient appropriations to adequately exploit and develop its scenic wonders in the playgrounds of the nation.

'FISHERMAN'S LUCK' IN THE BEAUTIFUL LAURENTIANS

IN THE LAURENTIANS

There are 3,500,000 acres of beautiful lakes in the vast province of Quebec within easy reach of Montreal and Quebec, and most of them are well stocked with trout and bass. In streams like the Cache river are huge salmon trout and gray and speckled trout. The lakes are almost numberless and many of them have no names. Hidden in the recesses of the beautiful Laurentian mountains they furnish splendid sport for the fisherman who loves to camp in the open far from cities and towns and have plenty of fine fish when "chow time" comes.

Among the hills, 124 miles northwest of Montreal, Lac Nominique is far enough away to be little exploited. This is the largest body of water in the Laurentians, and in 35 miles in circumference, and in the network of waterways that surround it are red trout, gray, brook and salmon trout. The scenery is beautiful and even on the warmest day a cool breeze stirs the surface of Lac Nominique.

But when one undertakes to pick out a splendid place for fishing, there is plenty of choice between Montreal and Mont Laurier. St. Jovite, Lac Mercier and Labelle, named in honor of Father Labelle, a missionary who was the white pioneer of the whole Laurentian region, are popular centers for fishermen and lovers of the woods.

Two miles from Lac Mercier is Lac Tremblant, near which is Mont Tremblant, 2,500 feet high, which is said to quiver mysteriously at certain hours. Lac Chapicau is noted for its big fish. Within the past few years the Laurentians have been a favorite camping place for various organizations, including the Y. W. C. A., the Provincial Boy Scouts, the Y. M. C. A., and others. One camp on Lac Archambault is 27 miles from the railway, and the boys in this camp have actually discovered and named about 100 lakes. Two miles north of this lake civilization ceases, and from there north the keen, young boy explorer and his big brother and father may wander for weeks and even months before the shores of Hudson Bay are reached.
