HONEYMOONS IN ODD PLACES

Persons of Adventurous Disposition Have Spent Them Amid Arctic and Savage Dangers.

Mr. Elkins, the wealthy young American who recently took his bride for a honeymoon "as near the North pole as he can comfortably get," is by no means the first bridegroom who has spent his "month of honey" in this chilly environment, says London Answers.

A few years ago Mr. Max Fleischmann, a Chicago millionaire, at his bride's request, took her straight from the altar to the Arctic wastes, where they spent, on their own evidence, "delightful" months, hunting seals, reindeer and polar bears, two of which fell to the bride's own gun. Mrs. Fleischmann's honeymoon wardrobe, we are told, consisted of an assortment of sheepskin dresses, lined with leather.

Less chilly, but no less adventurous, was the honeymoon journey of Major Powell-Cotton, who took his bride on a long and hazardous journey through Africa, spending many months in the heart of the turti forest, hunting the okapi and making friends of the savage pigmies, who had never before even seen a white woman.

But the most daring and adventurous of all recorded honeymoons was that of Captain Andrews, an American sailor, and his bride, who started to cross the Atlantic in a "cockleshell," 12 feet long, and were never seen again.

INDIAN IDEA OF RECKONING

Time Designated in Simple Fashion—Journeys and Distances Told Off by "Sleeps."

The American Indians of early days reckoned time by what they called "sleeps" and "moons." The Indian's "sleep" referred to a sun-to-sun day of 24 hours and his "moon" to what the white man roughly and improperly calls a month. The Indians indicated the moon hour by pointing vertically upward. To indicate the middle of the first half of the daylight period—9 o'clock—he pointed upward midway between the horizon and the zenith and to indicate mid-afternoon—3 o'clock—he pointed toward the opposite quarter. He spoke of the eastern horizon as "sunrise" and of the western horizon as "sunset."

Journeys and distances between different points were measured in "sleeps." Thus, when he undertook to tell how far he had traveled or to tell how far one point was from another, the old-time Indian would say a certain number of "sleeps." Ordinarily, a "sleep" in this sense corresponded to something like 35 miles—the distance a man could cover in a day, traveling at an ordinary pace on foot. However, it was not unusual for men carrying important messages to make twice 35 miles or more in a single 24-hour period.

New York Landmarks Going. The "downtown" section of New York is losing one of its landmarks by the demolition of the Eastern hotel to make room for an office building. For nearly a hundred years it has been the favorite hostelry of American seafaring folk. "Dynamite Johnny" O'Brien, well-known for his practice of shipping arms to the Latin-American countries, concocted many of his flustering schemes in this hotel, which he made his headquarters. One of the features of this building was its beams of solid mahogany. In 1822, when it was constructed, cargoes of supplies were frequently shipped from New York to South American ports, and when a return cargo could not be secured mahogany was brought back, serving the purpose of both cargo and ballast. These cargoes were sold cheaply, and were often used in the construction of New York buildings of that period.

A Heavy Exit. I had had a misunderstanding with my employer, and when I handed in my resignation I told him in very plain English what I thought of him; he, also, pointing out a few faults he thought I had. A few months later, after answering a blind ad for a position, I received a reply naming a time for an appointment. My name at that time being an exceedingly common one, it was not recognized; neither did I recognize him, as he had moved his office and changed the firm name. Upon being ushered into the office I met my former employer face to face. We were both speechless, and I did not catch my breath until I had backed out and was in an elevator going down.—Chicago Tribune.

City Minus Cafeterias! Buenos Aires has no cafeterias for women and only one in a modified form for men. The first one for girls in the city is soon to be opened by the Y. W. C. A. The only steam table in Buenos Aires was discovered by Y. W. C. A. secretaries in the storeroom of a gas company. It had been sent from England for a food exposition and never used after that. It is now installed in the Y. W. C. A. The cafeteria when opened promises to draw a crowd for more than the usual reason.

It Did. "My dear sir," said the salesman, courteously, as he handed his customer his package and no change, "you will find that your suit will wear like iron." And sure enough it did. The man hadn't worn it two months when it began to look rusty.—New York Central Magazine.
