"LENA RIVERS" TONIGHT AT THE TENT.

An audience that filled the big tent theater last night enjoyed the very excellent performance of "The White Sister," given by the Macy-Baird comedians. It was well acted and well received.

Tonight that ever popular story book play, "Lena Rivers," will have its first introduction here. "Lena Rivers" as a book enjoyed as large a sale as any book of modern fiction, and nearly everyone has either read the book or at least heard of the pretty story, and in play form it is even more interesting than it was as a book. Box office reports of the various theaters throughout the entire country are proof of that.

Aside from the simple little sweet story, there are laughs, too numerous to mention, and tonight and tomorrow night the vaudeville will be particularly good. But don't fail to meet Lena Rivers—you have heard how nice she is, now is the chance to get acquainted. She will hold her first reception tonight at the tent at 8:15 sharp.

NATIONAL FOREST BEING CLASSIFIED

Homestead and Forestry Classes Have All Been Segregated.

80 PER CENT NO CROP

Forestry Service Has Been Too Liberal With the Possible Homesteaders. — Lands Not Suitable in the Whole.

The classifying into homestead and forestry classes of all National Forest lands in Oregon, has been completed, according to Assistant District Forester C. J. Buck, of Portland, who has had general charge of this work in the state.

Funds for classifying the National Forests and segregating and opening the homestead entry, all lands more valuable for agriculture were first appropriated by Congress on August 10, 1912. Annual appropriations have continued for the last 8 years, until in Oregon the work is now completed and all lands found to be agricultural have been opened to entry.

In addition to the 1 1/2 million acres which have been eliminated from the Forest Service as not being suitable for timber production or watershed protection, the report shows that 115,521 acres have upon classification been found to be chiefly valuable for agriculture and opened to homestead entry, in 1335 separate homestead units. Today only 42.7 per cent of these homesteads are occupied.

"This lack of use by the homesteading public," says Mr. Buck, "denotes a more exacting classification as to agricultural value and productivity than that made by the officers of the Government, although these lands were carefully selected by qualified agents of the Department of Agriculture as the most choice from a possible ranching standpoint of all lands in the National Forests. The majority of the homestead units are considered not worth while by the homesteader and pioneer.

"The indication, as shown by actual use, is that the Forest Service, influenced by the great pressure for free homestead lands from many sources has been too liberal to the possible homesteader, overstepping the bounds of economic agricultural requirements and classifying as homestead lands, lands which economically under existing conditions are really more valuable for forest production."

Of the 227 homesteads which have been listed, occupied and patented only 142 or 42 per cent are now being used. The ones in use are mostly for hay crops. One hundred and forty-six homesteads classified as chiefly valuable for agriculture, or 13 per cent of the total number opened to entry, are not covered by any form of entry.

The final classification data obtained as a result of the examination of nearly thirteen million acres of National Forest lands in the mountain ranges of Oregon shows conclusively that these areas are considered by the public of little value for agriculture. There are over 2 1/2 million acres of land inside of Forest boundaries in private ownership, being originally acquired under the homestead and timber and stone laws, and of this over 1,600,000 acres are used by the owners only for grazing or forestry purposes. Of the total cultivated land itself, over 80 per cent is producing no crop except hay.

Mother of Mrs. W. H. Fisher Dies

Coming as a shock to many friends in this city was the word received yesterday of the death in Portland, Oregon, of Mrs. D. T. Summerville, Her daughter, Mrs. W. H. Fisher, of this city, had been with her for the past several weeks, and Mr. Fisher motored to that city last week. The deceased was about 80 years of age, and had been in failing health for some time. Her death was caused by complications due to old age. She is survived by her husband and two children, Mrs. W. H. Fisher, of Roseburg, and Ralph Summerville, of Chicago. Mr. and Mrs. Summerville formerly resided in Roseburg. Mr. Summerville being pastor of the Methodist Episcopal church here about forty years ago. He was also superintendent of this district. Following the close of his pastorate here they resided in Texas and the middle western states. Since retiring from the ministry they have made Portland their home. Mrs. Summerville had many friends in Roseburg who are grieved at the sad news of her demise. The funeral services will be held in Portland tomorrow afternoon at 2 o'clock, and burial will take place there. The W. H. Fisher dry good store in this city will be closed tomorrow afternoon.

Fire Season Will End Very Soon

Those in touch with the forest fire situation throughout the county state that the season for fires is practically over and that little danger is feared. The season this year is completed much earlier than for many years, the rain of last week having been sufficient to insure protection to the forests in practically all sections of the county except the extreme southern part. In the southern part of the county the rain was light and consequently did not wet the forests to any great extent. However, the moisture was sufficient to stow up all of the fires in progress and enable the fighters to extinguish the various conflagrations. H. O. Parkester, of the Douglas Fire Patrol, says there have been two or three small brush fires reported since the rain, but none of these are of a serious nature. Men have been assigned to their patrol and will prevent any spread. Both the forest service and fire patrol are preparing to withdraw their men, probably about the middle or last of next month. The nights are becoming cold with considerable dew so that the forests are kept sufficiently wet to prevent fires.

Publicity Work Showing Results

Last week was the biggest week the Chamber of Commerce has known in so far as the work of bringing new settlers into the community is concerned. During the week seven new families made their appearance with a determination to remain in Douglas county, while others interested dropped into the office to make inquiries. The organization has been in direct communication with all of these families and it was almost entirely through the promptness of replies that the prospective settlers were first attracted to Roseburg. All have been directed and assisted in their search for locations and undoubtedly the greater number will remain in the city. The secretary has also received a communication from a family in Canada to the effect that they have sold their large farm there and will arrive in Roseburg between the first and third of September. A new arrival from New Mexico went to Kansas City before coming west and while in the public library found a booklet on Roseburg. He copied down the statistics in a memorandum book and then came to this city to verify the statements made, and says that he found them correct and will remain in this vicinity. The lack of houses, housekeeping rooms and apartments causes a great many people to leave Roseburg who would otherwise remain in this vicinity. They can find no place in which to stay and consequently move on to another city. If this condition could be relieved Roseburg would be able to hold a much greater percentage of the prospective residents.

We cordially invite your inspection of the beautiful hats, in the new shades of amber and copper, also metallic cloth and peachskin. The richness of materials surpasses any season in the past. The Vogue, Tuesday, Aug. 31st.
