Castle Rock in Kansas.

One of the most interesting works of nature in Kansas from a geological standpoint is known as "Castle Rock," a natural formation located in Gove county, in the valley of the Hackberry, about ten miles from its mouth. This castellated mass is composed of a capping of limestone and the shaft of chalk and compact shale. Its unique formation was caused by the shales wearing away, the strongly cemented stone serving as a protection to the upper surface. In this way mountainous appearing masses are frequently produced, especially where streams cut their way through the hard stone into the softer materials below. Similar formations are met with in Illinois county which show isolated columns which rise from 20 to 70 feet in height.—Biscum's History of Kansas World's Glass Industry.

Glass factories of Bohemia are filled with orders and working at full capacity, but are likely to suffer in the future because of the competition that arose in this trade during the war. Japan is one of the largest competitors. New glass factories also have been founded in Belgium, the Ukraine, Roumania and Poland.

MOVIE CLOSE-UPS

Despite the fact that many people spent Labor Day in adjoining towns or in the hills, the Roseburg theaters were crowded to the limit both at afternoon and evening performances. Films with an especial appeal were shown at each house and were viewed with appreciation by everyone.

At the Liberty theater tonight there will be another showing of "The Lone Wolf's Daughter," the Louise Glaum picture that proved to be of intense interest to all who attended the first performance last night. It is a J. Parker Read production from the Louis Joseph Vance story, combining the famous characters of "The Lone Wolf" and "False Faces." The play contains but a small cast, but one that is unusually powerful. Edwin Stevens, often referred to as the screen's most finished actor, is exceptionally good as Prince Victor, and the remainder of the cast attains the same high standard. This is the last showing of "The Lone Wolf's Daughter" in Roseburg.

A masterful picturization of Harold Bell Wright's famous story, "The Shepherd of the Hills," will be shown on the screen at the Antlers theater tonight.

To the thousands of local readers of the book, the picture will particularly appeal, for the story has been transplanted to screen exactly as it was written. From "Sammy Lane" down to "Little Pete," all of the characters have been brought to life with absolute realism. The author personally supervised the production to make sure that no event that was told in the story was omitted in the cinema version.

The film has been exhibited in the middle west, and has just completed a successful run at one of the larger theaters in San Francisco, where it shattered all records for attendance.

Tonight at the Majestic theater the mystery play, "The 13th Chair," that was shown at the Antlers last night, will be repeated. For those who are fond of intense, gripping mystery, the kind that keeps you sitting on the edge of your chair until the final foot of film, "The 13th Chair" will be more than satisfying. Spiritualism is the mystic theme that plays an important part and will interest even avowed skeptics. The play is enhanced greatly by being in the hands of an excellent cast headed by Creighton Hale and Yvonne Delva.

Fred Durnam, the well known musician, whose talent has won for him many friends in Roseburg, has returned here and will be heard on the organ at the Antlers theater indefinitely. He has been filling an engagement with the Globe Theater company at Albany since his last visit to Roseburg.

TWENTY FIVE YEARS SUFFERING ENDED

Mrs. Owen is Entirely Rid of Trouble Since Taking Tanlac. — Gains Twenty-Three Pounds

"I am now entirely rid of my troubles of twenty-five years standing and have gained twenty-three pounds in weight since I started taking Tanlac," said Mrs. E. Owen, 800 East Ankeny street, Portland, Oregon.

"For the past twenty-five years I had been suffering from a bad form of stomach trouble and indigestion, and there were times when I was in such bad condition I thought I would surely die. Although I tried just about everything I could hear of for my troubles I was unable to find anything to help me. My appetite was so poor that I never knew what it was to feel hungry, and when I did manage to eat a little something it would ferment and cause intense misery from the formation of gas which was so bad at times I could not bear the pressure of my clothes. My nerves were so badly upset that at the least little noise I would jump as if I had been shot and it was utterly impossible for me to get a good night's sleep. I kept losing weight until I was pitifully thin and was so weak I could barely get around.

"My sister-in-law advised me to try Tanlac so I got a bottle and before I had finished it I began to feel a great deal better. I have now taken five bottles and feel better than I have in twenty-five years. My appetite is simply splendid and I can eat just anything I want and never have a particle of trouble with indigestion. My nerves are as steady as can be and I can sleep all night long as peacefully as a child, and always get up in the mornings feeling greatly refreshed. I can't say too much for Tanlac and never miss an opportunity to praise it."

Tanlac is sold in Roseburg by W. F. Chapman and by the leading druggists everywhere.

Traditional Marriage Customs.

It was an ancient custom among the Scandinavians to drink methagein, or diluted honey, for 30 days after a wedding. In the island of Rhodes honey is still a factor in the marriage rites. After the ceremony the husband dips a finger in honey and traces a cross over the doorway of his home before his bride enters, while the guests admonish the bride to "Be always sweet and good, as is this honey."

The wedding cake goes back to antiquity. One of the important features of the marriage ceremony among the Romans was the partaking, by both contracting parties, of a cake made of flour, salt and water. This was done in the presence of the high priest and ten witnesses.

The use of the wedding ring is almost universal, but in the country districts around Cadix no ring is used. After the ceremony the groom shifts the flowers in his wife's hair from left to right, for to wear a flower over the right ear is to precipitate one's self a wife.

COUNTESS OF TURENNE

The countess of Turenne is visiting friends in this country.

In Old New York. Chelsea, in the neighborhood of Twenty-third street and North river New York city, was the home of Clement C. Moore, who wrote the child hood classic, "Twas the Night Before Christmas." One of the admirable old houses of Chelsea is that where dwelt Edwin Forrest, the actor. It is at 436 West Twenty-second street, a substantial-looking square fronted house, with a door of a great single panel. On the spot where the New York city hall stands, George Washington paraded his little army on a July day in 1776, and with grave solemnity a document was read to him that had just been received from Philadelphia, and which was forever to be known as the Declaration of Independence.

Putting Reptiles to Sleep.

Monotonous sensory stimulation, one southern dealer in alligators has found, will quickly render the smaller reptiles unconscious. The dealer has his uncanny control of his reptilian stock in trade, he places one of the smaller alligators upon its back. Knowing besides it, he holds the wriggling body with one hand, while he gently strokes the underside of the jaw. Back and forth goes the hand with the squirming senses and the limbs relax. Some say that the dealer temporarily suppresses the functions of the crocodilian cerebrum others, skeptical, maintain that he simply lulls the alligators to sleep.—Popular Mechanics Magazine.

Wanted a Quantity.

Helen's mother came from a large grandma's house, as there were always so many young uncles and aunts to play with. One day, after returning from one of her visits, Helen was taken to the bedroom and was shown a tiny new baby sister. Helen did not seem to be at all enthusiastic, and her father, surprised at her lack of interest, asked:

"Well, what do you think of your new baby sister?" Helen replied: "Hm! Only one? Why didn't you get a real many, like grandma has?"

PLAYED FEW "SAFETY SHOTS"

Men Who Have Won Success in Life's Game Satisfied With Nothing But Victory.

Walter Hagen, the golfer, says: "Never play for a safety, but always try for the cup."

Kings in other trades as well as in golf have found that it pays to "try for the cup," remarks "Glard" in the Philadelphia Press.

Safety shots are often careless shots in business as played.

Rockefeller played six hole out in the oil world and he made a par and then some.

Morgan hammered the ball straight for the flag and it flew above every bunker and sand pit in the financial world.

Col. "Tom" Scott had no safety shots in his bag when dreaming out the Pennsylvania road system, nor did Franklin B. Gowen when he made his master stroke in buying the Reading's coal lands.

Theodore N. Vail, the telephone giant, never minced his game nor resorted to a half shot to save his face. He went out with the long stroke and came home to the final shot with a record card in his credit.

The big-league teams play to win the game, not to win a compromise or tie the other team.

The great merchant nails his flag to the mast, says "damn the torpedoes," and shoots straight at his target.

So in business as on the links the adage should be: "Hold your head still and play for the cup."

PICK EMPLOYEES WITH CARE

Modern Business Men No Longer Rely on the "Hit-or-Miss" Method of Selection.

There was a time when picking employees was a hit-and-miss job, a trial-and-error matter which few employers believed could be corrected. This is the day of doing things right and the modern employer is now selecting his associates, from the office boy to the man highest up, with as much care as he would launch on an entirely new business venture. William Marvin Jackson, director of the Personnel Development service, writes:

"If employees are carefully selected, with an eye to their real adaptability and fitness for the work to be done, it goes without question that they are much more likely to take an interest in their work, and hence, the business itself. If they are interested, they will get along well with their fellows and co-operate with their superiors. All of which means that they will grow, and there is no satisfaction for the employee greater than that which accompanies the knowledge that he is getting somewhere. Putting him on the back may make him feel good, and paying him a good salary may make him work harder. But giving him a new job and bigger job will alone make him supremely happy, will alone make him work with complete abandon, with thorough-going enthusiasm."—Forbes Magazine.

No Doubt Who Was Boss.

Sometimes it is easy to see, even before a couple is married, just which one is going to be the boss of the household. Recently a big, robust woman stepped into the office of Register of Deeds Adler Johnson. "Is this where I get a license?" she asked. "What kind of a license?" asked Adler.

"A marriage license," said the woman.

"No, we don't handle them," said Adler. "Go to the first door down the hall on your right."

"I knew at first that this wasn't the place," said the big woman, with an air of disgust; "that's what I told him." Thereupon she stepped into the hall, and when the door opened Adler could see a little man waiting outside.

It was evident that the woman had usurped command and was going to take charge of the marriage license business, not to mention, of course, the honeymoon and all the rest of the alliance.—Fort Scott (Kan.) Tribune.

Australian Rabbits Selling Fast.

Rabbits have been doing great damage in the grazing districts of Australia, and strenuous efforts to eradicate them has resulted in the killing of a vast number of these animals. Some 100,000 bodies are now in cold storage awaiting shipment to England. The embargo on the export of rabbit skins was removed in December last, and the boom in rabbit-skin prices has produced remarkable competition in slaughtering the pest. The ruling average price paid to trappers for skins is now $1.82 per pound, and the demand for skins by the United States and European markets is so great that it cannot be satisfied, and it is thought that prices will go still higher. Experienced trappers are making up to $97 per week for the skins alone.
